"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

Off-Year Elections Are Important!

When a presidential election year rolls around, with all the glamour and excitement of the primaries and the campaigns, climaxed by the televised party conventions, millions of people become excited and get involved. They solicit funds, wear buttons and carry campaign stickers on their automobiles.

But experienced politicians are not nearly as concerned about the presidential year campaigns as they are the "off-year elections." It is here that power bases are built in state political organizations. It is here that the political complexion of the House of Representatives is determined. It is here a third of the U.S. Senate is elected. It is here that governors of many states are elected; 35 this year.

And because not so many voters become involved, the political managers have a less difficult time in determining the outcome of the elections. A small, responsive minority becomes more important. It's an easier, cheaper way of building a political empire.

If men of a certain political philosophy can capture the statehouses, a majority of the House of Representatives (where all appropriation bills must originate), and a significant number of the Senate seats, that political philosophy will certainly prevail.

When that political philosophy turns out to be anti-labor, you . . . the rank and file union member . . . are going to suffer. You and your dependents will finally feel the results in your pocketbooks, just as surely as the sun will come up on next November 3, election day!

On page 9 of this issue, announcement is made of a series of COPE Conferences. The AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education is the political arm of organized labor. Organized labor cannot afford not to be involved with politics. At these conferences, concrete plans will be made to fight for the elections of progressive, liberal, pro-labor and pro-people legislators, both in the state houses and in the Congress.

The local union which can send a delegation to the COPE Conference which covers its state should, by all means, do so. We absolutely must contribute both time and money to the political contests which will be decided next November. The liberal majority now has only the slenderest of margins in Congress. If the conservatives increase their strength in Congress at the election next November, the forces which oppose the welfare of the rank and file citizens, and which favor the welfare of the vested interests, are going to be in control. And the little people will get hurt.

We will have more to say on the subject during the coming year. But for now let us urge you to take an active interest in politics. It may be an "off-year election" but it damn sure is not an unimportant one. Plan now to attend your COPE Conference!

THE COVER

Our cover is a calandar which may be clipped and used during the year. If reproduced here in miniature it would not be useful. Consider, instead these time facts: the longest time measure is the Hindu "kalpa", 4,320,000,000 years. A cosmic year is the rotation of the Milky Way Galaxy: 200,000,000 years. On the other hand, a nanosecond is about the smallest measure of time: one billionth of a second, in which time light travels 11.7 inches. Measuring it another way, it's the interval between when the light turns green and the driver in the car behind you blows his horn.

New Year's Resolutions

Possibly the first resolution a lather should make for 1970 should be to work safely. Our jurisdiction is not normally an especially dangerous one. But it can be made dangerous by unsafe workers. Perhaps the worst kind is the "job clown" who is forever playing practical jokes on the job. Don't do it, and don't allow others to indulge in "horseplay." If he wants to be an entertainer, let him join the Guild of Variety Artists.

A second way to suffer injury on the job is to attempt shortcuts and unsafe work practices to save a little time. The work rules endorsed by unions and contractors alike have stood the test of time. You may save a minute here or there by taking chances, but sooner or later the law of averages will catch up with you. Work safely! You owe it to yourself, your employer and to your dependents.

Your union works hard to obtain the best possible wages and working conditions for you and all the members. But if the fair employer cannot compete with non-union shops, there soon will be no union employers, no union wages. It is in your own best interest, once a contract has been signed, to give your fair employer a fair day's work for a fair day's wages. Maintain your dignity as a man . . . as a union man . . . by refraining from loafing on the job.

There are other resolutions needed if organized labor is to continue to be strong enough to speak with authority for and to defend the best interests of you and your family. You should resolve to register to vote . . . and vote . . . for the friends of organized labor. Labor cannot afford not to be in politics, and you are the important part of it all: you are the individual voter who drops his vote into the ballot box. Vote in every election in which you have the right to vote.

Resolve to become active in your community's affairs. Join your neighborhood association and participate. Even small organizations such as parent-teacher associations are important. What happens to the labor movement if school children are taught anti-union propaganda which is never challenged? It's up to you!

Resolve to remember this fact: as a working man your union is important to you. Without it, you would be working under much poorer conditions for a lot less money. But your union is not a "fairy godmother" who simply drops out of the sky to help you. You are also important to your union. Work for it, attend meetings, hold office if conditions should demand. If you "leave it to George" and a significant number of others also "leave it to George," pretty soon you will find yourself with a weak, ineffectual union . . . or no union at all. Without a strong union, you'll never earn union wages. You must invest part of yourself to reap proper dividends.

If you make and keep these resolutions, there is no doubt that you'll be healthier, happier and wealthier in 1970 and all the years to come!

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General Secretary-Treasurer.

Labor Through The Sixties

The nation was called "affluent" as the decade opened, but AFL-CIO economists noted that "normal" unemployment kept rising progressively. The rate soon reached six per cent of the work force.

The American Medical Association and its congressional cohorts kept labor-initiated medical legislation bottled up.

John F. Kennedy, elected president with organized labor's backing, increased surplus foods distribution to the needy, reduced FHA interest rates and speeded up housing and highway projects.

The conservative-minded House Rules Committee was expanded by a close 217-212 vote to prevent it from bottling up needed liberal legislation.

By 1962 the AFL-CIO efforts had paid off with an increase in the minimum wage and increased its coverage. A manpower training program had been launched. The poll tax was abolished in the five states where it remained on the books.

In January of '62 a presidential order made possible exclusive bargaining recognition of federal employee unions. Union membership soon doubled and tripled in the federal sector. This activity was accompanied by huge organizing gains by teachers and others in the public employment sector.

Pres. Kennedy attended the AFL-CIO convention in New York in November, 1963, where he solicited labor's help in breaking a stalled legislative program loose from Congress. Seven days later, in Dallas, he was slain.

In the three weeks left of the 83th Congress action was completed on a $1.2 billion college aid program, expanded manpower training, aid to vocational education and an attack on air pollution.

A tax cut amounting to an average $3 a week increase in take-home pay for workers broke the grip of the recession, and fringe benefits were added to the Davis-Bacon Act standards of prevailing wages on federal construction. A food stamp program was permanently established. The 1964 Civil Rights Act was passed. A 75-day filibuster in the Senate was defeated when a two-thirds majority was mustered to break the cloture rule; the first time in history on a civil rights bill.

A Supreme Court decision that members of state legislatures must be elected from districts "substantially even in population" broke the rural strangleholds on state legislatures. Political power passed rapidly to the cities and burgeoning suburbs.

Medicare was passed in 1964 by the 39th Congress and the 30-year campaign for broad federal aid to education was won. The Fair Labor Standards Act was vastly improved, including first coverage for farm workers. New housing legislation was passed, breakthrough made in consumer protection, but a Senate filibuster prevented repeal of the open-shop section of the Taft-Hartley Act, section 14(b).

Between 1959 and 1968, the average real family income increased approximately 30 percent but the increase for non-supervisory employees was only 15 percent. Despite the inroads of inflation, the average worker was better off at the end of the decade than at the beginning. The median family income had increased from $5,087 to $8,632 in that period.

The table grape boycott of California producers was begun and eleven AFL-CIO unions employed at General Electric formed a joint committee which won, in 1966, a "substantially better" settlement than the one first offered by the Boulwarism-minded electric firm. As the decade ended, GE and the unions were locked in another strike which saw a national boycott of GE products.

One of the big strikes of the decade was that of 60,000 copper workers who won increased benefits in an eight-month strike in 1967 and '68.

Campus unrest revolving on the Viet Nam war and burning and looting in the black urban slums brought violence to the nation. There was an increase in the conservative nature of Congress after the 1966 elections, but Pres. Johnson asked for and received a fair housing statute which had been killed by the more liberal 90th Congress.

Labor's efforts pared Nixon's margin of victory down to a hair's breadth in the election of 1968. During most of 1969, organized labor battled almost single-handed for tax reform: everybody else fighting on the subject was struggling to keep a special loophole open.

As workers face 1970 they should have learned this much from the turbulent 1960s: every worker needs the strength and effectiveness he can obtain from his membership in organized labor. Only by effectively joining with other workers through the medium of organized labor can a working man, lacking the leverage of wealth, make himself felt in causes to benefit himself and his family economically or politically, or protect and improve the environment in which he lives.

AFL-CIO Brings Vitality To "Operation Outreach"

The Dallas Building and Construction Trades Council, AFL-CIO, has a new contract to prepare 60 minority youths for apprenticeship-entrance tests in the construction trades, the U.S. Department of Labor has announced.

In its first Apprenticeship Outreach effort, the Council prepared and placed 178 youths, including four lathers, more than quadrupling its original goal of 40.

The labor union council's new one-year contract, supported with a federal investment of $69,500, calls for up to 10 weeks of preparation, using the "tutor and cram" technique, for youths to pass specific examinations.

Among the 178 apprentices placed in the previous program, in addition to the lathers, were 14 bricklayers, 26 carpenters, 3 cement masons, 4 electricians, 9 elevator constructors, 6 glaziers, 17 iron workers, 3 operating engineers, 7 painters, 9 plumbers-pipefitters, 5 plasterers, 45 roofers, 4 sheet metal workers, 19 tile setters, and 3 miscellaneous trades.

The Apprenticeship Outreach program was first developed by the Workers' Defense League in New York City. It is designed to "reach out" to minority youngsters, motivate their interest in becoming skilled craftsmen, and help them pass apprenticeship tests, principally in 18 building and construction trades.

AFL-CIO building and construction trades councils in New Mexico, Houston, Texas, and Knoxville, Tennessee will prepare another 140 minority youths for apprenticeships in the building trades.

The councils will provide up to ten weeks of training to prepare youths to pass specific examinations.

The New Mexico Building and Trades Council, based in Albuquerque, has already placed 65 apprentices in the building trades under a previous Outreach program. Its new contract is funded for $47,725 and will operate in 32 counties.

The Houston Gulf Coast Building and Construction Trades Council nearly doubled its program goal of 45 under its first contract by placing 84 minority youths as apprentices. The new program will operate in 20 counties and will be funded for $49,745.

The Knoxville, Tennessee, Building and Construction Trades Council more than doubled the goal of its previous contract by placing 78 minority youths. Under its new contract, the Council will prepare another 35 minority group members with the help of $50,985 in federal funds.

Profits Cause Inflation Meany Tells Nixon

AFL-CIO President George Meany has made public the following text of a letter to President Nixon:

We, of the AFL-CIO, share your concern about the increasing price level.

Rising living costs are washing out all or most of the buying power of workers' collective bargaining gains of the past several years. Despite the advances negotiated in 1969—and there have been some large ones—Secretary of Labor George Shultz reported to the AFL-CIO Convention on October 2, that the median wage increase, after accounting for the rise of consumer prices, has been only a little under two percent in the first year of the agreements.

Some workers, who are locked into long-term agreements negotiated two or three years ago, have experienced a decline in the buying power of their earnings.

In addition, the buying power of the average non-supervisory worker's weekly take-home pay after federal tax deductions, in 1969, has been hardly any greater than last year or in 1965, four years ago. For the vast majority of workers—and for low-wage workers, in particular—these developments represent a burden on them and their families.

Under these conditions, demands for wage increases are obviously based, in large part, on prior increases in the cost-of-living. In collective bargaining negotiations, workers and their trade union leaders seek to offset the previous rise in living costs and to gain some advance in the standard of living. If workers fail to achieve such objectives, their real earnings decline and a continuing rise in the cost-of-living puts their real earnings farther behind. Therefore, a major factor in trade union wage demands is the prior rise in living costs.

Our analysis of the rising price level leads us to the conclusion that its major causes are to be found in business pricing policies and profits. It seems to us that changes in pricing and profit policies are needed to slow down the rise of living costs.

Secretary Shultz Calls for Enactment Of Administration's Unemployment Act

Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz has cited the need for passage of the administration's bill to "improve and strengthen" the nation's unemployment insurance program.

Calling the federal-state program a "major factor in stabilizing our economy and an important aspect of manpower policy" in testimony before the House Ways and Means Committee, he said:

"It is the primary source of financial support during unemployment for wage earners who normally are employed." Eighty per cent of the labor force works for someone else, he noted.

But while the unemployment insurance program's value has been well demonstrated over the past 30 years, the system has weaknesses "which we should move to correct now," he said.

In his testimony, Mr. Shultz concentrated on showing how the administration's bill would broaden coverage, extend benefits, close loopholes in financing and provide for judicial review of findings by the Secretary of Labor.

The administration's proposal would reduce by a third the 16.6 million wage and salary workers now excluded from coverage. It would extend coverage to employers with payrolls of $300 a quarter and extend benefits to agriculture by covering farms which employ at least four workers in 20 weeks a year.

The bill provides for extended benefits to be "triggered in" by a national insured unemployment rate of 4.5 per cent for three consecutive months. The program would operate in all states during a period of at least 30 weeks and until it was "triggered off" by a month in which the insured jobless rate was below 4.5 per cent and the three-month total of persons exhausting regular unemployment insurance was below one per cent of covered employment.

The bill would also:

- Increase the taxable wage base in the Federal Unemployment Tax Act from $3,000 to $4,800 for tax years 1972 and 1973, and then to $6,000 in 1974. After that, the Secretary of Labor is directed to recommend changes he deems appropriate.

- Set an eligibility requirement of a minimum of 15 weeks' employment, prohibiting a flat dollar amount as the only yardstick of eligibility.

- Discontinue the practice in two states of paying unemployment insurance benefits to workers directly engaged in a strike.

In supporting the bill, Secretary Shultz recalled President Nixon's comment that, "The best time to strengthen our unemployment insurance system is during a period of relatively full employment."

Wages Are 16% of Cost of New Home, Survey Reveals

Construction labor costs on a $21,200 three-bedroom house in this area run about $3,444—or 16 percent of the total, a study by the Milwaukee Building & Construction Trades Council has revealed.

The study was conducted in cooperation with a Milwaukee building contractor in an effort to establish the facts on construction costs and refute charges that labor costs are responsible for the high price of housing, the council said.

President John Zancanaro of the trades council said "the rising cost of materials, the soaring cost of land and particularly exorbitant interest rates have become the principal factors in the inflated prices of real estate today."

The findings of the study shattered the widespread myth that labor is the major factor in the cost of home construction. Zancanaro observed. He said there appears to be a general misconception that labor costs account for more than 50 percent of the price of a new home.

The $21,200 cost of the test home included the $5,000 price tag of a typical lot for such a house in the Milwaukee area.

Zancanaro said a precise account of the number of manhours needed to complete the home by skilled union craftsmen totaled 506½. This included the installation of outside sewers, the driveway and the landscaping.

Here is a breakdown of the construction labor costs compiled in the study:

Type of Work	Man-hours	Wages & Fringe Benefits
Excavating	4 hours	$ 25.00
Footing and base flooring	17	101.69
Basement	36	239.52
Carpentry	217	1,422.40
Gutters and heating	20	133.20
Roofing	7	44.21
Electrical	32	213.12
Plumbing	42	301.14
Outside sewer	5½	32.72
Painting	72	454.07
Tile	6	37.80
Driveway and landscaping	48	277.20
(Social Security)	—	257.77
Total	506½	$3,444.37

Struck Beef Packers Adopt Siege Tactics

"Scab city" is being built in Dakota City, Nebraska, behind a six-foot fence, topped with barbed wire.

In this enclosure, the Iowa Beef Packers management is building 50 cement-block houses for the strike-breakers it has brought in from the Mexican-border areas of California and Texas.

It's management's answer to its regular workers who joined the Meat Cutters and went on strike more than three months ago to achieve wage parity with other packinghouse workers. The average pay at Iowa Beef including skilled jobs, is 89 cents an hour less than average common labor rate in the rest of the industry, the union reports.

Union pickets refer to the enclosure—where a non-union firm is putting up the houses—as a "concentration camp."

And the plant, itself, is like a besieged castle. A moat-like trench, four-feet deep, surrounds the struck plant. Armed guards and police dogs patrol the perimeter.

A union member, meanwhile, lies in a Sioux City hospital—shot by a strikebreaker.

the plant's main gate on Nov. 21.

According to union witnesses, his assailment drove from the plant in a car, swerved the vehicle in an attempt to hit several pickets, then got out of the car and fired four shots from a 32-caliber automatic. Two of the shots struck Gonzales in the abdomen. Another picket narrowly escaped injury when a shot went through his sleeve.

Dakota County authorities have refused to file charges, indicating they consider the shooting excused under a recently-enacted Nebraska "self-defense" law.

The union reports that the sheriff was "not interested" in talking to witnesses to the shooting.

Dave Hart, district vice president of the Meat Cutters, said the "scab town" construction was begun after strikebreakers housed in the struck plant began quitting because of poor conditions.

Some of them told the union that they were charged a $45 "fare" for being flown to Sioux City on a company plane, with the money deducted from their first paychecks.

Pickets, talking bitterly of the company town being built, wonder when the firm will take the next step and put in a company store. Then the captive workers can "owe their soul to the company store," as the coal-mining song goes.

The new company town won't be much of an improvement over the desolate company towns of an earlier generation. It lacks drainage, union pickets report. It is alongside of a railroad right-of-way and is adjacent to a rendering plant. The union also charges that the houses violate zoning regulations for the area.

Before importing strikebreakers from California and Mexico, the company tried unsuccessfully to recruit Indians.

Hart told newsmen that the company's use of outside strikebreakers—drawn from an underprivileged minority group—is part of its "19th Century labor relations." Iowa Beef's management, he said, "is simply preying on people who are exploited all the time anyway."

In his office in the struck plant, company chairman Currier J. Holman "had a tear gas gun visible in his breast pocket as he talked warily with a visitor," Newsweek magazine reported recently. Armed guards checked every car at the gate and the company's industrial relations manager defended the all-out war on the union by declaring that the firm would have "no future if we come under the full domination of this international union."

Hart said the strikers are angry and indignant at the shooting of Gonzales and "wanted to meet violence with violence." But the union has urged that "now is a time for cool heads." It has demanded, however, that county law enforcement officials arrest the assailment or be removed from office.

Besides the main plant here, three other plants of Iowa Beef have been struck and nearly 1,400 employees are on picket lines.

The AFL-CIO convention in October backed the Meat Cutters boycott against Iowa Beef Packers products. Federation Pres. George Meany wired the company of the convention's actions and urged management to come to the bargaining table and negotiate a contract.

Garnishment Limit Law To Take Effect July 1

Employees will be protected from having their pay reduced through excessive wage attachments beginning next July 1.

Federal Wage-Hour Administrator Robert D. Moran told a convention of National Ambulance and Medical Services Association members in San Juan that employees would be protected by the Wage Garnishment title of the Consumer Credit Protection Act of 1968.

Mr. Moran said that the garnishment law, to be enforced by the U.S. Department of Labor's Wage-Hour Division, will limit the amount of an employee's earnings subject to garnishment. The law will also prohibit an employer from discharging any employee whose earnings have been subject to only one garnishment.

"Too often the persons most severely affected are those with low incomes—the persons most vulnerable to loan sharks," Moran asserted. "They make credit appear easy but then make it tough for them through garnishment proceedings when they can't pay their bills."

He said easy credit poses a real problem today and pointed to the $110 billion in outstanding consumer credit today compared to $5.7 billion 25 years ago.

Moran noted that because of easy credit, there are cities where an average of 50,000 people are haled into court each year to face garnishment of their wages.

He promised vigorous enforcement of the law. Wage-Hour officials have been conferring with State bar association and State and local representatives concerning enforcement methods.

"Vigorous enforcement will make this new law a safeguard for the nation's workers and will considerably reduce the thriving loan shark operations in our country," he declared.

Strike Activity Is Down From Level of Year Ago

Strike idleness in October accounted for 0.17 percent of estimated working time, higher than in September but considerably lower than the level for October of 1968 and 1967, the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics has announced.

The total number of man-days lost in October 1969 amounted to 2.9 million, compared to 1.8 million in September, 4 million in October 1968, and 7 million in October 1967.

The number of stoppages beginning in October—510—was the highest for the month since 1950, and the number of workers involved—317,000—was the highest for the month since 1958.

Seven stoppages in October involved at least 5,000 workers each, and accounted for two-fifths of the idleness and three-fifths of the workers. All were in manufacturing: General Electric Company (Nationwide), American Motors Corporation, Chrysler Corporation, General Motors Corporation, National Biscuit Company, Textile Dyeing and Finishing Companies (New Jersey and New York), and Washington Publishers Association. Only the General Electric Company and a coalition of unions had not settled by the end of the month.

AFL-CIO Issues Guidelines for Those Who Will Picket Outlets Selling GE Products

The AFL-CIO has made public its set of instructions to all affiliates for the proper handling of its consumer boycott against General Electric products.

The instructions were sent by President George Meany to all affiliated unions, constitutional departments, state and city central bodies and directly affiliated unions.

The text of Meany's letter follows:

Today the AFL-CIO called for a consumer's boycott of all General Electric products (including Hot-point Products). As you know, the GE strike is of vital importance to the entire labor movement. The success or failure of that strike will be heavily influenced by the energy and dedication with which the trade union movement pursues the boycott campaign.

Experience has proved that the best method for getting a boycott message across to the general public is by picketing and handbilling at retail stores selling the products in question.

The basic problem is, of course, organizational. A committee to direct the entire effort must be selected, pickets and handbillers must be secured, the materials they need must be prepared, and primary targets, those retailers selling a large volume of GE products, must be identified. The task in each area will be somewhat different. In light of your experience in the field there is little point in reviewing, what I am sure, will be obvious generalities. I know that no matter what unforeseen difficulties may arise, you will master them.

While the practical problems will vary, the basic legal problems will not. I, therefore, wish to note in summary form your basic rights in carrying out a consumer boycott and the legal restrictions that apply:

- You have a right to advise consumers, by picketing and handbilling, that there is a labor dispute with General Electric, that a retail store is selling GE products, and that you request the consumers not to purchase GE products.

- You have a right to engage in such picketing and handbilling on the pedestrian walkways at the customer entrances of a retail store selling GE products during the hours that store is open for business.

- You have the right to advise the manager of a retail store of your intention to engage in such picketing and handbilling.

- You have the right to request the manager of a retail store to exercise his managerial discretion to make the business judgment to stop purchasing and selling GE products.

- You are forbidden to address a retail store's employees and delivery men except to advise them that you are not requesting them to refrain from performing services.

- You are forbidden from requesting a total boycott of a retail store selling GE products. The appeal must be limited to a boycott of GE products.

- You are forbidden from any form of physical interference of consumers, employees, or delivery men, or otherwise engaging in any obstruction or disturbance.

- You are forbidden to threaten a retail store manager with any form of economic reprisal for continuing to handle GE products.

- You are advised to bring the boycott to a retail store's attention, before picketing or leafleting, at a meeting with the store manager.

- You are advised to retain, in advance, competent legal counsel to protect you against crippling restraining orders and potential damage suits. Counsel should be versed in local law and federal labor law and be thoroughly familiar with the San Diego Building Trades v. Garmon, 359 U.S. 236; Local 438 Construction Union v. Curry, 371 U.S. 542; NLRB v. Fruit & Vegetable Packers, 377 U.S. 58; NLRB v. Servette, 377 U.S. 46; and Amalgamated Food Employees v. Logan Valley Plaza, 391 U.S. 308.

A united labor campaign can bring the GE strikers the victory they deserve.

When these enthusiastic union pickets advised Milwaukee shoppers of the GE boycott at the Wisconsin Electric Co., the firm sold only two small GE appliances during a day of special sales promotion. Similar picketing all over the nation can bring GE strikers victory and strengthen organized labor.

McGovern, Local 46, Named to Vacancy on Apprenticeship Body

Peter J. McGovern, 45, has been appointed by General President Sal Maso as a Trustee of the National Lathing Industry's Joint Apprenticeship Program.

Bro. McGovern, a Business Agent of Local Union 46, New York, N.Y., will fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Bro. John M. Sheehan.

Our most sincere congratulations go to Brother McGovern, a dedicated trade unionist whom we are certain will be a credit to the apprenticeship committee.

Area COPE Conclaves Slated for 50 States

A series of area COPE conferences from January 30 to May 2 will be held to coordinate the efforts of organized labor in the off-year elections to be held during 1970.

"We hope you will encourage all your locals to send delegations to the conference in their areas. There is no limit on the number of delegates a local union or organization may send," declared Alexander E. Barkan, National Director of the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Action. "It is our hope that, in the critical election year of 1970, there will be a large attendance at each conference," Barkan told General Secretary-Treasurer J. Earl Ferguson.

On November 3, the entire membership of the House of Representatives will be subject to election, as will 35 Senate seats and 35 state governorships. Also of great interest to organized labor will be the many seats in state legislatures which will be decided next November.

The dates, places and states covered in the area conferences are as follows:

January 30, Roosevelt Hotel, New Orleans, for Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Oklahoma.

February 7, Sheraton-Jacksonville, Jacksonville, for Florida, Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee, North and South Carolina.

March 2, San Antonio, for Texas. Meetings in El Tropicana Motel and Gunter Hotel. (Reservations requests should go to El Tropicana.)

Profits Up 11% in Year, GE Price Increases Are Based Simply on Greed, Meany Declares

General Electric's latest announcement of price increases shows "that GE's pricing policy, like its labor relations policy, is based on simple greed," AFL-CIO Pres. George Meany has charged.

The company announced that it is raising prices on electric housewares by an average 3.3 percent. The announcement followed an earlier one of increases on appliances and other products ranging up to 3.5 percent.

GE is one of the wealthiest corporations in the world, with profits in the third quarter of 1969 up 11 percent over the same period a year ago, Meany said. "Yet GE isn't satisfied."

"It has now raised prices on all articles a housewife buys," he pointed out, "and seeks to put most of the blame on its workers, pretending this increase was necessary because of higher labor costs."

Meany, chairman of the AFL-CIO Coordinated Bargaining Committee with General Electric, charged that the firm forced nearly 150,000 of its workers to strike "to gain decent wages and working conditions."

Yet, he added, their need for more money is due to inflation "caused by the pricing and profit policies of companies like GE."

Noting that the firm has pictured itself as "holding the line against inflation" in newspaper advertisements, Meany concluded, "This latest price increase destroys GE's pretense of being an inflation fighter."

Union's Expenses in Training Proper Item for Reimbursement, States Court

A trust fund established to provide apprenticeship training can properly reimburse a union whose facilities are used in the program for expenses incurred by that union, according to a federal district court in California (Matter of Arbitration of Trustees of Operating Engineers).

The fund in question was established by a group of employers engaged in the building and construction industry. It was intended to provide both apprenticeship training for new employees and retraining of old employees. For convenience, union employees or paid members and union facilities—such as lecture halls and classrooms—were utilized to provide training.

Arizona Solon Would Deny Organized Labor Fundamental Political Rights

Sen. Paul Fannin (R.-Ariz.) had a trick, not a treat, for the labor movement on October 31, the day of Halloween night. He is not "The Great Pumpkin."

He brought before the Senate Finance Committee a proposed amendment to the tax bill that would deny tax exemption to labor organizations for engaging in political activities.

A registration and get-out-the-vote drive, funded in any way by dues or assessments, would be out.

Candidate support would be out.

Lobbying, presumably, would be out.

Other political activities: Out.

All of this at all levels—national, state and community.

The amendment was staved off in committee by a tie vote, 8-8, but Fannin is expected to bring it to the Floor anyway. Voting for the proposal in committee were Republicans Fannin, John Williams (Dela.), Wallace Bennett (Utah), Jack Miller (Iowa), Carl Curtis (Nebr.), Len Jordan (Idaho), Clifford Hansen (Wyo.), and Democrat Harry Byrd (Va.), who, according to recent reports, is thinking of doing a Strom Thurmond and switching parties.

The eight votes that knocked the amendment down in committee were all cast by Democrats: Russell Long (La.), Clinton Anderson (N.M.), Albert Gore (Tenn.), Eugene McCarthy (Minn.), J. W. Fulbright (Ark.), Fred Harris (Okla.), Abraham Ribicoff (Conn.), Vance Hartke (Ind.).

Fannin, in his continuing harassment against unions—he has in the past introduced a series of other restrictive measures—apparently is doing the work of the National Right to Work Committee and like-minded groups.

NRTWC has gone on about labor in politics, among other things, ad nauseum. Miffed by the absence of Sen. Herman Talmadge (D.-Ga.) at the Finance Committee meeting that produced the 8-8 tie, NRTWC sent out a press release designed to embarrass, or coerce, Talmadge into voting for the measure. The right-to-workers claimed the Finance Committee was holding its records open for two days, enough time for Talmadge to get his vote in and break the tie. He did not vote. The tie stood.

The Fannin bill goes beyond a measure introduced last year by Sen. John Williams (Dela.), which would have prohibited unions from making any contributions to candidates. The Williams amendment was defeated 46-19.

While prospects of the Fannin proposal probably are dim this year, a gain for conservatives in Congress as a result of 1970 elections would convert it into a good bet for passage.

And it is not alone. It is just one of the goodies the right-to-workers, the Chamber of Commerce and National Association of Manufacturers—and their allies in Congress, like Senator Fannin—have packaged and ready for what they hope will be the conservative Congress elected in 1970.

Included in the package:

- Prohibition against coordinated multi-union bargaining;
- Labor unions being brought under the antitrust laws;
- National open shop law;
- Replacement of the National Labor Relations Board with a so-called "labor court."

None of these is new. None stands much chance this year or next.

But each, in a sense, is a time bomb, programmed to detonate at a time conservatives take over Congress.

Labor Secretary Predicts Stormy 1970 Negotiations

Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz foresees "possible stormy weather" ahead in labor-management relations.

"Bring your compass as well as your weather vane," he said recently at a Briefing for Business at the Sheraton-Park Hotel, Wash., D.C.

"The economy is rearranging itself under the firm anti-inflationary policies of the Nixon Administration," Secretary Shultz said.

"Some conflict is possible when this kind of thing happens. The job of government is to minimize such conflict without trying to take over the responsibilities of labor and management to settle these conflicts amicably. Government's larger role, especially in this setting, is to keep in mind the general welfare.

"Labor's mood, partly the result of increases in consumer prices, is already evident and understandable.

"A few wage settlements—notably some in construction—have been excessive, but the median settlement has kept barely ahead of the consumer price level. We cannot blame either wages or profits for generating this spiral. The fault lies with past government policies. Business should be aware, if it is not already, that under the Administration's policies, prices will meet stiffer resistance in the market place and profits will be squeezed. Those who make contracts with the notion that upward pressures in the economy will be spiraling at the same rate a year or two years from now will be taking a serious risk. As a matter of elementary caution, parties to a contract should not set terms they may not be able to live with.

"Obviously, conditions today generate tensions at the bargaining table and to the extent that mediation and economic information can relieve these tensions and avoid stoppages, the Nixon Administration is at the service of labor and management. But, it is our hope and intention to avoid turning the White House into a public forum where private demands and grievances are publicly aired and arms are twisted into so-called agreements which one or both sides find disagreeable or undesirable."

"Give Medicare A New and Different Look" Says Donald MacDonald in Sault Ste. Marie

The opening shot of a campaign to give medicare in Canada a new and different outlook—this is how Donald MacDonald of Ottawa, president of the Canadian Labour Congress described the CLC-sponsored conference on medicare held recently in Sault Ste. Marie.

In his keynote address to some 200 labor delegates from across

MacDONALD

Canada, Mr. MacDonald said: "I would like to conceive of this conference as the foundation for a whole network of group practice centres throughout Canada, bringing medical care of high quality for many hundreds of thousands of Canadian families and setting an example for others to follow."

The three-day conference was designed to promote the establishment of more community health centres such as the ones already in existence in Sault Ste. Marie, St. Catharines, Regina, Saskatoon and Prince Albert, with the help of the labor movement.

Stressing the role played by organized labor for close to 100 years in promoting social health legislation, Mr. MacDonald added: "The agitation for medicare by organized labor was not so much to enhance the well-being of its own members, since they were already protected by their collective agreements, but to extend to the Canadian people as a whole at least that degree of protection which organized labor had achieved for itself."

The labor leader warned his audience not to accept what is now identified as medicare, as being the "real article".

"What is nowadays referred to as medicare is obviously nothing more than a public system of prepayment for doctors' bills", he said.

Among the deficiencies of today's version of medicare he listed unfair disparities between provinces and between urban and rural areas; the lack of effective co-ordination between health services, occupations and institutions and the great emphasis on diagnosis and cure rather than prevention, resulting in high hospital costs and "putting to shame any concern expressed about inflation elsewhere".

As for the patient, "he is like a customer shopping for a commodity whose quality he is not able to judge, in a market with which he is, at best, inadequately informed", he explained.

He pointed out that the Canadian Labour Congress has always pressed for a universal and comprehensive system of health care services, including drugs and prosthetic appliances, to be provided to everyone without any financial obstacle.

"What the congress said is that everyone should have all the health care services he needs, in whatever form he needs them, regardless of where he lives. They should include not only the services of the doctor, the dentist and the nurse, but also the medical social worker and the visiting homemaker."

This was the policy recommended by the CLC to the Hall Commission on Health Services, whose report indicated a very similar position, he said.

In addition, he said, the congress emphasized the need for the group practice of medicine which would be "good for the doctor and patient alike" and would ensure a high quality of services and an economical form of administration.

This is why the congress has, for a long time, been a member of the Group Health Association of America and why it has always encouraged and promoted the establishment of community health centres such as the one in Sault Ste. Marie, he explained.

"These are, I hope, the beginnings of a much larger movement to unite far-seeing practitioners and consumers in the kind of co-operative effort which will assure consumers they will get medical care of high quality at a reasonable cost and provide practitioners with an environment within which they can practice good medicine and enjoy the kind of good conditions of employment which are possible in a group practice setting", he concluded.

Canadian Labour Leader Raps Wage Guidelines

Before labor will agree to any wage freeze it must be shown that the Federal Prices and Incomes Commission can halt rising prices, declared Donald MacDonald, president of the Canadian Labor Congress.

He said, in a recent broadcast, that any voluntary restraints such as those proposed by Dr. John Young, chairman of the Federal Commission, should cover all forms of income and involve equality of sacrifice by businessmen and professions, as well as labor.

Direct Presidential Vote Wins Approval in House

Prospects for direct election of the President and Vice President of the United States are looking brighter.

Following the House approval of the constitutional amendment abolishing the electoral college, action has moved to the Senate, where its supporters are far more optimistic than previously.

Even if the Senate casts the necessary two-thirds vote, however, it must still be ratified by a minimum of 38 state legislatures.

Organized labor has been a strong supporter of direct elections and union legislative representatives were apprehensive as the final vote in the House neared. A two-thirds vote was required. It passed with 66 votes to spare, 339 to 70.

The House debated the issue for seven days and, in the process, rejected 17 amendments. These were mostly offered by rural law-makers, conservative, who felt that the impact of the Presidential vote in smaller states would be weakened.

Credit for the overwhelming vote was given to Rep. Emanuel Celler (D.-N.Y.), chairman of the House Judiciary Committee. In a bi-partisan move, ranking Republican Rep. William McCulloch of Ohio was an effective advocate, too. At the conclusion of the vote, the House gave Celler a rare standing ovation.

Celler told the House that passage would be the "crowning achievement" in his long House service.

If the proposed amendment to the Constitution is finally written it would fundamentally change the nation's political structure for the first time in 200 years.

First, it abolishes the electoral college and provides for popular election of the nation's two top officers. In addition, however, it would require a run-off between the two top candidates if no slate receives 40 percent of the vote.

In the House, moves to raise this percentage to 50 and to 45 were defeated. A proposal to drop it to 35 percent was defeated, too.

Opponents of direct elections also lost in their moves to substitute a "direct" plan or a "proportion" plan, both of which would keep the form of the electoral college.

Sales of One-Family Houses Drop Huge 20% in 1 Year!

What high interest rates and tight money have done to the housing industry has been dramatically revealed in statistics on the number of new one-family houses sold during October released by the Home Owners' Loan Corp.

At a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 395,000 units, sales were down 6 percent below the September rate and a whopping 20 percent below that of October, 1968.

Houses were harder to sell, too. The total number of new homes available for sale at the end of October was 228,000, 4 percent more than during September and 8 percent more than the year-ago figure.

While sales were going down, prices were going up. The median price for all new one-family homes sold in October was $24,500. The median intended sales price, however, was up to $26,500, substantially higher than a year ago.

Questions and Answers on

SOCIAL SECURITY

Social Security, with its related features of Medicare and Medicaid, is of considerable interest to a large segment of the population.

Almost everyone who now works for a living, (a) has some member of the family on or approaching social security, (b) is approaching retirement age himself or, (c) has one dependent or more who might possibly qualify for social security payments on his account. Young people just starting out in the world of wages will want to know what is waiting for them in years to come. Some of them, all too unfortunately, may qualify for social security payments long before they might ordinarily expect because of accident or illness.

Consequently, The Lather will carry a feature on social security in question and answer form beginning with this issue. This timely information is supplied by the Social Security Administration. It constitutes true and authoritative information about social security matters. The Administration selects those questions which are most-asked at social security offices throughout the nation.

However, any member of the LIU who has a special interest in any particular question regarding social security may obtain an answer by contacting his local social security office. If, for any reason, the member would prefer, he may write International Headquarters and his question will be answered in the next available issue of the magazine. Please mark "The Lather—Social Security" on the envelope for prompt routing.

What is important is that the individual not accept as truth any rumors or possibly false information regarding any matter as important as social security. If there are any questions in your mind, obtain authoritative answers from your local social security office or from the Administration in Washington, D. C., via your magazine.

Q. I was hospitalized recently with a severe heart condition. After leaving the hospital, I continued to be treated by the doctor who attended me while I was in the hospital. My bill is quite large now, and the doctor suggested that I sign a form whereby he can collect from Medicare. Is this possible?

A. Yes, under the supplemental medical insurance part of Medicare there are two methods of payment. The payment can be made directly to your doctor or supplier, or we can pay you directly upon your submitting an itemized bill from your doctor or supplier.

Q. At a luncheon the other day for clergymen, a question about social security coverage came up. Many of the ministers said they were not covered because they never filed the waiver certificate to be covered. I remember reading about a year ago that there has been a change in the Social Security Act involving coverage of ministers. Would you please explain what this recent change was?

A. If you are a clergyman who did not elect social security coverage under the old law, your income from the ministry will now be covered unless you apply for exemption and state that you are opposed to coverage by reason of religious principles or conscience. Clergymen who elected coverage under the earlier law will not be affected by the new provisions. They will continue to be covered.

Q. I am 69 years old and have been drawing the $55.00 minimum benefits under social security for two years. Many of my friends have been telling me that social security was recently increased and I should be getting more. Has there been an increase in benefits since I started getting the $55.00?

A. There has been no increase in benefits since you started drawing $55.00 per month, but Congress has started action on an increase. Keep your fingers crossed!

Q. I will be 50 years old in another six months and have been disabled for almost two years. I understand through a friend that I had to be at least 50 in order to collect disability benefits. How far in advance of my 50th birthday can I file my claim?

A. There is no longer an age requirement. Since our applications are retroactive for 12 months, and since you must be disabled 6 full months before disability payments can begin, you have lost only six months of benefits, if you meet the work and medical requirements.

Q. I was 72 on March 3, this year, and all my friends who are around my age have been telling me that I should be getting some type of special social security benefits. My husband and I owned a little grocery store, but I sold it when he died in 1946. I have never worked since my husband died and my savings are about gone. Can I get these special payments?

A. The 1965 amendments to social security made a provision for special payments to people 72 or over. However, the law reads that you had to be 72 before January 1968 in order to be eligible unless you have credit for some work under social security. The best way to find out if you qualify is to call the local social security office.

Q. Some people at work have been telling me that when I am 65 I do not have to sign up for social security or Medicare if I continue to work. Is this true?

A. In order to have the benefits of Medicare available to you, you must file an application at your nearest social security office. This is especially true since there is a definite time period in which you must file if you want the Supplemental Medical Insurance portion of Medicare. This time period is three months before you are 65, the month you are 65 and three months after you are 65. You may not need this coverage as long as you are employed, but if you don't sign up as soon as possible, you may not have it when you need it.

Report of the General Secretary-Treasurer on Finances

Regarding Your Income Tax

All over the nation, millions of working men and women are now confronted with the problem of making out their income tax reports. Perhaps a few words on the subject may be of value to some of our members.

The first and possibly most important point to be made is that the Department of Internal Revenue does not expect you to pay a penny more than you are properly supposed to pay. All too many taxpayers, when they make out their reports, always "give the government the benefit of the doubt." This is a senseless, useless waste of your money. You have the right and privilege to pay as little as you can legally be obligated for. In fact, many people figure their income tax returns in several ways, then adopt the method which provides them the most savings.

Depending on where you live and your marital status, you may elect to file a joint return or two individual returns (if husband and wife both work) and you may elect to take a standard deduction or to specify your deductions. In most instances, where taxes and interest are concerned, taxpayers will find that taking individual deductions beats taking the standard deduction. To be sure, however, take the time to figure your return both ways.

You can make an innocent mistake in your return and the IRS probably will not penalize you for it, other than to cause you to pay whatever your error resulted in you not remitting. But there is one error which the IRS takes a very dim view of: failure to report income. If you have had any 1969 income at all, from any source whatsoever, you should report it. There are exceptions, of course, such as insurance payments covering casualty losses, and it is important that you know all these exemptions. A fine paid to a union, for example, is a deductible item, just as are the union dues you paid. If you worked for several employers, you may have a return due on your social security account.

Many people feel that they must either do their income tax returns unaided or hire someone to do it for them. This is definitely not the case. There are many good "do-it-yourself" books available which carefully spell out how to make a valid tax return. Carefully reading one of these and following step-by-step directions will simplify your return and help assure that you do not make any mistakes. One such book, available by writing to Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402, is "Your Federal Income Tax." Enclose a check or money order for 60¢ for each copy you desire.

The IRS is more than just a collection agency. Each IRS office is equipped to give information, assistance and advice to taxpayers, either by telephone or in person. Of course, the IRS is not going to make out your return for you. But IRS aides will gladly give advice and assistance to taxpayers in the preparation of their returns.

One more word of advice to members: start early! If you wait until the last minute to make out your return, you will not be able to obtain help from IRS or any other source, should you need it. If you should have a refund coming to you from the withholdings during the past year, the sooner you file your return, the sooner you will receive your refund check.

If you should elect to pay someone to make out your income tax return for you, make certain that person is really qualified. Merely knowing how to do arithmetic is not enough. Rather than saving you tax money, an unqualified person can actually cost you tax money. Any person whose income was derived solely or primarily from wages should have no trouble in filling out his or her own income tax return form if the task is approached calmly and the form completed carefully in accordance with the directions.

Strangely enough, Lincoln never freed a slave! His Emancipation Proclamation "freed" the slaves in certain named Confederate states which had already left The Union (and his authority); it said nothing about the slave-holding Union states of Maryland, Delaware, Kentucky and Missouri. Slavery in the U.S. actually was legally abolished when the Thirteenth Amendment was adopted on Dec. 18, 1863, eight months following his assassination.

Legislating A Recession

President Meany of the AFL-CIO could not have been righter than when he recently roundly condemned the action of Secretary of Housing and Urban Development George Romney in ordering another increase in the cost of housing mortgages to 8.5 percent.

Such action on the part of the top officials of the Department of Housing and Urban Development is beyond my comprehension. Apparently the current administration has no concern for the men and women in the work force of the country who have struggled, scrimped and saved to put a roof over their heads.

Seemingly, the current administration has decided to make the building and construction industry its "patsy" in its efforts to hold down prices and slow the spiral of inflation. The reasoning seems to be that if the production of housing can be slowed, men will be put out of work, production of all the hardware and lumber which goes into housing will be reduced, house furnishings will be in shorter demand and the economy will then "cool down."

But it doesn't necessarily work that way. People who urgently need housing will find a way to obtain it, even though they must mortgage their futures for the next 20, 25 or 30 years. The mortgage bankers will hang high-paying mortgages around their plush offices, then pray for a depression where their 8½ percent mortgages (with no risk) will yield better financial return than common stocks (with risk) or where they can repossess people's houses and obtain valuable real estate holdings for pennies on the dollar!

Rates on mortgages were already at the highest point in 100 years when Romney ordered the additional hike by the Federal Housing Administration. Pres. Meany pointed out that the one percent increase will cost a home owner an added $5,000 on a $20,000 loan over a 30 year period. He also pointed out that homebuilding activity has already slumped 27 percent in the past 13 months.

The administration must know that the United States is facing an alarming increase in its population.

Unless a housing program is started soon, in quantity sufficient to meet the predicted needs, inflation will truly blossom forth as new families wildly bid against each other for the little attractive housing which will be available.

As is pointed out in an article elsewhere in this month's issue, it is the financing cost and land cost which has sent the price of housing upward. If Congress and the administration truly want to do something to benefit the people of the nation (rather than the special interests) they could enact legislation which would impose a stiff tax on profits derived from land speculation and legislate home mortgages down . . . not up.

More and more it is becoming increasingly clear that the present administration is not at all interested in the welfare of the people. It appears to be interested only in making it possible for the special interests to make a bundle at the expense of the people. And any administration which does that deserves to be voted out of office by the people.

Which is a reminder that it will not be too long before every LIU local union will receive a supply of COPE coupon books. When you sell these COPE coupons, you are raising money to support legislators who will be responsive to the needs of yourself and other people like you . . . not the bankers and mortgage merchants. Every local union officer is earnestly urged to ask the membership and friends of the local union to voluntarily contribute to the COPE drive. Only in this way can we assist in the election of legislators who will work for the welfare of the working people.

Labor Not Cause of Soaring Housing Cost

Skyrocketing Interest Rates and Land Prices Proven The Real Villains by Researcher

The cost of new houses is soaring in the United States because of increases in interest rates and the cost of land, not because of increased labor costs.

The lie often given by real estate and construction interests that wages of building and construction tradesmen are driving up housing costs was laid to rest by AFL-CIO Research Director Nat Goldfinger in an article on the housing problem printed in the December "American Federationist."

about 20 percent or less of residences are union built."

He says the myth is ingrained in much of the talk about achieving national housing goals through the Department of Housing & Urban Development's "Operation Breakthrough." This is based on the belief that radical technological breakthroughs are going to accelerate the trend toward use of pre-fabricated units and components, thus reducing the on-site labor cost of a house.

"If the cost of materials can be held the same, despite the shift to pre-fab, and if land, interest rate costs and profits were all stable, the 20 percent cost-saving would reduce the price of the $20,000 house to $19,280. That is a saving, but hardly a 'break-through.'"

Virtually the same is true for the renter, Goldfinger notes. He cites the findings of the Kaiser Committee on Urban Housing that "on-site labor costs represent such a small percentage of monthly rents that a general reduction of 20 percent for all workmen would mean only a reduction in rent from $100 a month to $98 a month in a typical unit."

The big bluster about pre-fabrication reducing housing costs through lower labor costs is thus detracting from the sorely-needed national commitment to solve the shortage of housing, Goldfinger says. And he points out that the crisis will mount in the next 30 years as America's population grows by at least 80 million—equal to adding the present population of England and France to the United States.

The Housing & Urban Development Act of 1968 set a 10-year goal of 26 million additional dwelling units, including at least 6 million subsidized units for low- and moderate-income families, Goldfinger notes. But, he says, this goal "can be met only if there is a national commitment backed by effective government policies to achieve it."

In "The Myth of Housing Costs," Goldfinger points out that the on-site labor cost actually has dropped from 33 percent of the total cost of the average new home in 1949 to 18 percent in 1969.

The cost of land and financing has been about the reverse of those figures, growing from 16 percent of the price of a home in 1949 to 31 percent in 1969. In 1969, the land cost was 21 percent of the cost of the average new home and financing accounted for 10 percent.

Goldfinger quotes figures compiled by the National Association of Home Builders and used in congressional testimony in October 1969.

"The on-site labor component of housing has been the victim of gross distortion, ignorance and anti-labor myths," he asserts. "The sole focus of public attention on on-site labor costs and labor saving technology is largely based on a hoax."

But many people believe the myth that labor costs are the chief problem in residential construction, Goldfinger says, "and they also believe that trade unions are the major impediment to reduced housing costs, although only

But labor is such a small part of the cost of the average new home that even drastic reductions won't help much on the overall cost, Goldfinger says.

"As an example, based on these (National Association of Home Builders) figures, the on-site labor cost of a $20,000 house is $3,600," Goldfinger notes. "Let us assume that this cost is reduced 20 percent through the increased use of pre-fab, which brings the on-site labor cost down to $2,880.

Chart shows how land cost and financing charges have mushroomed, driving up the cost of housing construction. Overhead and profit have remained virtually unchanged, while on-site cost of labor has declined from 33 percent of the total cost of an average new home in 1949 to only 18 percent of an average home in 1969.

National Bureau for Lathing & Plastering Stages Successful Presentations to Government Agencies

A program on new methods, materials, and innovations relating to lath and plaster—including a demonstration lath and plaster partition assembled in a five-hour period—recently was presented to U.S. Navy Department field design architects by the Washington, D.C.-based National Bureau for Lathing & Plastering, Inc.

The architects convened from field offices throughout the world to attend the Navy's biennial Architectural Design Conference last fall at the Bureau of Yards & Docks in Washington, and their response to the National Bureau's presentation was so enthusiastic that the Bureau now plans a series of similar presentations to other government agency architects, with the Veterans' Administration next on the list.

The speakers on the National Bureau's morning program included Jim Antill, Executive Director of the Texas Bureau for Lathing & Plastering, speaking on "Curtain Walls"; Bill Giles of Inland-Ryerson Steel Co., discussing "Lathing Innovations," and Ralph Rauenswinder, Executive Director of the Lathing & Plastering Bureau of Greater Pittsburgh, and Robert Faust, Group Products Manager of U.S. Gypsum, jointly presenting "Radiant Heating."

Walter Kowalski, Vice President of Concrete Chemical Products Corp., discussed "Epoxies"; Dan Goeke, Sales Manager for the Larsen Products Corp., lectured on "Bonding Materials"; Edward Fitzsimons, President of the Aggregate Surfacing Corp. of America, chose "Granite Finishes," and Robert Faust returned to tell the conference about "Veneer Plaster Systems."

At the same time, Gilbert Wolf and Leo Schultz of the respective Plasterers' and Lathers' Apprenticeship Funds, proceeded to erect a wall-assembly lath and plaster partition, whereby a frame of Imperial plaster base boards attached to metal studs was put up at 9, followed by the application of corner, stop and fiber-glass bead. At 10:30 a one-coat veneer finishing plaster was applied and left to dry during lunch. At 2:00, the participation was painted with latex paint and ready for the conferees to view by 2:30.

The head of the Naval Engineering Command's Architectural Section, Mr. F. Leonard Slagle, praised the presentation as a well-made one, highly informative to his staff, and very well received. In a letter of thanks to the National Bureau's Technical Representative, John J. Bucholtz, he expressed appreciation for "exposing our profession to new methods and systems."

The Veterans' Administration presentation scheduled for January was to feature a similar agenda, including the highly successful demonstration partition plus an oral supplement to the Perry Point Report by Gene Erwin of the Southeast Bureau for Lathing and Plastering.

AFL-CIO Organizing Agencies in Communities To Help Families Burdened by The GE Strike

The AFL-CIO is mobilizing voluntary and public agency resources to help ease family burdens resulting from the General Electric strike, Community Services Director Leo Perlis reported in a network radio interview.

Perlis said surplus food and food stamps are two of many aids available to the striking workers and their families. The strikers should know, he said, that they have a right to this kind of help since the "sole criterion is need."

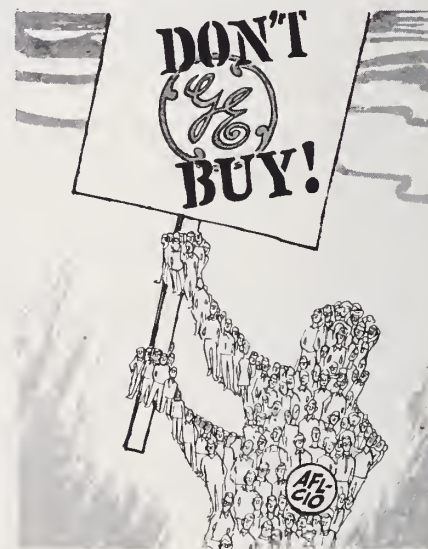

"As long as a person meets the eligibility requirements" for various programs, he is entitled to help from them, "regardless of the cause" of his need. Perlis stressed. He appeared on Labor News Conference, an AFL-CIO produced public affairs interview, broadcast Tuesdays at 7:35 p.m., EST, over the Mutual Broadcasting System.

Perlis said that national and local community services representatives are also working with merchants, landlords, banks and other financial and lending institutions to "ease the economic pressures on the strikers." He said that in most cases, local merchants and others are "quite willing" to extend credit, delay debt payments and otherwise cooperate with the strikers in their time of special need.

This research study report is the result of a joint Contracting Plasterers' and Lathers' International Association-National Bureau-VA investigation of four different lath and plaster assemblies affixed to a Veterans' Administration hospital building at Perry Point, Maryland.

The 50-page report entitled "Joint Furred Stucco Test Panel Project," published in October, 1969, showed that a furred lath and plaster stucco system would offer the best resurfacing method for long-term, low-maintenance performance.

The Perry Point Report, available from the National Bureau on request, also includes photographs of the test site, plus tables showing quantities of the materials used in the panels, labor, time, equipment, and material costs, mix proportions, theoretical costs, and extrapolations.

"They know them as neighbors . . . and citizens" in the community, he noted. He also pointed out that the merchants also know the strikers as customers and consumers who "pay their bills when they have the money," so "they don't push them—they don't press them too hard." He said that "generally, across the country, we have a pretty friendly atmosphere."

170 Congressmen Tell Federal Reserve Bankers They Have Obligation to Help Housing Efforts

On a record vote, December 17, 170 members of the House of Representatives demanded that the Federal Reserve support the housing market by buying $6 billion worth of housing mortgages at no more than six per cent interest. This was a clear vote to support lower interest rates and more housing, according to Rep. Wright Patman, chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee.

Despite the efforts of those 170 members, the effort failed when 233 Congressmen sided with the Federal Reserve and against providing new money for housing.

But the vote is significant. This is the largest vote ever in favor of requiring the Federal Reserve to use its great powers in the public interest—to allocate some of the nation's credit (your credit) to a needed purpose such as housing America's fifty-five million families.

"Greatly Encouraged"

Despite the loss of this provision, Rep. Patman said he was greatly encouraged by the fact that 170 members of the House were willing to ignore the outlandish propaganda of the Federal Reserve and vote to do something for the people. This means that a substantial number of the Members of the House of Representatives no longer accepts the Federal Reserve as a hallowed ground independent from the Government.

"Actually, there were two key votes concerning the Federal Reserve. The first vote was on a section of the bill which would have made clear the intent of Congress to have the Federal Reserve support the housing goals of the nation. This section was defeated 231 to 171, and the vote appears on Page H 12626 of the Congressional Record of Wednesday, December 17. Under the parliamentary situation existing at this time, a "yea" vote was against more housing and in favor of the Federal Reserve's present policies; a "nay" vote was a vote for more housing and for a change in Federal Reserve policy," explained the Texas congressman.

"The second vote also would have spelled out Congressional intent and specified that the Federal Reserve was to provide $6 billion worth of credit for housing. This was defeated 233-170 and the vote appears on Pages H 12626-7 of the Congressional Record of December 17. Again, under the parliamentary procedure, a "yea" vote was against providing $6 billion for housing; a "nay" vote was for housing and to require the Federal Reserve to perform in the public interest. If you are interested in how an individual Congressman voted on these issues, you may obtain a copy of the record votes by writing your U. S. Congressman, House Office Building, Washington, D. C.," Patman said.

"At the earliest possible time. I plan to give the House another chance to vote to have the Federal Reserve allocate some of the nation's credit for housing. The Fed. should allocate credit for housing rather than for stock market speculation, gambling operations, corporate takeovers, luxury spending and other unnecessary purposes.

"Every citizen has four people in Washington—his Congressman, his two United States Senators, and the President. It is important that they know whether you want the Federal Reserve to continue its present policies or whether you want it to help allocate some of the nation's credit for necessary purposes such as housing," Rep. Patman concluded.

California Council Gets 2nd "Outreach" Contract

Five AFL-CIO building trades councils in the Oakland, Calif., area have been awarded a $250,833 contract to prepare 200 minority youths for apprenticeship training in "Operation Outreach."

In a previous Labor Department contract, the Bay Area Construction Opportunity Program, which the five councils operate, exceeded its goal of readying 200 youths by placing 302 as trades apprentices.

They included 154 carpenters, 11 cement masons, 17 electricians, 5 iron workers, 5 operating engineers, 22 painters, 12 in the pipe trades, 10 plasterers, 2 roofers, 14 sheetmetal workers, 4 tile setters and 46 in miscellaneous trades.

The Labor Department also awarded its first Outreach contract in Alaska. A $52,199 grant will go to the Anchorage Building & Construction Trades to train 30 disadvantaged youths for apprenticeships.

Don't Oppose Unions, N.J. Commission Tells Hospital

The Public Employment Commission of New Jersey has ordered the Bergen Pines County Hospital to put a notice in pay envelopes advising employees that they may engage in union activity without fear of reprisals.

The order probably is the first of its kind in public employment, said Director Jack Merkel of New Jersey Council 1 of the State, County & Municipal Employees. The council filed a complaint charging that hospital management put an unlawful leaflet in pay packets saying it is opposed to unions in hospitals and charging employees would suffer personal harm by joining State-County. The message advised "any employee who is approached by . . . any labor group" to report the incident immediately to his department head or the supervisor's office.

The new notice, ordered by the state commission, says employees have the right to join or assist FSCME "without fear of penalty or reprisal" and "shall not be required to report any union activity."

Pre-Fabbed Lath and Plaster Panels on Building

New Concept Saves Time, Money and Is Safer, Contractor Declares

Faced with installation of 48 exposed aggregate panel walls on the 20th floor of the Plaza 600 building in Seattle, and the problem of protection both from falling material and for the workmen themselves, the Gordon Brown Company, Inc., neatly solved the problem by pre-fabbing entire panels on the floor of the building, rolling and hoisting them into place and welding them into the building frame.

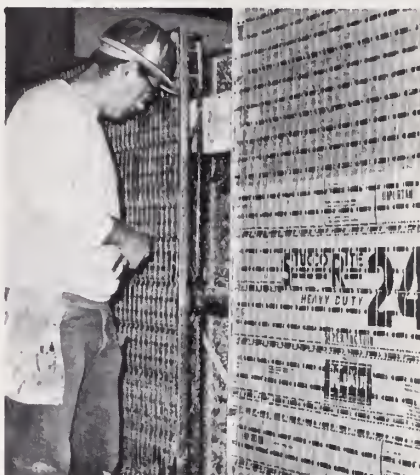

The panels are approximately 6 x 8 feet in size, weighing about 450 pounds each and are on 2½-inch steel studs, pre-fabbed in a jig on the job, taking advantage of all the welding and bracing possible. They were then stood up on the floor against a wooden frame and plastered.

After curing they were wheeled on dollies to the open spaces, dropped down from a hoist on the roof of the building into position on the previously installed girts where they were welded in place. The tracks, top and bottom, allowed for positive positioning and the steel bar running across the mid-point of the panels allowed for further welding as well as horizontal adjustment in the space. The perimeter of each panel was covered with a casing bead and butyl insulation filled the space between the panels and the building frame. Since the panels surround the mechanical floor, no interior finish other than transite-type covering will be provided in this installation. Thus, very neatly the whole job was done from the inside of the building and with careful measuring, resulted in a very effective and economical installation.

Three lathers and plasterers pre-fabbed about five panels a day and aside from the curing, the whole installation took less than ten days.

Supervising the operation were Don Nelson, lathing, and Don Jacobson, plastering, while Kenneth Johnson served as lathing foreman, and Dave Hoffman as plastering foreman.

For the construction, Soule's steel studs were used in conjunction with tracks Milcor casing bead, K-Lath's 24-inch heavy-duty Stucco-Rite paper-backed mesh, Lone Star cement and U. S. (Flintkote) lime, supplied by Pioneer Sand & Gravel Division, Lone Star Cement Company.

"We see this as an opportunity for considerable further use of lath and plaster curtain walls in hi-rise construction," declares Ted Brown of the Brown Company. "With this concept we save not only cost, but considerable time. In addition, there are no protective, weather or scaffolding problems and it gave us considerable peace of mind to realize our employees were working in relatively safe areas and there was no danger of falling material which might have seriously affected pedestrians and cars on the street 20 floors below.

"We were much pleased with the rigidity of the panels and complete absence of surface damage, but would think of structural studs if panel sizes much exceeded this dimension on future work. We would also recommend a quality surface sealant as long-range economy in maintenance and good appearance."

Your Union Contract Can Be Measured in Dollars

How much is a union contract worth to the average worker?

In 1966, according to the Labor Department, it was worth $1.14 an hour; or about $2,371 a year.

That was the difference in the average hourly compensation of non-office workers in establishments with union contracts and those without union contracts.

The dollar difference is almost certainly greater now, but the 1966 data was the latest available when the Bureau of Labor Statistics published its report on "Employee Compensation in the Private Nonfarm Economy."

Part of the difference was in the basic straight-time wage rates. The average union worker made $2.62 an hour at the time of the survey, as compared to $1.88 an hour in non-union employment. But the union worker also got substantially more vacation time, holidays, pension benefits, health insurance and other fringe benefits. That brought his total hourly compensation—the amount the employer pays out on his behalf—to $3.37 an hour. For the worker without a union contract, the comparable figure was only $2.23 an hour.

Since the union worker puts in fewer hours on the job because of his longer vacations and added holidays, the difference is even greater when measured in terms of total compensation-per-hour actually worked. The Labor Department's calculations for that category boost the union differential to $1.29 an hour more than the non-union worker.

Local Union 9 Member's Hobby Is Impersonations of Lincoln

The Lathers International Union has its own private Abraham Lincoln, whose birthday on February 12, 1809, has been marked on this month's cover with a strong pen and ink drawing of his rugged face and a quotation of special interest to working people.

"Abe" Goodacre in Costume

The "Lathers' Lincoln" is embodied in the person of William E. "Bill" Goodacre, of Local Union 9, often better-known to his fellow-workers as "Abe."

"Bill" or "Abe," bears a remarkable resemblance to Lincoln which was often noted. After the similarity had been marked many times, he grew the "Lincoln beard," which, with the black suit and the stovepipe hat, makes him virtually a double of The Great Emancipator.

Goodacre, 34, takes part in many parades throughout the year, starting with the Mummers' Parade in Philadelphia on New Year's Day. He won an award there to add to the many other prizes he has been given for his participations over the past three years.

The Local Union 9 member started his career of Lincoln impersonation after two other building tradesmen who were members of Clowns of America talked him into it. He is now a member of the Montgomery County, Maryland, unit of the amateur clown organization. Bill, who is married and has two children, lives in Silver Spring, Md., outside of Washington, D. C. He has been a member of Local 9 for 8 years and is currently the shop steward on the huge Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts rising alongside the Potomac River.

The real Lincoln, who became the 16th and one of the nation's most remarkable presidents, only to be assassinated as the Civil War was ending, was himself no stranger to manual labor. He made two trips down the Mississippi River as a crew member on steamboats. He worked on his father's farm. With a cousin, he split 3,000 fence rails. He was also a soldier in the militia and ran a

Administration's Civil Rights Record Not Good, AFL-CIO Says

The Administration's Philadelphia Plan "is of questionable legality, of little practical value," and "given the nature of the construction industry, will do little to bring Negroes into permanent jobs."

The quotation is from Donald Slaiman, AFL-CIO Director of Civil Rights, speaking on the AFL-CIO-sponsored radio program "Labor News Conference."

Slaiman stressed that the building trades unions had already gone forward with affirmative programs to recruit, to train, and to place minority workers in permanent construction jobs.

He said the union-sponsored Apprenticeship Outreach programs have already placed more than 5,300 minority youngsters in registered apprenticeships, many of them in highly-skilled crafts such as electricians, the pipe trades, iron workers, sheet metal workers and carpenters.

general store, was a land surveyor and served as a postmaster. Eventually he was admitted to the practice of law, ran for various public offices and was inaugurated President of the United States on March 4, 1861.

Knoxville Building Trades Get New Training Contract

The Knoxville, Tenn., Building & Construction Trades Council has received a new one-year Labor Dept. contract for $50,985 to prepare 35 minority youths for skilled trades apprenticeships. In an earlier Apprenticeship Outreach contract, the Knoxville council prepared 78 young men for the apprentice examinations, more than double its original goal of 35.

What Next, Mother?

Five women have been admitted to membership in Painters Local 61 in the Minnesota Twin Cities of Minneapolis-St. Paul. The Painters have had women members for many years, but not in construction locals. Four of the five house(wife)painters are married and two of the four are mothers.

Slaiman charged that the Philadelphia Plan is "a political gambit . . . a calculated attempt to confuse the public . . . about doing something on the job front to cover up a retreat in civil rights." He said he doubted that the "minority community really buys the idea that with this effort the Administration is really doing something for minorities."

Slaiman said the Nixon Administration has turned in a "pretty bad" first-year record on civil rights, with more show than substance.

He said that "significant gaps" in unfulfilled minority expectations existed when Pres. Nixon took office. But instead of pressing ahead, the administration slowed "what was being done on school desegregation, voting, training, eliminating poverty and on maintaining the kind of high-level employment situation which would produce more job opportunities for minorities."

Bad News: Purchasing Power Continues Skid

The purchasing power of workers skidded again in November as consumer prices continued to rise and average earnings dropped for the second month in a row.

While gross weekly earnings of production and non-supervisory workers fell 62 cents from the October level, the Consumer Price Index rose five-tenths of 1 percent to 130.5 for the nation as a whole, the Labor Dept. reported.

Real spendable earnings — take-home pay expressed in 1957-59 dollars to reflect consumer price changes — averaged 78 cents lower in November for the worker with three dependents.

Real weekly earnings for a worker with three dependents averaged $77.81, down five-tenths of 1 percent from November, 1968, and 2.3 percent below the record registered in September, 1968.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said that the increase in the CPI was due mainly to higher prices for food, apparel and nearly all kinds of consumer services. Gasoline and used cars posted the only significant declines.

The November rise put all items in the index 5.8 percent above a year ago, BLS noted.

Food prices, which usually decline in November, rose seven-tenths of 1 percent. Fresh vegetables and eggs led the price increase. And meat prices were down less than usual as pork prices failed to show their customary seasonal drop.

As a result of the November price increases, it cost $13.05 last month for goods and services that cost $10 in the 1957-59 base period.

Nearly all types of services moved higher in November. The most notable increases, the BLS observed, were for services associated with home ownership.

Charges for medical care services posted a relatively moderate advance as the fees of physicians rose for the second consecutive month,

CLC Challenges Manufacturers to Take Stand On Question of Voluntary Price Restrictions

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association has been challenged to make clear its position with regard to the voluntary restriction of prices.

his public statements.

"The position taken by the Canadian Labour Congress and the Confederation of National Trade Unions is one supported by recognized authorities in Canada and in other countries," Mr. Dodge said. "The Economic Council of Canada has publicly stated that voluntary controls will not work here, just as they have failed in other countries. This position recently received strong support from two of the world's most renowned economists—Kenneth Galbraith of the United States and Alan Flanders of Great Britain—at a labour-management-government conference held recently.

"The position labour has adopted is an honest expression of opinion. The Canadian public is entitled to the same frankness from Canadian companies and their spokesmen. Is the Canadian Manufacturers' Association prepared to make a commitment accepting voluntary price controls for Canadian companies? Are the companies for which Mr. Wills speaks ready to subject price increases to the same type of procedures which are now applied to wages—negotiations and conciliation?

"Similar action has now been taken by the International Nickel Co., which at least had the frankness to state that one of the reasons it was imposing a price increase in the product which it controls on a world basis, was to finance expansion of the company's operations.

"Oil companies operating in Canada have used wage settlements as an excuse for price increases which, it is estimated, will cost the Canadian people $100,000,000 a year; and which, in the light of enormous increases in productivity in the oil industry are quite unjustified.

"Apart from these increases in basic materials the public is the victim of endless price juggling at the retail level. The Canadian people are entitled to a clear statement of the position of those who control the management of the companies which are responsible for introducing these and other price increases."

Survey Reveals Pace of Economic Activity Slowing

After five quarters of rapid growth, the pace of economic activity in Canada levelled off in the second quarter of 1969. The gross national product rose 0.9 per cent to $77.3 billion but price increases of 1.1 per cent absorbed practically all the gain so that the actual physical production remained virtually stationary with slight decline of 0.2 per cent.

Government capital expenditure rose 6.5 per cent but personal expenditure went up only 2 per cent. There were declines registered in exports of goods and services and non-farm business inventory investment. There was a sharp decline in purchases of goods.

Housing construction went up six per cent although industrial disputes were credited with a slowdown in industrial construction. In constant dollars, non-residential construction reflected a two per cent decline. Both business inventories and business investment were both off sharply.

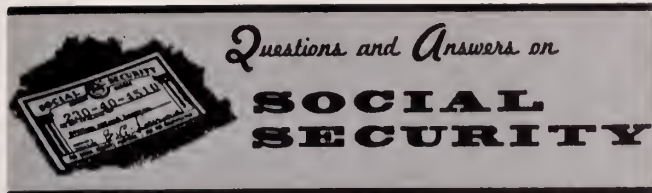

Wages and salaries continued to rise about three per cent and the unemployment rate, which had declined to 4.2 per cent in the first quarter from a high of five per cent through the last three quarters of 1968, rose in the second quarter to 4.8 per cent.

More Modern Appliance In Use, Study Shows

More Canadians are enjoying more modern appliances, according to a survey by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Figures released show the following proportions of homes with the named appliances in 1969 with comparable figures for 1968 shown in parentheses: automatic dishwashers, 6.5 per cent (5.1 per cent); automatic washing machines, 36.4 per cent (32.0 per cent); clothes dryers, 40.5 per cent (36.8 per cent); window-type air conditions, 3.9 per cent (3.2 per cent); telephones, 93.9 per cent (92.7 per cent); FM receivers, 48.0 per cent (40.4 per cent); phonographs and record players, 68.4 per cent (66.0 per cent); one automobile, 61.0 per cent (61.1 per cent) and two or more automobiles, 16.0 per cent (15.5 per cent).

Q. A friend told me recently that I could work while getting my social security benefits and make $1200 without losing any of my benefits. Is this true?

A. It was nice of your friend to inform you that you could work while getting your social security benefits. However, your friend apparently is not keeping up with the changes to the Social Security Act. She should have told you that you could work and earn $1680 a year and not have any benefits withheld.

Q. Medicare recently paid on my hospital bill but I disagree with the amount that was paid. Where do I turn now to get this explained?

A. You should write or visit the insurance company that processed your claim. In Washington, the insurance company which handles hospital claims is Medical Services of D.C., 550 12th Street, S.W., Washington, D. C. 20024. If you are still not satisfied with the answer after contacting them, you can request a hearing from them on your case.

Q. I need to find out if a hospital, extended care facility, or home health agency is participating in Medicare because my mother needs these services.

A. Your doctor, or someone at the institution or agency, can tell you. Or you can ask the people in any social security office.

Q. I fell and broke my back in September, and the doctor told me I might remain paralyzed for good. When should I file my claim for disability with social security?

A. You should file now. Benefits can be paid beginning with the 7th month you are disabled. File right away so social security can start work on your claim. That way you should receive your checks at the end of the 7th month—the earliest time possible.

Q. I have never worked under social security. My husband will be 65 in 2 months and is going to retire and collect his social security. We were wondering if I would have anything coming to me from social security.

A. If you are 65 or older when your husband's benefits start, you are eligible for a wife's benefit equal to one-half his benefit. If, for example, his monthly benefit is $100, your wife's benefit would be $50 monthly. If you are between 62 and 65, the amount of the wife's benefit will be somewhat reduced because the payments will be made to you over a longer time than if you were older. For example, if you are exactly 62 when your benefits start, you would get 80 percent of the full wife's benefit. If you are under 62 when your husband starts collecting his social security, you would have to wait for your benefits unless you were caring for dependent children who were eligible for benefits based on your husband's social security record—a child under 18 or a disabled child 18 or over, whose disability began before his or her 18th birthday.

Q. Could my husband get benefits based on my work under social security? I will be 62 in a few months and plan to take my benefits as soon as I can because my husband is not well and needs my care at home. He is much older than I am—over 70—and the work he did in the past did not qualify him for social security.

A. If your husband has been receiving at least one-half his support from you, he will be eligible for a dependent husband's benefit.

Q. I am the main support of my elderly parents. Can they get benefits based on my social security earnings?

A. If they are 62 or older, they can get survivors benefits if you should die. However, they are not eligible for benefits while you are still living.

Q. Can I collect both by own retirement benefit and also the wife's or widow's benefit based on my husband's work under social security?

A. No. You will get a benefit equal to whichever is the larger payment. What happens is that in either case you will be paid your own retirement benefit. But if the wife's or widow's benefit based on your husband's record is higher than your retirement benefit, the difference will be added to your retirement benefit check.

Structures Built by Proven Good Practices Withstood Hurricane Camille, Report Reveals

It is an ill wind that blows nobody any good, and the killer-hurricane "Camille" proves no exception. From a study of the effects of this tragic gale, one of the worst in U.S. history, may come housing design changes which will be of great benefit in the future.

The ruins left by the hurricane and the few buildings left intact are being closely studied by a U.S. Department of Commerce, National Bureau of Standards joint research team. The team hopes to come up with new formulae to guide future construction for structures which can withstand severe blows.

The four-man NBS team flew to the hardest-hit area, Gulfport-Biloxi, Mississippi, and spent several days carefully appraising the storm's effects and taking hundreds of photographs. Before long-term implications of this evidence can be determined, Camille's tricky movements will have to be traced from a tremendous mass of meteorological data collected during the hurricane by the Environmental Science Services Administration, also of the U.S. Department of Commerce. These data are still being compiled and processed.

In the meantime, the NBS investigatory team is beginning to draw some tentative conclusions on the basis of observations like these:

- With few exceptions, houses in the immediate vicinity of the beach were totally destroyed by the wave wash or storm surge which inundated areas as much as 25 feet above mean sea level. Wave damage to buildings with structural frames was generally limited to first-floor windows, non-structural walls and partitions. Some structures with load-bearing walls running at right angles to the beach also escaped total destruction.

- A modern 7-story reinforced concrete frame building with exterior glass enclosure walls, located near the Gulfport beach, performed very well. This building, initially occupied in March 1969, was designed for high-velocity winds. Damage from Camille was mainly confined to four window panels and the structure enclosing rooftop water-cooling towers.

- Wind damage to modern structures of conventional design was surprisingly light in many areas well back from the beach. Aerial reconnaissance of these areas indicated that some tornado action occurred during the storm, as evidenced by the narrow strips of heavy damage which were observed.

- In various buildings, poor construction practices were noted—contributing, in some cases, to greater damage than would otherwise have occurred. When more complete wind data on Hurricane Camille becomes available, the NBS team will evaluate current building-design practices as they affect the hurricane resistance of the structures.

- Frequently, Camille's severe winds and heavy rains caused substantial damage to buildings which remained standing but lost part or all of their protective coverings. For example, the loss of a roof on an Air Force chapel resulted in considerable water damage to the interior and contents of the chapel. In other cases, damage to siding, breakage of windows, and leakage around windows and doors caused losses in personal goods and property damage. The NBS team will look into possible changes or innovations in building materials and construction practices that would avert or minimize such losses.

Ultimately, NBS building research on this problem will be aimed at developing guidelines for the utilization of materials and systems in hurricane-prone areas. Related to this is a joint NBS-ESSA study utilizing equipment installed at the new NBS laboratory complex near Gaithersburg, Md., to measure wind effects on a test structure. New information is being provided on the nature of strong winds and on what they do to buildings. This work may help clear the way for changes in building standards and codes that will provide for wind-resistant structures.

Labor Urges Ban on Unsolicited Credit Cards

Credit cards shouldn't be sent to people who haven't requested them, the AFL-CIO wrote a Senate Banking subcommittee.

Legislative Director Andrew J. Biemiller has expressed labor's support for a credit card regulation bill sponsored by Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), chairman of the Subcommittee on Financial Institutions. It would restrict the conditions under which credit cards could be sent without having been requested.

"The only questions we have," Biemiller said, "is whether the mailing of unsolicited credit cards should not be banned outright, rather than indirectly discouraged as presently provided in the bill. We hope the subcommittee will give favorable consideration to an outright ban."

Biemiller also expressed the AFL-CIO's strong support for a provision of the Proxmire bill which would limit a credit card holder's liability for unauthorized use of his card to $50 and provide other safeguards.

This hurricane-ravaged house was one of similar thousands wracked by Hurricane Camille's fury. National Bureau of Standards technicians are studying storm's effect on various types of construction. Changes in codes may be result of study.

Who's Running the Country?

Experts who know what they are talking about have predicted that the United States must achieve and maintain a pace of 2,000,000 housing starts annually in order to keep up with the increase in our population.

If this pace is not achieved and maintained over the next ten to twenty years, there will be people in the future who will not be able to obtain suitable housing.

But people will not sit out in the blazing sun or freezing cold. They will live in old, broken-down houses which ought to be torn down. They will live in converted chicken coops, as much-needed war production workers did on the West Coast during World War II. They will make shanties out of flattened five-gallon tin cans, as do the destitute in some Latin-American nations who cannot afford even minimal housing.

Is this the future we aspire to? Is this what our President and our Congress are planning for and seeking? Does the governing board of the Federal Reserve Bank believe that a situation where people are living in renovated cisterns is going to be profitable to the bankers of the nation in the years ahead? Must we actually come to the brink of a housing hell before our "leadership" will accept salvation?

Of all the basic industries in the nation . . . in the world . . . housing is the most basic of all after the food industry. Man must, first of all, eat. Then, secondly, he must have a place to live. In rank of wealth-generation, housing probably ranks first. A "rule of thumb" reckons that a full quarter of a man's income should properly be devoted to his housing needs. The material demands of the housing industry generate secondary activity in all other basic industries: steel, non-ferrous metals, lumber, gypsum, asbestos, cement, clay products and plastics. And since an empty residence is useless, the housing industry also creates demand in numerous other industries: electrical products, sanitary fixtures, textiles, wallpaper, paint, furniture, bedding and many others. Thus it can be easily seen that the housing industry cuts across the whole face of the nation's industrial activity.

When the housing industry gets sick, the entire nation starts to feel the fever.

Congress is going to have to get off the dime and start a spurt of housing activity the likes of which we have never seen before if they are to keep the voters of tomorrow out of chicken coops! When people are treated shabbily, they react by voting their representatives out of office. But when they are treated like animals, they must well react like animals and turn on their heedless "keepers" much as a goaded tiger might.

There is nothing wrong with the housing industry that a generous dose of reasonable financing would not cure. Who is running the country, anyway; the elected officials or the bankers?

cover

Our cover girl and lily are a reminder that Easter is early this year; March 29. Earliest it can possibly occur is March 22, since it is always the Sunday following the first full moon after the vernal equinox (usually March 21.) The latest Easter may occur is April 25. The earliest possible date will next occur in 2027, the latest not until 2038.

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

The financial report from my office generally occupies pages 14 and 15, but this month that report is being transferred to pages 16 and 17 so that we may give you a special two-page spread of election information.

I earnestly recommend that you tear out this two-page spread, located in the center of the magazine for just that reason, and keep it for reference. Post it on a bulletin board. Circulate it among your friends and acquaintances. See that as many people as possible learn about the registration requirements and voting information for your state.

As you look over the information, furnished to the Lathers International Union by COPE, the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education, one item will soon become apparent to you. You will note that there is an election to be held in every one of the 50 states. While it is true there will be no President elected on November 3, the entire House of Representatives will have to stand for election or re-election.

There will be 35 state Governors and 35 Senators elected on next election day, in addition to hundreds of state Senators and state Representatives (or whatever their offices may be termed in the particular state concerned).

All this means that the philosophy of our government for the next two to four years is going to be established next November. The Republicans will be out to capture the majority of the congressional seats in order to give the present Republican national administration the working majority in Congress which it does not have at present. The Democrats will be equally determined to capture additional seats in Congress. The Democrats may also be expected to lay special emphasis on the state contests in order to provide a "power base" for the 1972 presidential elections.

You can easily see, whether you are a Republican or a Democrat, that you should take an active interest in the coming elections. Because your future welfare depends on the passage of liberal legislation (liberal legislation is that concerned with the welfare of people rather than the welfare of things, such as corporations) you should see to it that only liberal candidates receive your vote and support. Make your money contribution to COPE with the firm assurance it will be used to help only liberal candidates, dedicated to your welfare, regardless of their political party affiliations!

When a man is working for a living, there are many political factors which influence his welfare and that of his family. Items such as unemployment compensation, workmen's accident compensation, government-established safety standards, wage and hour regulations, social security rules and regulations . . . only to name a few. There are many other sectors of life where liberal legislators function to make life better for the rank-and-file citizen and his family.

But to be able to function for you, a liberal legislator first needs to be elected. For this, he needs your moral and financial support, plus your vote.

For your own self-interest, see that he gets them all!

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General Secretary-Treasurer.

MISCELLANEOUS CASES

After hearing testimony given by President Sal Maso, Int. Organizer Rex Pritchard, Brother William Ward, Sec. California State Council of Lathers and Brother Ken Edwards, representing Locals 42, 42A and 65.

The Executive Council orders the immediate reaffiliation of Locals 42, 42A and 65 with the California State Council of Lathers and further recommends the payment of per capita tax by these Locals to the State Council from July 1, 1969 to the present time, all back per capita tax (from July 1, 1969) to be paid in full within one year from this date.

Because of the circumstances surrounding this case, mainly: the failure of the General President to enforce section No. 151 of the Int. Constitution at the time of the violation, January 29, 1968. The failure of the General President to bring this problem before the Executive Council until approximately nine months had elapsed and then were not notified by him, until Brother William Ward, Sec. of California State Council, sent the members of the Executive Council a registered letter stating the fact that he could get no response from the General President on this matter: The Executive Council feels the representatives of all parties concerned have not met in earnest to try and resolve their problem on a common ground beneficial to all concerned.

CASE NO. 26—Report on Lather Carpenter Committee meetings, Robert Georgine, Chairman, Kenneth Edwards and Creighton H. White committee members

The committee gave the Executive Council a clear and understandable report on what has transpired between themselves and the Carpenters committee up to the present time. Chairman Robert Georgine gave an interesting summation on what has taken place throughout the country on dry wall, metal studs, rock lath, veneer plaster and conventional plaster. Brother Ken Edwards and Brother Creighton White added their informative comments to the report. The Executive Council thanked the committee for an excellent report and suggested they continue to meet with the Carpenters in an attempt to reach a suitable conclusion to their case.

CASE NO. 27—Vice President, A. Burton, gave a fine report on the activities planned for the Int. Convention to be held in Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada, August, 1970.

The Executive Council voted to use the Legal Fund finances to make up any monies short in our convention fund to pay the expenses of the August, 1970 International Convention, including the delegates transportation and per diem.

The Executive Council decided to send a member of the Executive Council to go to Vancouver convention site and assist Vice President, Burton, and his committees prior to the convention. His expenses to be paid by the International Union.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS

The case of Local 328, Cheyenne, Wyoming on the loss of their charter will be heard at the next meeting of the Executive Council in August, 1970 in Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada, because of no added information supplied to this Executive Council.

The Resolution on per capita tax submitted to the Executive Council was laid over to their meeting prior to the International Convention, August, 1970.

J. Earl Ferguson, Gen. Sec. Treasurer, appeared before the Executive Council in regards to publishing political slates for elective offices of the L.I.U. in the Lathers Journal. The Executive Council recommends to the Gen. Sec. Treasurer, Ferguson, that no political advertising for the elective offices of the L.I.U. be printed in the Lathers Journal.

The expenses of J. Earl Ferguson, Gen. Sec. Treasurer, for the year of 1969 were submitted to and accepted and approved by the Executive Council.

No expense account was submitted by Gen. President Maso. The Executive Board regrets that at the conclusion of this meeting, no such expense account was submitted as per section No. 79 of the Int. Constitution.

1970 Census Will Count the Nation's Noses

The nineteenth Decennial Census will be begun on April 1. This year, for the first time in history, the largest part of the ten-year nose count will be conducted by mail.

The founding fathers of the nation attached so much importance to a census that they specified one to be made every ten years in Section 2 of Article 1 of the Constitution. One of the primary uses of the results of the census is for the apportionment of Representatives among the 50 states. The article specifies that "Indians not taxed" were to be excluded from the census but that "those bound to service for a term of years" were to be counted and "three-fifths of all other persons" (there is nothing left but those bound to service forever, i.e., slaves). There are no "Indians not taxed" today, nor any slaves, so everyone is counted when the census workers go to work.

The census will ask population and housing questions of every American household. Most of these questions were asked in 1960, and many have been asked at each decennial census over the years. Such continuity, of course, provides long-term comparative information needed for the country, its states, counties, cities and other divisions. It is this information which tells us where we've been, where we are and where we're going in matters of population and housing.

"Every question asked in the 1970 census has a national purpose," says Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans. "Government programs for welfare, education, housing, veterans, senior citizens, minorities—and many others—depend on accurate counts of our people and how they live. Schools, businesses, our states, cities and citizen groups all use census figures to plan their work and to measure our country's problems and progress."

Each household will receive a census form on March 28 and will be asked to answer all questions about members of the household and their housing. The number of questions to be answered, as an average, will be the smallest of any census in the past 100 years. Four out of five households will answer 23 questions, requiring about 15 minutes for a family of average size. One household in five will answer additional questions, requiring another 30 minutes.

In most large metropolitan areas, with about 60 percent of the total U. S. population, each census form will be accompanied by a brown envelope addressed to a Census Bureau office. This envelope, containing the form with all questions answered, should be mailed by April 1. In other parts of the U. S., families will be asked to fill out the form on April 1 but hold it until it is picked up by a census enumerator.

Census figures are used to apportion several billion dollars annually in federal funds to state and local governments for support of education, health, welfare, employment and other services. They are also used to guide many business decisions.

In filling out its census form, each family is asked to answer each question to the best of its ability. Estimates will be accepted if the precise answers are not known. Each question is to be answered by filling a small circle to create a black dot alongside the right answer.

Each family's answers are held in strict confidence by the Census Bureau. They may not be shown to tax offices, police, regulatory agencies or to any person outside the Census Bureau. Every census worker takes an oath of confidentiality and would be subject by law to a heavy fine and imprisonment if he violated the oath by disclosing information about any person or family. There have been no known cases of such violation.

In February, the Census Bureau opened about 400 temporary offices, each responsible for taking the census of 300,000 to 800,000 persons. About 185,000 temporary workers will be hired during the spring months to assemble questionnaires and to make sure that every household is included in the census. Most workers will earn about $2 an hour.

Preliminary counts of population in each town, city and county will be reported in late spring as each of the 400 district offices completes its enumeration. Final results will be reported by the Census Bureau from August through October. Official population figures for all states, by law, must be reported to the President by December 1, 1970. Detailed statistics about characteristics of population and housing will be published during 1971 and 1972. Statistics will be reported for each state, county, city, town, metropolitan area, congressional district and, in the larger cities and their suburbs, for each census tract and city block.

A family assists an enumerator in completing a detailed questionnaire.

First Student to Complete Related Instruction Correspondence Course Is Joe Riley, L.U. 358

Joseph A. Riley of Local 358, Johnstown, Penna., is the first man in history to complete the Related Instruction Correspondence Course in conjunction with his apprenticeship.

Riley was honored with a dinner in Johnstown to mark his initiation as a journeyman and completion of the course. At the dinner, hosted by the local union, the new journeyman was presented a framed Certificate of Completion of Apprenticeship and a wrist watch engraved with his accomplishment of being the first to complete the correspondence course. His wife, local contractors and members of the local witnessed the presentations on Jan. 9 by Charles Brodeur, Lathers International Representative, and Leo Schultz, Executive Director of the National Apprenticeship Program.

The main problem facing all Joint Apprenticeship Committees in training apprentices in the past was the lack of organized and prepared courses available for local use. The National Apprenticeship Program realized this, and one of the first priorities when the national program started to function was to develop a Related Instruction Course. Since the size of most locals precludes sufficient apprentices at any one time to establish a classroom, it was necessary that a correspondence course be the basis of the related course.

In the summer of 1967 the first volumes of the course became available and the first apprentices were enrolled as correspondence students that fall. A number of other apprentices are now near completion and many-many more are now enrolled.

There is no reason today that every apprentice in the International should not be receiving related instruction, either in a classroom or by being enrolled in the correspondence course, since the course is available to all apprentices.

Major Expansion of Job Banks Is Planned

The Job Bank Program currently sponsored by the Department of Labor in seven metropolitan areas will be expanded to 55 major cities this year rather than the 35 originally programmed.

A Job Bank is a computerized program for matching people out of work with available jobs in the area. Eventually it is expected that the city-wide job bank principle will become a part of a fully-automated state-wide job-matching system such as those operating experimentally at present in Wisconsin, California, Utah and New York.

At the present time Job Banks are in operation in Baltimore, Chicago, St. Louis, Portland, Ore., Seattle, Hartford and Washington, D. C.

Lath & Plaster Bureau Reports Busy Schedule; Appreciation Certificate Given Navy Architect

President Joseph E. Conroy, Jr. of the National Bureau for Lathing and Plastering has reported significant progress since the fall. In addition to its regular activities, the Bureau continues to explore new areas of lath and plaster promotion. Below are details on some of the things the Bureau has been doing.

Presentation Demonstrations. Through presentation demonstrations, the Bureau has been working to familiarize a growing number of federal agencies with such industry innovations as veneer plaster, solid partitions and curtain wall construction. The latest presentation was conducted January 13 at the Veterans' Administration Headquarters. Future presentations are being planned for the U.S. Air Force and the Army Corps of Engineers which is handling specifications for the new Washington, D.C. subway system. Plans are also being finalized for a two-day National Conference on 'Volume Change Problems Encountered in the Use of Portland Cement Stucco', scheduled for July 14-15 at the Bureau of Standards, Gaithersburg, Maryland.

Report from Washington. While keeping architects and engineers abreast of industry developments, the Bureau is also working to keep its Member Bureaus up-to-date. Since the authorization of 'Certain Construction at Military Installations and for Other Purposes' (Public Law No. 91-142), the Bureau has been apprising members of proposed locations and relevant contacts. At the same time, copies of the Bureau of Standards' revised 'American Standards for Softwood Lumber' were forwarded to all Member Bureaus. The Bureau is also keeping a close watch on other legislation, and may testify before the Senate Labor Committee on Labor and Public Welfare when S. 3216 comes up for hearings. This bill calls for the replastering of lead-painted residential walls.

HUD and the National Bureau. The Bureau has stayed in close contact with the Housing & Urban Development's 'Operation Breakthrough'. This is the joint industry-labor-government program to provide 26 million mass-produced, low-cost housing units in the next ten years. In addition, the Bureau hopes to participate in HUD's Project 'IBIS' in anticipating differential cost analysis of low-cost housing. A proposal is being prepared for a HUD-financed R&D contract to program and computer-analyze lath and plaster architectural comparative design data.

Contribution Efforts. In other areas, the Bureau is continuing its efforts to obtain promotion contributions from the Province of Nova Scotia which exports some four million tons of gypsum to the U.S. annually. Should this project prove successful, similar proposals will be made to other gypsum-exporting countries as well as to the American states.

Thank you, Mr. Slagle! The Bureau is happy to announce a new policy of awarding recognition to federal officials who have been of outstanding assistance in the promotion of lath and plaster. The first such award has been presented to Mr. F. Leonard Slagle, A.I.A., supervising architect of the Naval Engineering Command's Architectural Section. Mr. Slagle's generous help with the National Bureau demonstration before the Navy Department's Biennial Architectural Design Conference last September greatly contributed to its success and enthusiastic reception.

The Bureau is pleased with its increasing coverage in various trade publications and magazines and is looking forward to continuing to expand its activities and help the lath and plaster industry make The Seventies the best decade yet.

Louis J. Becker Elected to Head St. Louis Association

Louis J. Becker has been elected executive director of the Greater St. Louis Lathing and Plastering Promotional Association. In his new position, Becker will be responsible for carrying out the Association's programs of professional and public education on the uses of modern lath and plaster in all types of construction that permit versatility to achieve esthetic design.

The Greater St. Louis Lathing and Plastering Promotional Association is a non-profit public service organization, jointly sponsored by lathing and plastering contractors and members of Plasterers Union, Local No. 3, and Lathers Union, Local No. 73.

Local Union 147, Winnipeg, Establishes Apprentice School, Expands Membership

Local Union 147, Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, is an outstanding example of how a local union, with strong leadership and the support of the membership, can not only withstand adversity, but rise above it.

Not too long ago, Local 147 was threatened from several sides. Unfriendly forces were bringing pressure to bear from inside the labor movement, and the local's associated contractors were receiving similar pressures from the drywall association. Lathers were told, time and again, that within a year or so "there would be no more lathers' locals left in western Canada."

Something positive had to be undertaken, so a course of action was laid out, and each local union in the area was requested to participate.

One of the principal leaders in the resurgence move was Sig A. Anderson, Secretary-Treasurer and Business Agent of Local 147. With his leadership, Local 147 has not only doubled its membership; it has almost tripled. The local has complete control of the steel stud, wallboard and thincoat plaster fields in Manitoba and a good share of the acoustic field.

Recently the local union had a mass swearing-in ceremony where 16 new members were accepted. This was the second such group in two months.

Business Agent Anderson solicited the cooperation of the Department of Labour and now has a full-time Apprentice School in operation. The first level of the school went in on January 5.

In both of these undertakings: apprentice school and expansion of the union membership, Bro. Anderson has enjoyed the support of the local union membership and of the associated lath and plaster contractors. Special congratulations are in order to Bro. Anderson for a job well done.

Estimated Population Pegged at 21,061,000

The estimated population of Canada, as of June 1, 1969, was 21,061,000. Of this total, 10,563,600 were males and 10,497,400 females. The age-group with the largest number in Canada was the 5-9 year-old group, with 2,325,700. The largest male group also was in the 5-9 sector 1,190,300, as was the largest female group 1,135,400.

The estimated number of families in Canada, excluding Yukon and Northwest Territories, was 4,696,000; an increase of 178,000 or 3.9 percent since the 1966 census. The average family numbered 3.9 persons, the same as in the 1961 and 1966 counts. Quebec and the Atlantic Provinces had the largest family size, 4.2. The Prairie Provinces averaged 3.9 persons, and Ontario had 3.7. British Columbia had the smallest average family size at 3.6 persons a family.

Summer Jobs for Students

The Government of Canada provided jobs for 11,365 students last summer, an increase of nearly 27 percent over that of the previous summer.

The Manpower Department was involved in a number of initiatives aimed at helping students find summer employment, one of which was to expand summer job opportunities in the Government service itself.

Mr. Alan J. MacEachen, Minister of Manpower and Immigration, recently reported an increase of 2,401 in the number of summer jobs provided in 1969, compared to the 1968 total of 8,964.

A group of new members of Local Union 147, Winnipeg, prepare to take the pledge at a swearing-in ceremony. The local union has achieved a high degree of success in education and organizing. In background at left is Sec.-Treas. and Business Agent Sig Anderson, who has led the moves. In center rear is Davy Meyers, chairman, and at right is International Representative A. H. Burton.

To Appear on It, You Must Agree With the TV Moguls!

Vice President Agnew's case against the "networks conspiracy" to slant the news the way they want it was strengthened by a comment from Senator Robert Griffin, a Michigan Republican.

Griffin has been quoted as saying that, when he was one of the group of Senators campaigning against the confirmation of Abe Fortas as a Supreme Court Justice, he "had considerable trouble getting national exposure. I was never invited on any network shows.

"On the other hand," related Griffin, "the networks agreed with my position on Judge Haynsworth, and I had no difficulty getting my message before the public."

Insure Your Future for $1

Alex Barkan is National Director of the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education. One of the primary functions of COPE is to aid the election of liberal legislators who will deal fairly with organized labor and legislate for the welfare of the people, rather than the welfare of special interests whose aims and ambitions are all too often directly opposed to the good of the people.

Brother Barkan has recently written me, reminding me that the COPE quota for the LIU this year, (based on our per capita paid to the AFL-CIO), is $1,765. This certainly should not be difficult for us to achieve and even to exceed . . . if everyone who works at it does his part.

You and I, as individuals, are virtually powerless to elect good legislators. Between us, we have exactly two votes . . . hardly enough to swing an election. But if, in the fullest tradition of the labor movement, you and I join together with the millions of others in organized labor, we CAN do something about it!

Organized labor has done it many times before and can do it again. Organized labor brought about universal free education and free textbooks for children. Organized labor brought about workmen's compensation laws. Organized labor brought about unemployment benefits. These are only a sampling of what working men (and women) have been able to do something about when they have become sufficiently involved with a problem facing them as a group.

One significant fact regarding all these accomplishments: in each instance, success was achieved by legislation. Nobody rioted in the streets to obtain free education, workmen's compensation, unemployment insurance, social security, medicare or any other worthwhile social advance. What happened was this: organized labor helped elect liberal legislators, helped defeat reactionary legislators, then supported its friends while fostering the beneficial legislation. That is the only practical and effective method of "getting the job done."

So I urgently request each and every local union to establish a hard-working COPE Committee which will contact each and every local union member. Urge that he give at least $1 . . . but ask for $2 or $3 to insure that we exceed our national COPE quota.

"The plain truth is that the political stakes are so high in 1970 that we must be better-financed and better-organized than in any previous congressional and senatorial election year," wrote Barkan. "The federal agencies are being stacked with conservative business and industrial leaders," he warned.

Perhaps it is difficult to see how your $1 or $2 contribution will actually result in saving you money and making your life better and fuller in the future. But believe me; it will do exactly that if we all unite and pull together.

Members: when you are asked for your COPE contribution, make it a generous one! Officers: start your COPE solicitations early, go at them with vigor, contact every last member! Make your returns early! Your future welfare depends on it!

cover

"All Roads Lead to Vancouver" refers, of course, to the upcoming 27th convention of the LIU in Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada. The official Convention Call appears on page 4, with facts on modern Vancouver and history of the city on the facing page. All "roads" to Vancouver, be they by highway, rail or air, will traverse some of the most dramatically beautiful mountain scenery in the world. On the cover is a view of the Trans-Canada Highway as it threads its way through Glacier National Park about 420 miles east of Vancouver. The mountain in the distance is Mount Abbott. As space permits, more facts on Canada and Vancouver will be printed in upcoming issues.

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

This issue of your journal carries the official Convention Call. This document, required by the Constitution, is published in advance of each convention for the purpose of disseminating information on the convention to the members via our local unions.

This month we shall inform you when and where our 27th LIU Convention is to be held. This is in the best and fullest tradition of the trade union movement. As is the case with all trade unions in the United States and Canada, the convention is the governing body of this organization. It is here that every individual member, through his elected representatives who attend the convention sessions as official delegates, can have his say.

Resolutions are usually sponsored by a local union, state or district council and, if in accordance with the LIU Constitution, are referred to the proper committee. In turn, the committee submits them for action to the general assembly of the convention.

As mentioned above, the convention is the governing body of the LIU—a very, very important function. It behooves every local union, state and district council to send a delegate to the convention. Inasmuch as we have a fund that provides per diem expense plus first-class transportation cost for accredited delegates from local unions, there is no reason for a local union to fail to send a delegate to the convention.

“When union workers assemble with freedom and independence in a convention” declared President Franklin D. Roosevelt, “it is proof that American democracy has remained unimpaired; it is a symbol of our determination to keep it free.” The muscle in any democratic body is the franchise; the right to vote and take part in the decision-making process. When that muscle is not exercised as it should be, the body withers so that the first strong arm to come along can overwhelm it.

For those who have not previously had the pleasure of visiting the great Northwest, the convention offers an extraordinary opportunity to visit one of the most scenic and attractive areas in all of North America, if not in the world. The summer weather in British Columbia is mild, with warm days and cool nights. The scenic attractions cannot be adequately described in print, but articles on and pictures of them will appear in your magazine between now and the convention.

For fishermen, the area is a veritable paradise, offering great angling in both fresh and salt water for the gamiest fish to be found anywhere. Anyone who can arrange for a vacation period, however brief it might be, in connection with attendance at the convention would be well-advised to seize the opportunity.

Credentials are now being printed and will soon be available. They will be mailed to the local unions and councils in ample time.

J. EARL FERGUSON,
General Secretary-Treasurer.

John Tierney, Local 46, Elected Vice President Of N.Y. State AFL-CIO

Newest member of the New York State AFL-CIO Executive Council is Vice Pres. John T. Tierney, business manager of Lathers Local 46, elected at the pre-convention meeting of the council October 26.

He was chosen to fill the vacancy created by the death of John M. Sheehan, of the same local union.

Vice President Tierney is a native New Yorker and attended school in Manhattan. He has been a member of his local since 1926 and has been an elected officer since 1939 when he was chosen a member of its executive board.

He had moved up to the post of chairman of the board in 1939 and held that position when he entered the U. S. Navy as a Seabee. He served for 28 months during World War II in Trinidad, at Pearl Harbor and in the Philippines.

Vice President Tierney became one of the local's four business agents in 1950. In 1969 he was elected business manager. The local's operating area is made up of the five New York city boroughs, Nassau, Suffolk, Westchester and a small part of Rockland County.

He is married, has a daughter and three grandchildren.

Harry Hagen, Author of Lathers Reference Book, Dies in St. Louis at 74

Harry J. Hagen, 74, a member of the LIU since 1910, author of the original "Lathers Craft Problems and Reference Book," died February 14 in St. Louis, Missouri, following a brief illness.

Bro. Hagen was elected Business Agent of Local 73 in 1923 and held that position and that of Business Manager continuously until his retirement in 1959. He served as First Vice President of the LIU from 1939 until his resignation in 1958 shortly before he retired from the trade.

Perhaps the greatest monument to Bro. Hagen's memory exists in the instruction book which he first wrote and published in 1932. The highly instructive and generously illustrated volume was later published by the International Union and has been of great benefit to literally thousands of apprentices and journeymen throughout the years.

He also developed a machine for bending iron by hand to any desired radius. He developed a system of lath and plaster air ducts for air conditioning systems. He also developed perforated steeltex lath for use in fireproofing buildings for the Pittsburgh Steel Company. He was continually seeking new means and methods of creating job opportunities for lathers and ways to make their jobs easier and more productive.

Bro. Hagen was prominent in the labor movement in the St. Louis area during the turbulence of the 1930s and '40s when the going for labor was rough. During the early years of the St. Louis Labor Tribune, he wrote a column on labor matters which was widely commented on and often republished. He was involved in many picket line disturbances and had been in poor health for years, considered to stem in large part from attacks by strikebreakers who were hired to try to break the labor movement in the St. Louis area.

He is survived by his wife, Florence, and a brother and sister. Funeral services were held on February 16, with burial in Memorial Park Cemetery. The most sincere sympathy is extended to Mrs. Hagen by the officers and members of the International.

Vancouver; A City of Romantic History, Bustling Seaport, Tourist Attractions

VANCOUVER, British Columbia, site of the 1970 convention, is one of North America's most interesting cities in its history, in its bustling, busy seaport, and in its role as one of Canada's leading tourist attractions.

Third-ranking in population with more than a third of a million people, Vancouver is blessed with a mild climate. The mean temperature in the hottest summer months is about 70 degrees and in January the mean is 33 degrees. Summer visitors are cautioned to carry light coats or sweaters in the sometimes chilly evenings.

The rapid growth of this great seaport city with its protected harbor dates from the day that the Canadian Pacific Railroad reached the Pacific Ocean at Vancouver Harbour in 1885. Almost 20 million bushels of wheat can be stored in the immense elevators there. Trade through Vancouver Harbor is particularly active while the Great Lakes ports are closed with winter's ice. Warmed by the Japanese Current, Vancouver's port never freezes closed. Timber, canned and salt fish, flour and apples are other important items of commerce in addition to wheat. Industrial plants in Vancouver include a number of foundries, fish canning and processing plants, oil works, shingle, saw, paper and pulp mills, sugar refineries, breweries and shipbuilding yards.

The 35-foot deep harbor is one of the world's finest natural ports in the world. At mid-century it numbered 28 piers, 75 miles of railway and over 31,000 feet of berthing space for ships.

The city is named to honor George Vancouver, an English navigator, who lived from 1757 to 1798. He entered the British navy at 13 and sailed under the famed Captain James Cook on his second and third voyages of discovery. Vancouver was commissioned to sail to the northwest coast of North America and wrest from the Spaniards the territory they had seized (and later relinquished) in that area.

Another job given Vancouver was to search for a sea passage to the Atlantic from the western coast via the Great Lakes. In his time little or nothing was known about the geography of the interior of North America. Commercial interests desperately needed a "northwest passage" which would preclude them from having to sail around the tip of South America. He joined the fruitless search which had been the interest of Henry Hudson and of Lewis and Clark.

Vancouver also surveyed some of the Australian coast and made several voyages to Hawaii. On one of his visits there, he accepted the submission of the islanders to the rule of Great Britain but, in some manner, his "annexation" seems to have been lacking in official ratification and the islands eventually became a territory and finally a state of the United States.

The navigator sailed far into Cook's Inlet in the mistaken belief it was the much-sought northwest passage and proved it was not. He also circumnavigated the large island which bears his name and on which Victoria, B.C., the capital of British Columbia, is located.

Michigan Group Elects Bob Georgine President

International Representative Robert A. Georgine has been elected President of an organization of representatives of International building trades unions in Michigan. Virtually every building trade is represented in the group. Purpose of the state organization is to aid the representatives in their work of organization and negotiation on behalf of their respective International Unions, to help coordinate inter-union assistance and to help solve such state-wide problems within the building trades unions as may arise.

Residences Prone to Fire Causing $5 Billion Losses

Residential structures account for the largest percentage of fires in the United States, according to a survey conducted by the National Academy of Sciences.

The figure cited includes apartments and all other types of residential structures, but one- and two-family dwellings alone account for 21 percent of the nation's fires. It is this type of structure which is built principally of wood. The number of institutional fires; hospitals, schools, hotels and large apartment houses, where the construction is primarily of steel and plaster, is virtually negligible.

The total annual fire loss in the United States is estimated as in excess of $5 billion. The annual loss of lives to fires is approximately 12,000.

The lesson to be learned is that if you want to protect yourself against loss of life or property, build with fireproof materials such as lath and plaster on the inside, stucco or other masonry on the outside.

Wage-Hour Sleuths Find Children Illegally Working

Federal investigators found 11,273 children illegally employed during 1969; some of them in hazardous occupations with high accident rates.

The wage-hour investigations, which reached only a relatively small number of establishments covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act, revealed that 10,024 under-age children were illegally employed in non-farm establishments and 1,249 illegally working on farms.

Minnesota Presidency Awarded to A. E. Conrad

A. Earl Conrad, of A. E. Conrad Company, Minneapolis, Minnesota, has been elected President of the Minnesota Lathing and Plastering Bureau. ## Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union

January 1, 1969 to December 31, 1969

Mr. Sal Maso, General President
Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union
6530 New Hampshire Avenue
Takoma Park, Maryland
Dear Sir:

In accordance with your request we have examined the books and records of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union for the year ended December 31, 1969 and give you herewith a report of our examination including the following exhibits and schedules:

Exhibits:

- A—Statement of Condition December 31, 1969
- B—Operating Statement for year ended December 31, 1969

Schedules:

- 1—Summary of Cash Statement
- 2—Statement of Cash Receipts
- 3—Statement of Cash Disbursements
- 3A—Officers and Representatives Salaries and Expenses

Cash in bank was reconciled with statements received from the Suburban Trust Company, Hyattsville, Maryland and various other depositories where the organization has deposits in savings accounts.

Bonds owned and Stock Certificate Number 62-245 for 560 shares and Number 62-892 for 80 shares of Union Labor Life Insurance Company Stock are held for safekeeping in a safe deposit box in the Suburban Trust Company.

The net assets of your organization have increased from $1,394,159.37 on December 31, 1968 to $1,451,356.56 on December 31, 1969, an increase of $57,197.19. This net increase occurred in the various funds as follows:

	NET WORTH DECEMBER 31,		INCREASE OR (DECREASE)
	1969	1968
General Fund	$ 578,295.67	$ 604,890.84	$(26,595.17)
Organizing Fund	114,661.19	94,518.56	20,142.63
Funeral Benefit Fund	445,391.41	413,704.53	31,686.88

Legal Defense Fund	192,590.08	212,573.43	(19,983.35)
Total	$1,451,356.56	$1,394,159.37	$ 57,197.19

Inventory values were based on estimated figures determined from your records.

Since the examination was confined to receipts and disbursements, amounts due from local unions or other sources, and any unpaid bills, for services and supplies, were not considered in the compilation of this report.

In our opinion, subject to the above comments, the accompanying balance sheet and operating statement present fairly the financial position of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union at December 31, 1969 and the results of its operations for the year then ended on a cash basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

Yours very truly,

National Joint Board is Amended

Some people who oppose certain institutions bolster their arguments against those institutions with the criticism that the institution "has had to be altered." To me, this indicates exactly the opposite. A change in an institution proves that it is alive and responsive to the needs of those who use the institution. Churches change, colleges and universities change, labor unions change, and even the government of the United States, through amendments to its constitution, changes from time to time.

Therefore it does not disturb me . . . and I suggest that it not disturb anyone else . . . that there have been certain changes instituted as to the membership and operational procedures of the National Joint Board for Settlement of Jurisdictional Disputes, to which the Lathers International Union is a party.

The Joint Board, headquartered in the AFL-CIO Building in Washington, D.C., with William J. Cour as Chairman, operates to settle jurisdictional disputes in the construction industry both locally and nationally. The Building and Construction Trades Department of the AFL-CIO, consisting of 17 labor unions, and 13 participating associations of building contractors are the sponsors of the Joint Board. Labor members of the Board, appointed by the Executive Board of the Building and Construction Trades Department, include: Robert A. Georgine, one of our International Representatives; Frank X. Hanley, Operating Engineers; George King, Bricklayers and Edgar Simpson, Elevator Constructors. Union Alternates are Maurice Fancher, Laborers; James Boyle, Plasterers; James Shay, Painters and Lucky Johnson, Boilermakers. There are an equal number of representatives from management on the Board. A rotation plan is provided whereby the various trades will serve as members and alternates.

Basically, these ten changes have been made: 1—Increased membership of the Board from 4 to 8 members plus the impartial chairman. 2—Selection of members is based on their experience in four types of construction: commercial, industrial, heavy and highway, and residential. 3—Appeals Board requirements are identical with Joint Board's. 4—When a dispute arises, the Board checks for any previous decision for guidance. If none, it renders a decision on the basis of established trade practices and the practice prevailing in the locality where dispute occurred. 5—The interest of the consumer is to be considered. 6—For unusually serious and repetitive disputes, special study panels are provided. 7—Protections are established for deviations from the spirit and intent of established agreements. 8—Employers shall also make use of the mechanism to settle disputes. 9—An employer may apply for relief outside the Joint Board if a work stoppage persists more than 48 hours after parties have been notified by the Board. 10—Parties to the agreement may not serve on any board or panel if they are not in compliance with any decision of the board.

The whole purpose for the Joint Board's existence is to prevent work stoppages and subsequent loss of wages, as well as loss of profits to management. Perhaps the Joint Board is not "the perfect answer." Probably there never will be any perfect answer. But until something better comes along, all building and construction trades unions will be well-advised to make use of the Joint Board, respect its rules and abide by its decisions. The fact that the Joint Board can change should not inspire distrust. Rather, it is reassuring that it can undergo change, continue its service and, it is hoped, even improve its operation.

cover

Spectacular Canadian scenery will be seen by those who attend the 27th Convention in Vancouver which opens on August 10. More breathtaking sights will be available to those who elect to travel by auto and take the Canadian highways winding through Banff National Park. The visitors on our cover are standing on a lookout promontory where they can see Mount Rundle in the center, topped with snow. In the foreground valley far beneath them is a small city alongside a winding river. From this point one of the many chairlifts leaves to give the riders even more of a bird's eye view of the land below. From Chicago to Vancouver, the road mileage is 2,179 and from Washington, D.C. it is 2,982.

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

This office has now completed mailing credentials for delegates and alternates to the International Convention to every local union and district, state and provincial council. The covering letter sets forth all regulations relating to the issuance of such credentials and the manner in which delegates and alternates must be elected. After the subordinate organizations finish their portions of the process, it is hoped they will return the completed credentials to this office as promptly as possible so we may complete our paper work and have the credentials ready for the delegates when they reach Vancouver. Your cooperation will help assure a smooth registration operation.

It is probably safe to assume that virtually every local union will send at least one delegate, and it is to be hoped that councils will do likewise. Each delegate must realize that, when elected, he undertakes certain definite responsibilities.

Every delegate actually has two responsibilities; one in behalf of the local union members who elected him and another to the International Union as a whole, of which his local union is a part. Sometimes delegates may become confused when these two sets of responsibilities appear to them to be in conflict.

Note that I said "appear to them" to be in conflict; actually there can never be a conflict of interest between the International, which is the whole, and the local union, which is part of that whole. Consider, for example, the problem of per capita taxes. The International must collect this monthly tax from each local in a timely manner and in amounts sufficient to meet its obligations as it functions on behalf of the local unions. If there is not a strong International Union behind the local unions, employers will quickly learn to disregard the local unions; they would be simply severed arms without a body. Local union could easily be pitted against local union and, within a short time, chaos would result. Once-proud union members would soon be "working for peanuts."

So when an International Union tells the delegates at a convention that conditions require it to seek additional income or cut back its services (or even perish!), the delegate is not really faced with a problem. The welfare of his local union depends on the vigor and welfare of the International Union. You cannot organize trades on a city-wide basis, on a county-wide basis, on a state-wide basis or on a regional basis; it has to be on an international basis.

The convention delegate must, to be true to himself, to be true to his local, and to be true to his trade union organization, know and weigh all the facts. To be parochial, narrow in view, unreasonable in demands for services to be rendered yet reluctant to provide the necessary financing of those services, is not sensible. The ideal convention delegate should be an open-minded, level-headed, reasonable, well-rounded individual. He should not be one who makes up his mind ahead of time, then says: "My mind is made up . . . don't confuse me with facts!" Every local union should elect one!

Lathers and Plasterers In Niagara Push Trades

Lathers Local 51 and Plasterers Local 173, Niagara Falls, N.Y., felt that more could be done to promote lath and plaster in their jurisdictions. Working together, Business Agent of Local 51 John Whitebread and Business Agent of Plasterers Local 173 Elmer W. Bryan submitted a news item to the Niagara Falls Gazette which the newspaper published. The article, signed by Whitebread and Bryan, follows:

"With the upcoming urban renewal in the Niagara Frontier area, we feel our trades of lath and plastering on the interior and exterior of these buildings are being by-passed. The designers are substituting other material such as drywall and exposed masonry in lieu of lath and plaster.

"We are not asking for more expensive material to be used because, contrary to general belief, a complete lath and plaster job with metal studs is still more economical than any of the substitutes mentioned above.

"Please remember that lath and plaster will give you the best fire and sound rating and lowest maintenance cost for your tax dollar."

Their action was praised by General Secretary-Treasurer J. Earl Ferguson, who said: "This simple but effective action shows originality and progress. There is no reason why similar efforts could not be carried out successfully by many other local unions."

11 Percent of Apprentices Drawn from Minority Ranks

Nearly 11 percent of the new apprentices admitted to registered training programs last year—8,000 of 73,000—came from minority groups, Labor Secretary George P. Shultz reported.

The addition of new minority group apprentices brought to more than 20,000 the number of minority participants working and learning in registered programs in 1969.

The Labor Department reported that 5,100 of the 8,000 new apprentices from minority groups were enrolled through government-financed entry assistance programs.

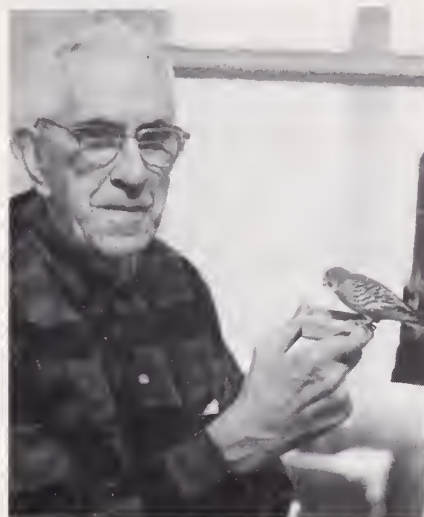

Shultz said that the 63 Apprenticeship Outreach programs accounted for 3,300 of the new apprentices; the Apprenticeship Information Centers placed 1,800, and the remainder were recruited independently by program sponsors.

About half of the minority group members registered last year were Negro. The other half was made up mostly of Spanish-speaking Americans, and about 1 percent of the total were Indians and Orientals.

One of Oldest Members Enjoys Lather Magazine

William Plamondon, Intl. No. 4411, a retired member of Local 74, Chicago, Illinois, is one of the oldest living members of the LIU. He was 87 on May 4.

Bro. Plamondon's retirement is practically worry-free because of his lather's pension, according to his daughter, Sister Aquina, who indicated that it was a fortunate circumstance "since his three children are all in God's service." Since Mrs. Plamondon passed on three years ago, Bro. Plamondon has been kept company by his trained parakeet which entertains him constantly, even eating from his spoon or plate at mealtimes.

Bro. Plamondon worked at the rebuilding of San Francisco following the 1906 earthquake and fire and worked on the 1904 exposition in St. Louis. According to Sister Aquina, he reads his monthly Lathers' magazine with great interest; possibly with more than usual this month.

Son of Business Agent To Attend A.F. Academy

Jeffrey Farrar, son of James H. Farrar, Secretary and Business Agent of Local 295, Erie, Penna., a senior at Townville High School, Cambridge Springs, has been appointed to the U.S. Air Force Academy by Congressman Joseph Vigorito.

Jeffrey Farrar

Jeffrey has been an outstanding athlete in high school, winning three letters in football, was team captain during his senior year, all-county all-star offensive and defensive tackle for two years, lettered two years in varsity basketball and was a member of the school's championship volleyball team. His other activities have included the Varsity Club, Art Club, Chess Club and Future Teachers of America.

Several colleges which had been interested in having Jeffrey attend will be disappointed by his choice of a service academy, but Mr. and Mrs. Farrar stated that their son said he felt his main interest, astronautical engineering, could best be served at the Air Force Academy.

Jeffrey's great-grandfather was Secretary of Local Union 2, Cleveland, for about 35 years. His grandfather was also a lather in Local 2, and his father was an apprentice in Local 2 before moving to the jurisdiction of Local 295. Jeffrey is at present a registered lather apprentice of Local 295 and will be on a leave of absence when he enters the Air Force Academy.

The Convention Hotel

Headquarters for the 1970 27th Convention of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union, where virtually all delegates and guests will stay and where business sessions are to be held, will be the recently-renovated Vancouver Hotel in Vancouver, B. C., Canada.

Renovation of the famous and historic hotel began in 1964 and involved every facet of its operations. Located at 900 West Georgia in the exact center of Vancouver's shopping and commercial district, the 562-room structure was completed in 1939, just in time for a welcome to King George VI and Queen Elizabeth during their memorable pre-war tour of Canada; the first of many royal guests.

Canadian National Railways appointed Hilton of Canada to operate Hotel Vancouver in 1964. The rehabilitation program saw installation of a shopping arcade with boutiques, drug store and airline offices, a drive-in entrance and a 500-car parking garage.

The Panorama Roof restaurant and lounge has been re-designed and all guests rooms refurbished. A British Columbia Ballroom, with seating for 1,200 diners, was built. Escalators have been installed between the lobby and convention floors.

Lumbering is a principal industry in British Columbia, so it was natural that there be a Timber Club, a specialty restaurant. There is also the Spanish Grill coffee shop and a Lair Lounge, all on the main floor.

Of its 562 rooms, 408 are twin-bedded, 75 have double beds, 35 are studio rooms, 32 are sample rooms and there are 25 suites. All have private bath, radio and television. There is no room charge for children, regardless of age, if they occupy the same room as their parents.

Room rates are: single $18.50 to $24 and doubles $23.50 to $29. Portable beds for additional persons may be rented at a nominal fee. Reservations may be made by writing directly to the hotel at the address above.

Although the convention is in August, a sweltering month in most parts of the United States, do not fail to take a topcoat to Vancouver. The days are pleasant but the nights, if you are not dressed properly for them, can be positively frigid. June is in the dry season; not until October does the rainy season begin. It is reasonable to presume that the convention will experience sunny to partly cloudy weather with not much chance of more than a slight amount of rain: in all probability in the evening or night. (The forgoing is a summary of "averages," not a long-term weather forecast!)

Direct service via U.S. and Canadian air lines is available, and Vancouver is served by three railway systems. Super-highways fan out in all directions.

The liquor laws are fairly generous. Packaged liquor is available

Customs Regulations On Canadian Purchases

Convention delegates and visitors will enjoy shopping in the cosmopolitan shops of Vancouver, "Gateway to the Orient."

There is a fascinating Chinatown, second-largest concentration of Chinese outside of Asia, where the selection of unusual goods and gifts is almost limitless. In addition, there are gifts and many desirable items from Europe at much lower prices than ordinarily in effect in the U.S. In addition, there are the desirable goods produced in Canada, such as wools, woods, leather goods and countless others. China, glassware, silver articles, jewelry, blankets and clothing are among the popular tourist items.

U.S. Customs exemptions allow duty-free merchandise to be brought back into this country up to $100 full retail value. You may save yourself time and trouble by having your sales receipts handy at the border. In addition, unsolicited gifts may be shipped back into the U.S. to the value of $10 per recipient in any one day. Family members can pool their total exemptions and one member can make the declaration for all.

Visitors who return to the U.S. by plane will be able to do last-minute shopping at the Duty Free Shop at the airport. Such items are offered as French perfumes, Swiss watches, Belgian gems and jewelry, Danish and German silver, and many others.

from government-operated stores, a number of which remain open until 1 a.m. Liquor by the drink is available in the Hotel Vancouver and in other outlets. Hours of sale stop at 12 midnight in hotels and at 2 a.m. in nightclubs. There are no alcoholic beverages sold anywhere in British Columbia on Sunday.

The nightclubs attract top talent from all over, particularly from Hollywood and Las Vegas in the summertime. There is a fine Symphony and Opera Association and a year-round selection of all the performing arts.

There are road shows, repertory theater and ballet performances in the Queen Elizabeth Theater. At the Agrodome and Pacific Coliseum there are athletic and sports events such as ice hockey, lacrosse and wrestling. At Empire Stadium there is pro football in season and horse racing at Exhibition Park.

How difficult is it to get across the boundary into Canada? Not much more difficult than going through the Lincoln Tunnel and it costs less. It actually costs nothing, no inoculations are required and no passport is required. You should have some type of personal identification such as a birth, baptismal or voter's certificate or an old passport. Motorists may be called upon to produce their auto registration and/or driver's license. Naturalized U.S. or Canadian citizens should carry their citizenship papers. Citizens of other nations should have their alien registration cards with them.

For those who go by automobile, most road regulations, signals and signs are the same as in the U.S. If you are involved in an auto accident in Canada resulting in aggregate damages in excess of $250, personal injury or death, and you have a valid motor vehicle liability insurance policy with minimums of $25,000, you can continue your trip as soon as your insurance company can confirm the validity of your policy. However, if you obtain in advance, a British Columbia Motor Vehicle Liability Insurance Card (non-resident), you would save yourself time and inconvenience in the event of an accident. Contact your insurance representative for details on the non-resident liability insurance card.

Vancouver is a city of contrasts. Top photo shows Twin Peaks, "The Lions" which overlook the city and atop which delegates may be able to see remaining traces of snow. Bottom photo shows English Bay, just minutes away from the convention hotel. Warm summer sun is also in contrast to waters cooled by snows melting from the mountaintops.

Statement by Pres. Nixon on Housing Crisis Draws Mixed Reactions from Organized Labor

The lengthy statement by President Nixon on "combatting construction inflation and meeting future construction needs" drew a mixed reaction from the AFL-CIO Building & Construction Trades Department.

There are some points "with which we heartily concur and others which we strongly believe are based on erroneous assumptions and ignore basic facts of the time," BCTD President C. J. Haggerty declared.

One Nixon point with which Haggerty took sharp issue was a contention that there is a "shortage of skilled labor" in the construction industry.

"The fact is that the federal government's own figures for February show a 7.9 percent unemployment rate among construction workers, more than 486,000 of whom presently are jobless, Haggerty said.

Nixon acknowledged that the nation is in a housing "crisis," with housing starts dwindling and new homes being priced beyond the reach of lower and middle income families.

He then outlined a series of long-range proposals to bring more money, skilled manpower and improved management techniques into construction, particularly to meet housing needs.

The President announced the freeing of $1.5 billion in state and federal funds for public construction that had been frozen last year, as well as withdrawal of a request to governors to postpone state-financed construction voluntarily.

He did not, however, release a freeze on $1.8 billion worth of purely federal construction projects. Budget Director Robert P. Mayo said Nixon wanted "to take one thing at a time."

The President called for doubling of the production of subsidized housing from 223,600 units in 1969 to more than 450,000 units in 1970, and he proposed authority for the Federal National Mortgage Association to deal in conventional as well as FHA and VA mortgages.

He urged Congress to pass his proposals to authorize the Federal Home Loan Bank System to create a secondary market for conventional mortgages and allow it to subsidize borrowing by savings and loan associations as a means of expanding mortgage loans.

Much of the statement dealt with directives going to agencies of the federal government, particularly in carrying out programs to develop jobs and skills in construction.

The Secretary of Labor was instructed to prepare a plan within 60 days to expand present enrollment in the Labor Department's construction training programs by 50 percent and to accelerate this pace over the next five years.

C. J. HAGGERTY
BCTD President

The Labor Department was directed to make a six-month study on apprenticeship programs in construction and recommend ways for expansion. The Secretaries of Labor and Health, Education & Welfare were also asked to expand veterans' training programs in construction.

The heads of all federal agencies were asked to include a clause in all federal construction contracts to require maximum permissible employment of apprentices or trainees on projects, with 25 percent of them being in their first year of training.

In another area, Nixon called for timing federal construction contracts to spread out work and eliminate seasonally in the industry that leads to periodic layoffs of workers.

In the area of equal employment, the President directed the Labor Department to encourage and assist communities in developing "home-town" solutions to the need for hiring minority group workers in the construction industry.

Haggerty expressed satisfaction in the proposals for correcting the seasonality problem, noting that the building trades have long pressed for such measures.

He also said the department is pleased to note the emphasis on cities adopting their own programs for hiring minority workers in construction. Unions have been instrumental in working out such programs in Chicago and Pittsburgh.

Haggerty said his department will "carefully study" the President's recommendations on apprentices and trainees. In the meantime, he cited two ways in which unions are helping to increase the volume of housing.

One, by negotiating agreements with contractors to provide new low-cost production techniques and training programs. Two, by investing pension and welfare funds in home financing through the AFL-CIO's Mortgage Investment Fund.

"We are ready, willing and anxious to move forward in building the housing that is needed by Americans," Haggerty concluded. "Not only do new homes improve the quality of all American life but it is our craftsmen who will be doing the building and our members who now live in homes so badly in need of replacement."

Act on National Health Insurance, AFL-CIO Says

Declaring that "every American is entitled to comprehensive quality health care," the AFL-CIO has called on Congress to act on national health insurance legislation.

The federation's Executive Council outlined a six-point guideline for national health insurance and strongly endorsed the bill introduced by Rep. Martha W. Griffiths (D-Mich.).

The Executive Council proposed these criteria for the program, which are incorporated in the Griffiths bill:

1. "Every man, woman and child in the nation—rich or poor, working or unemployed, old or young—should be eligible for the complete range of services.

2. "Benefits should be comprehensive, including preventive, outpatient, inpatient, and rehabilitative care in every appropriate setting. These inclusive benefits would permit the physician to select the exact type of treatment appropriate for the patient's need regardless of cost factors.

3. "The program should be financed like social security with payments by employees at about the presently scheduled Medicare rate, with the federal government and employers splitting the remaining payroll cost. The self-employed would also contribute. The program would absorb Medicare and Medicaid. For the first time we would have equal rights to health care regardless of income.

Solo practitioners could contract to provide services on the same per capita basis as medical societies or groups. However, doctors who accepted payment on a capitation basis or were members of groups, would be substantially free of all paper work. They could devote their attention to the prevention and treatment of illness.

6. "The program should have as one of its principal aims improving the organization and delivery of health care. Therefore, financial assistance should be provided for planning, development and initial staffing of comprehensive health delivery systems."

Living Costs Going Up $500 Every Year

A city family with two children needed an annual income of $10,077 in the spring of 1969 just to maintain a "moderate standard of living," according to a Labor Department survey.

That's $1,000-a-year more than it would have cost two years earlier, in the spring of 1967.

Today, the family's income needs would be even higher, the Bureau of Labor Statistics notes. Merely taking into account the rise in the cost-of-living to last November would raise the "moderate" budget for a family of four to $10,300. And in some of the biggest cities, the budget cost would be above the $11,000 mark.

Even a bare-bones "lower standard of living" would have required an income of $6,567 as of last spring—and $6,700 as of last November. The comparable budget was priced at $5,915 in the spring of 1967.

For a higher standard of living—still well below luxury levels—the family with two children needed an income of $14,589 last spring and $15,000 as of last November. The comparable budget in the spring of 1967 was priced at $13,050.

Even the lowest of the three budgets requires more money than most American workers earn.

The latest government statistics put the average weekly earnings of production and other nonsupervisory workers in private industry at $117.25 a week.

So even if the average rank-and-file employee worked a full 52 weeks, his annual earnings would be only $6,097. Unless there was another wage-earner in the family or a second job, a family at this level would be more than $600 short of the amount needed for a low-income budget as of last November.

This is a budget which the Labor Department earlier described as "austere."

Its middle-level budget—requiring an income of some $4,200 more than the average wage—is generally described as providing "a modest but adequate standard of living."

The family used as the model for the three budgets consists of an employed husband aged 38, a wife not employed outside the home, an 8-year-old girl and a 13-year-old boy.

Over the two-year period from the spring of 1967 to the spring of 1969, the survey showed that consumption costs—which include most non-tax items—rose 8.3 percent for the moderate budget and personal taxes were up 11.7 percent.

Lower-income families had to spend a larger percentage of their earnings on medical care—8 percent of the lower budget as compared with 5.5 percent of the moderate budget and 4 percent of the higher budget.

REP. MARTHA GRIFFITHS
Introduced Health Bill

4. "The national health insurance program should contract for all medical services on a prepayment basis. Eligible contractors would include medical and dental societies, hospitals, groups of primary physicians and multi-specialty groups. All would be paid on a per capita basis but how each contractor distributed the funds it received to individual doctors would be strictly an internal matter.

5. "National health insurance should enhance, not contract, the freedoms of patients and doctors alike. Patients should have free choice of physician and free choice of health delivery systems. Physicians should not have to practice within the system if they could find patients outside it. But if they did choose to participate—and this council is convinced that the overwhelming majority would—there would be no interference whatsoever with the clinical practice of medicine.

Quite a Catch!

The fishing is generally good in the waters around Vancouver, B.C., site of the upcoming 27th International Convention. Some who do the fishing ain't bad, either.

Round Theater Gives Local 9 Unusual Job

An unusual job of lathing was recently completed by members of Local Union 9, Washington, D.C., for the Arena Stage. The work was done by A & P Lathing and Plastering Contracting Co.

The Arena Stage, at Sixth and Maine Avenue, S.W., is a popular attraction in the Nation's Capital for legitimate theater. In order to modernize the facilities, the recent job of remodeling the entranceway was undertaken. Since the audience is in seats totally surrounding the stage and the building itself is round, there are few straight lines to work from and virtually all lathing was curved in nature.

Picture 1 shows the entrance to the main lobby ceiling, suspended with  $1\frac{1}{2}$  carriers and  $\frac{3}{4}$  furring on No. 8 hanger wire.

Picture 2 shows John Stebbing of Local 9 clipping rock lath on  $\frac{3}{4}$  channels. Those in the photo include Stebbing, Joe Thomas, apprentice; Business Agent G. C. "Buck" Carter, Bruce Swift, a member of the lathing firm and foreman lather James Thomas.

Picture 3 shows a light trough constructed of  $\frac{3}{4}$  channels and metal lath on a 90 degree radius.

Capital's Union Station Will Be Visitors' Center

Construction is expected to start this summer on plans to turn Union Station, a landmark in Washington, D.C., close to the capitol building, into a National Visitors' Center.

The proposal to transform the building, constructed in 1907, has been in the works for more than two years. The Washington architectural firm of Walton, Madden, Cooper and Aurbach is designing renovation of the building, construction of a 5,000-car garage and a bus terminal over the railroad tracks. The structure will also continue its function as a rail terminal. Theaters, lounges, restaurants and retail shops are also planned. A sports arena has also been proposed but the proposal has not, thus far, received congressional approval. The basic plan, which authorized the Department of the

Interior to assist in the establishment of the center, was approved by Congress in March, 1963. It is expected the renovation and construction of the 18-acre property will cost in the vicinity of $16 million. The finished structure will be leased by the railroads which own it to the government for an initial period of 25 years with operation by the Interior Department's National Parks Service.

A hotel chain is also considering construction, in the immediate vicinity, of a $15 million, 14-story hotel. Building restrictions in the area restrict heights to 90 feet but a variance is expected.

Building Trades Lauded for Commitment to Housing Progress

Building trades unions are committed to helping low-income families obtain adequate housing and also to advancing modern home building techniques, an article in the 1969 Housing Yearbook points out.

The writer, Boris Shishkin, is secretary of the AFL-CIO Housing Committee and a director of the National Housing Conference, publisher of the yearbook.

The record, Shishkin declares, shows that the building trades were a "prime mover" in helping secure low-rent public housing 35 years ago and have since backed "every policy and plan to enhance the housing opportunities for the less fortunate."

Noting that AFL-CIO affiliates were sponsoring some 230 housing projects for low-income families by mid-1969, Shishkin adds, "National and international unions in the building trades and local building trades councils have played a prominent part in sponsoring such projects."

Regarding new construction techniques, Shishkin cites numerous examples of building trades unions and councils entering into agreements covering prefabricated housing.

He also cites a 1967 survey of prefabrication made by Battelle Memorial Institute of Columbus, O., which was financed by the AFL-CIO Building & Construction Trades Dept., to help unions develop "informed and reasonable approaches to problems raised by this new technology."

Arkansas Lath Bureau Holds Membership, Board Meets

The annual General Membership Meeting of the Arkansas Bureau for Lathing & Plastering was held at the Coachmans Inn at Little Rock on Feb. 7th, with good attendance.

Those who failed to attend missed an excellent opportunity to learn first hand the general operation of the Bureau.

The annual meeting of the Arkansas Bureau for Lathing & Plastering Board of Governors was held at the same time and place.

Building Inspector Sees Perforated Lath as 'Seconds' on Construction!

A building inspector on a library construction site challenged the contractor as to why he was using "seconds" on the job, pointing to the perforated lath being applied to interior framing.

This actual case was cited by "Trowel Chatter," a news letter circulated by the Plaster Information Center, San Jose, California.

The inspector said he could tell the material was "seconds" because he could see the holes in it. "Besides," he commented, "the use of such small pieces of wallboard just indicates to me that you are using scraps taken from some other jobs."

Before the inspector departed however, he had learned that perforated gypsum lath is still used and, because it does not come up to measurements of wallboard, makes it no less practicable as a sound building material.

The Plaster Information Center declared that it will soon be communicating with various jurisdictions concerning seminars to keep building officials informed on the latest industry developments and procedures.

As the paper said, "nobody knows everything!"

'Cohesive Social Policy' For Nation Being Urged by CLC; Members Asked to Take Part

Canadian unionists are being asked to help move the government to establish a cohesive social policy for the nation by the Canadian Labour Congress.

The program, launched last month, will call on all organizations affiliated with the CLC to make social legislation a subject of discussion at meetings.

Members have been urged to sign and send postcards to Health Minister Munro seeking "A review of the entire system of social security to determine its adequacy as to coverage, benefits and allocation of costs" as well as the need for effective integration. The cards will also voice support for "an adequate guaranteed minimum income for all Canadians."

"What has been attained in the field of social legislation in Canada is proof of what can be done," CLC President Donald MacDonald said. "Unfortunately, social legislation in this country has grown in a somewhat haphazard manner and there is now a very obvious need for a thorough review and consideration of methods of developing better integration and a more cohesive program.

"We are not looking for what the Prime Minister has flippantly referred to as 'this free stuff'. The facts clearly show that Canadian workers are already paying more than their fair share of social costs, paying in advance for services to be rendered. The working people are quite prepared to pay on a reasonable basis; but at the same time they expect to get full value for their money and there is some doubt as to whether this situation now prevails.

"We recognize that this is a subject in which the labour movement by no means has an exclusive interest. Part of our program on a social policy for Canada will be encouragement to our affiliates to work with other organizations and to enlist general public support."

Hazardous products sold in Canada after June 1, 1971, must carry warnings of three degrees of danger from four perils: poison, flammable, explosive and corrosive. The degrees are: caution, warning and danger. The 12 symbols are shown in the accompanying illustration.

Warning statements and basic first aid instructions will also be required, both in English and French. The government has recognized that, while many consumer products are useful and necessary, they may also be hazardous. The regulations make it simple for consumers to recognize any hazards and use the products

The fullest effect of the new regulation will be experienced after the public, particularly children now in school, are educated to the symbols and instinctively grasp the significance of the symbols denoting degree and type of danger.

Recession May Be In Future, CLC Declares

The likelihood of a recession has become Canada's number one economic problem and continued pursuit of the government's prices and incomes policy will make it even more acute, the Canadian Labour Congress has declared. Not only was the program of the Prices and Incomes Commission ineffective and likely to introduce serious inequities, but it could have serious detrimental effects in future months.

The CLC devoted a major part of its 15,000-word memorandum addressed to the federal government to economic matters. Other sections dealt with various other topics of concern to the organization's 1,650,000 members, ranging from social programs to international affairs.

"We are deeply concerned with the kind of policies which your government is pursuing for the purpose of combatting inflation," the memorandum said. "We are fearful that these policies, which were put into effect last year, will aggravate and prolong the unemployment problem this year and beyond, and at the same time have only a negligible effect on the overall price problem in Canada."

CLC Raps Government Policies on Housing, Suggests Lifting Sales Tax on Materials

An increasing number of Canadian families are being forced to allocate dangerously high proportions of their incomes to rent, the Canadian Labour Congress has said in a submission to the federal government. An estimate placed the number of additional housing units needed by 1979 at 2,500,000—an increase of 1,000,000 over those built in the 1960s.

While housing starts in 1969 reached the 200,000 mark for the first time, the fact remained that "tens of thousands of Canadians who were badly housed a year ago are still badly housed today."

"During the past year we have even been told that there is indeed no housing shortage in Canada and that what we face is instead a shortage of money," the CLC said. "If this comment is intended to mean that the Canadian society must soon contemplate measures aimed at a drastic redistribution of incomes, we support it. But if, as we suspect, it is a rebuke to those who cannot afford to buy or rent available housing, then we denounce it as extreme arrogance. The great majority of Canadian families already find themselves priced out of the market for single family homes, and in the major cities the single-detached dwelling appears to be becoming a thing of the past. At the same time an increasing number of families are being forced to allocate dangerously high portions of their incomes to rent."

Support was expressed for the steps taken toward new low-rental housing projects in co-operation with the provinces which needed to be expanded on a vast scale.

The government was criticized for its "reliance upon the private building industry and private money lenders," particularly at a time when investment dollars were being mainly allocated to industrial and commercial development. The private construction industry, even with the present level of federal and provincial participation, was not equal to the task.

The Congress renewed its request that sales taxes be removed from building materials and suggested that the taxation of profits from the sale of land would curb speculation and mark a major step toward a just taxation system. Increased support was urged for co-operative housing projects.

Canada is Top Aluminum Producer

Canada's Alcan Aluminum Limited, Montreal, is the world's largest producer of the metal. With affiliated companies, it had an output in 1966 of 1,074,500 tons. Its principal subsidiary, Aluminum Co. of Canada, owns the world's largest smelter, at Arvida, Quebec.

Recently, the industry public relations trustees Sam Churchwell, Joseph Vittone, Al Gonzales of the Plasterers Local Union; George Puthuff, Nick Parara, and Harry Phelps of the Lathers Local Union; Bob Spottswood, Russ Barcelona, and Pete Guerra of the Hod Carriers Local Union, approved lease of a harbor blue van for "instant" technical service. When a request comes in for technical data on any phase of lath and plaster construction, Plaster Information Center's Technical Service Van responds.

There are scale mockups of walls, partitions and ceilings. The van even has its "traveling picture show." Through a unique converter arrangement, a self-contained projector with continuous loop cartridges shows pictorially with a sound track exactly how walls, partitions, ceilings, and fireproofing are installed.

COPE, the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education, is non-partisan. COPE will not support any legislator or candidate for public office simply because he is a Democrat or because he is a Republican. COPE assesses the acceptability of legislators solely on the basis of their achievements and, in the case of candidates, on the basis of what their platforms and course records are, not on party labels.

COPE exists to help elect liberal candidates and return liberal legislators to office. COPE wants to help legislators who want to help people . . . rather than legislators who want to feather their own nests by helping Big Business and other special interests.

We in the LIU and the spokesmen for COPE have been telling you, the rank and file members who have the votes and the dollars necessary to elect liberal legislators, that it all depends on you. If you don't come through with the necessary financial contributions . . . and follow up with casting your votes on election day . . . The People are going to lose the election next November 3 and the Special Interests are going to win.

Then you will see what The Reactionaries do to you when they get in control! There will be a spate of anti-labor legislation. The social gains achieved through long years of patient legislative effort will be rolled back. Legislation will go through to put the tax burden primarily on the backs of the working men and women, and new loopholes for corporations and rich people will be designed by their willing legislative lackeys.

Liberal congressmen and senators must be elected (and re-elected) in order to maintain the liberal complexion of Congress. More state houses must have their reactionaries booted out.

This has come down to a contest between political managers. The conservatives combed the record sheets to see where liberal candidates ran weakest. They have concentrated their efforts on them. The liberal Senator Ralph Yarborough of Texas has already fallen victim to the conservative coalition. He was defeated by a millionaire conservative in the Texas primary election. Other liberals who are the special targets of the reactionaries include Senators Vance Hartke of Indiana, Howard Cannon of Nevada, Joseph Montoya of New Mexico, Quentin Burdick of North Dakota, Albert Gore of Tennessee, Frank Moss of Utah, William Proxmire of Wisconsin and Gale McGee of Wyoming. They all face severe contests for re-election this year. In the House of Representatives the reactionary forces and their political ferrets have tracked down liberal congressmen in 80 marginal districts where stiff political battles will be waged. The prize in this contest: control of Congress.

The present Congress is almost exactly balanced with liberals and conservatives. The election next November is going to be a crucial one. Don't feel that there's nothing you can do because there is. You may not "set the world on fire" doing it, but with millions of little efforts like the ones you personally can make, the liberal cause can show a lot of light. Do these three things: give generously to COPE, learn what the candidates stand for, and cast your vote, along with every vote in your family, for every liberal you can find on the ballot. Your living may well depend on it!

Canadians, proud of their beautiful mountain scenery, soon discovered that many tourists from "South of The Line" would travel northward to view it. Especially in the summertime, when cool breezes blow around snow-capped peaks, do visitors flock northward to escape the heat. Thus it is that many a lift originally built to haul ski enthusiasts in the winter now receives more patronage in the summertime. The lift on our cover is the one at Jasper National Park going up Whistlers Mountain, but there is another right outside Vancouver on Grouse Mountain boasting a spectacular view which will be available to convention delegates and guests.

Don't Abandon Residential Work!

The time is not here yet (but it will come), when the demand for housing will be so excessive that something will absolutely have to be done. The unmet demands of millions of people will not be permanently stopped by the inaction of legislators and the greed of mortgage merchants. Two million dwellings a year should now be being built in order to supply the continuing demand for housing. Every day which goes by without that quota being met will make it that much worse in the end.

Now is the time for every local union, through its appointed and elected officers, to prepare for this demand. There may even be a depression ahead, but with your union to safeguard your interests, you will be in a better position to weather it than those without such union protection. The one factor which can hurt you is to allow wallboard to take a preferential position over lath and plaster.

What will it require? It will take more than a publicity campaign, although that, too, is important. There must be contractors who want and will go after the residential lath and plaster business. All too often the residential field is "conceded" to wallboard, and the commercial field alone is the goal of the lathing and plastering contractor. Lath and plaster CAN compete on a financial basis with wallboard if the contractor is realistic in his bidding and his employees turn in creditable performances with their skills.

There may be technological improvements ahead which will make it more possible for more people to have lath and plaster in their homes. Certainly there are technologies in everyday use today which were undreamed of fifty years ago.

Leaders in some Lathers local unions may find it necessary to encourage local lathing and plastering contractors to cooperate in promoting the trade, especially where there is enough non-residential work to keep the contractors busy. Residential work must not be lost by default. Contractors' associations and local unions must cooperate in promotion programs, and if it requires the local unions to initiate the program, it is well worth the effort. When the pace of building slows it will be too late to begin a program designed to obtain the walls and ceilings of residences!

If inflation is brought to a halt and the opposite, a depression, ensues, there will be an immediate cutback in commercial and industrial building. But while there may be a slowdown in residential housing, while there may be a reduction in wages, while there may be a narrower profit margin . . . residences will have to be built in bad times as well as in good.

All these factors reinforce the position that lathers and plasterers should not abandon continual efforts to capture as much of the residential building field as possible. We know we have a superior, preferred product. What we must do is sell the consumer on this point, keep competitive with other types of wall treatments, and continue efforts to increase productivity.

Building Trades Hold Legislative Conference, Point to Unemployment

"In the midst of this runaway inflation we are going into a most widespread recession with the accompanying tragedy of severe unemployment," declared C. J. Haggerty, president of the Building and Construction Trades Department of the AFL-CIO as he opened the 15th Legislative Conference of the department in Washington, D.C.

More than 3,000 delegates heard Haggerty point out that there are currently about 500,000 building tradesmen out of work, an unemployment rate in the trade of about 9 percent. He pointed out that the impact will certainly be felt by producers and suppliers of building materials.

Speaking of the department's legislative goals, Haggerty said: "We have never approached legislation solely on the basis of what it meant to us as building tradesmen. Our concern has always been for the building of America, physically, socially and democratically. So that all persons, regardless of start, have a chance to finish first. So that all persons would have a share in what our country has to offer. So that no one would be homeless, hungry, penniless or without basic education. So that every person could achieve dignity and his rightful place in our society.

That is exactly what we still stand for."

The Lathers International Union was represented at the legislative conference by a delegation of approximately 50 from all over the nation headed by Pres. Maso and Secretary-Treasurer Ferguson. The members of the delegation were guests of the International at a luncheon in the Mayflower Hotel.

During their stay in Washington, the Lathers and delegations from other building trades called on their congressional delegations, urging passage of desirable legislation to assist in getting housing construction underway and other needed legislation.

Seeing Canada from A Chairlift

Many of the delegates to the 1970 convention in Vancouver will doubtless take the opportunity to enjoy a thrilling "aerial ride" in the chair lift on Grouse Mountain just outside the city.

A twin-seat chairlift provides a smooth 25-minute glide to the top of the mountain. The view from the peak is one of nature's most spectacular, with Vancouver's vast harbor, the entire city and the Fraser River Delta spread below. Vancouver Island rises to the west, the Coast Mountains to the east and Mount Baker and the snow-capped Olympics to the south. The best time to go on the lift is in the late afternoon so the return can be made after dusk when the myriads of lights go on below.

Buses leave downtown Vancouver every hour to connect with the lift. There are actually two lifts; one 5,169 feet long and the other 3,600 feet. You change chairs where the lifts meet. The combined vertical rise is 2,400 feet.

There is a charming chalet on top of Grouse Mountain for dancing and dining, and you can sit on the terrace and watch the lights flick on all over Vancouver far below you. It is a popular spot on Friday and Saturday night and reservations are a "must" to avoid disappointment. The lift continues in operation until 1 a.m. on weekends. Visitors who find themselves on Grouse Mountain on a clear moonlight night are due for a special thrill with mountain peaks shining silver against the sky and the city is a jeweled panorama of lights duplicated in the waters of the harbor.

For those who can "stretch" their time in Canada, there are other equally attractive "sky rides." The million-dollar Sky Tram in Jasper National Park is the nation's newest. It includes two 30-passenger cabins which climb the face of Whistler's Mountain on steel track cables at 18 miles an hour.

Near Banff, Alberta, the Sulphur Mountain Gondola Lift is in operation every day from May 1 to October 31 from 9 a.m. to dusk. This is the only gondola lift in North America, patterned after an idea developed in Switzerland.

Not far from Lake Louise, also in

Crossing Into Canada

There is very little "red tape" involved in crossing the international boundary into Canada. In most instances visitors to Canada are passed through with only perfunctory questions such as "Where were you born?" No passport or official document is required. However, it is a good idea to have some official personal identification with you. Such identifications may be a birth, baptismal or voter's certificate. Motorists may be called upon to produce auto registration and/or driver's license. Naturalized U.S. citizens or Canadian citizens should have their citizenship papers. Citizens of other nations should have their alien registration papers with them.

J. Earl Ferguson
Secretary-Treasurer

Banff National Park, there is the Whitehorn Sedan Lift which glides up a two-mile run in 20 minutes at an average height of 25 feet above the ground. Every passenger gets a beautiful panoramic view, including fabled Lake Louise and the surrounding mountain peaks.

Another popular lift in Banff is the Mount Norquay chairlift. The sensation of a ride in a chairlift is something like a combination of an old-fashioned ferris wheel and a ride through space . . . without a space capsule. Like many lifts, this one has a teahouse at the top.

In many parts of Canada, chairlifts which were originally built for winter skiers are keeping equally busy in summer months because of the tourist boom. On Enchanted Mountain near Georgian Bay, steady streams of visitors ride up 1,000 feet to a mountain-top garden of sculpture. In the Laurentian Mountains north of Montreal, summer visitors ride up for a summertime look at where they had been skiing last winter. At Mount Oxford in the Eastern Townships of Quebec, the double chairlift of 5,500 feet has a vertical rise of 1,600 feet. It attracts almost as many riders in the summer as it does at the peak of the ski season.

Many delegates may seize this opportunity to "See Canada," either with or without benefit of a sky lift. If any reader desires additional information on vacation possibilities in Canada, the Canadian Government Travel Bureau, Ottawa, Canada, will promptly answer all inquiries. Specify where you want to go and the preliminary plans you have made. You will get a prompt reply from the travel service.

You may also get full service from any travel agency in your vicinity. Services of a travel agency are at no cost to the traveller, including reservations, purchasing tickets, hotel accommodations reservations, etc.

Liquors from Canada

Canadian liquor is highly prized by many in this country. Sometimes certain whiskey is much cheaper in Canada than in the U.S. but sometimes some whiskeys actually cost more there than here because of high provincial taxes.

The careful buyer will price Canadian whiskeys here before leaving, since it is not much worth while to carry a bottle of whiskey perhaps 2,000 miles and find out you have saved a whole 25 or 30 cents.

As far as U.S. Customs regulations are concerned, here are the facts: each person who remains in Canada for a minimum of 48 hours is allowed to bring back one quart of grain spirits (whiskey and similar liquids) wholly tax-free. Every person can, in addition, bring back three more quarts for a total of one gallon. But the internal revenue tax and the customs duty must be paid on the three quarts. This will amount to approximately $8.63 for the three quarts (the customs duty varies slightly for various types of liquors.) Every adult can bring back his or her quota: children don't count alcoholwise. There are certain limitations on how much can be brought back by citizens of several states. If you want to bring back more than a gallon, don't even try. You would have to obtain an importer's license and none are currently being granted according to a Customs spokesman.

You may take only one quart of whiskey into Canada (and some who set great store by good bourbon regularly do this) and Canada will not allow you to take in more even by paying duty. They will, however, hold it for you and you can pick it up on your way out.

You may take into Canada no more than one carton of U.S. cigarettes. Here again the Canadian customs will hold your excess cigarettes for you until you exit. Popular American brands of cigarettes are available in Vancouver, although at considerably higher prices.

Vancouver's "Chinatown" is the second-largest Chinese community in North America. Visitors enjoy world-famous cuisine and shop for unusual gifts.

Secretary of Labor Praises Agreement To Amend Jurisdictional Disputes Plan

Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz has praised the Building and Construction Trades Department, AFL-CIO, and the national Participating Contractors Employers' Associations for their new agreement for settling costly jurisdictional disputes.

The two parties recently completed negotiations for amending the plan under which the 22-year-old National Joint Board settles jurisdictional disputes in the construction industry.

The National Joint Board is a home-grown solution for the amicable settlement of labor problems in the building and construction industry which would otherwise over-tax the facilities of the National Labor Relations Board and the Federal courts. Although it is privately financed by parties to the agreement, the facilities of the National Joint Board are available without charge to all contractors dealing with organized labor in the building and construction industry.

At the signing ceremony, Sec. Shultz said: "I am gratified to participate in an occasion that symbolizes this assumption of private responsibility by labor and management in the nation's vital building and construction industry. By not only continuing but revitalizing the 22-year-old National Joint Board, the parties have strengthened the construction industry's machinery for dealing with these troublesome and costly disputes.

"Significantly, the agreement broadens Board representation by various segments of the industry, provides procedures for handling the most serious and recurring disputes and specifically considers consumer interests along with the interests of workers and employers."

A brief description of the major changes in the operation of the Joint Board was contained in President Maso's article on the inside front cover of the May issue.

BNA Research Reveals Union Wage Gains Up

Union-negotiated wage increases continue to set new records, with the median settlement climbing a full cent in the first three months of 1970 to 22.7 cents an hour, according to a study by The Bureau of National Affairs, Inc. (BNA), Washington-based publisher of labor information.

Compared to a year earlier, the first quarter settlement reflected a step-up of 2.9 cents an hour. The study is based on an analysis of more than 500 agreements, each covering 50 workers or more.

Among manufacturing settlements alone, the median wage gain in the first quarter was 21.2 cents an hour, up 2.3 cents from the first quarter of 1969. Nonmanufacturing agreements provided a median gain of 26.3 cents, 1.6 cents above the opening quarter of 1969.

High Court to Consider Federal No-Strike Oath

The Supreme Court has agreed to take another look at a law requiring federal employees to swear that they will not assert the right to strike.

The court consented, at the request of the Justice Department, to review a District of Columbia federal court ruling that the law is unconstitutional.

That decision came from Senior Circuit Judge Charles Fahy and District Judges Howard F. Corcoran and Gerhard A. Gesell. They agreed with the National Association of Letter Carriers, who sued the Post Office Department, that those portions of the law prohibiting employees from asserting the right to strike, or membership in a union that asserts the right to strike, are unconstitutional.

The judges ruled that the oath, required of government employees as a condition of employment, could have a "chilling" effect on the rights of free speech and petition due all citizens under the constitution.

The law bars from federal employment anyone who asserts the right to strike, who is a member of a union which asserts such a right, or who participates in a strike against the government. The Letter Carriers, for the purposes of the lawsuit, concede that Congress may prohibit government employees from striking but challenge the other two points.

In suing, the union said it supports the "right of postal employees, along with other federal employees, to strike." The Justice Department defended the law and the oath on the ground that they were aimed, not against asserting the right to strike, but against "overt action" in a strike.

The suit was filed before the recent postal walkouts for higher wages.

Labor Secretary George P. Shultz (center) presents C. J. Haggerty, President of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department, with a pen he used to sign the amended plan for settling jurisdictional disputes in the construction industry. At left is James E. Swan, Secretary-Treasurer of the National Electrical Contractors Association, who represented the Participating Contractors Employers' Association in signing the agreement. Mr. Swan also received a pen used for signing agreements which altered the National Joint Board for Settlement of Jurisdictional Disputes.

F. J. Duphiney, Jr., #44122 vs Local 286 — Brother Duphiney appealed against the action of Local 286 in fining him $80 for violation of Local 286's Constitution and By-Laws, "Working with

L.U. 6 Member's Daughter Has Vassar Scholarship

Nina Feldman, daughter of Fred Feldman, member of Local 6, Nassau-Suffolk Counties, New York, and grand-niece of Nathan Wasserman, Secretary-Treasurer of the local, is attending Vassar College on a scholarship granted by Local 46, New York City.

Nina Feldman

Nina was graduated from Sanford Calhoun High School, Merrick, N.Y., last June. There she was a member of the National Honor Society, President of the Drama Society, active on the school newspaper, the French Club and the Debate Society. She received a National Merit Scholarship Letter of Commendation and was a New York State Regents Scholarship winner. This year she was elected the Vice President of the Freshman Class of Vassar.

Her grades are remaining high in college where she is particularly interested in psychology and anthropology. She also sings in the Glee Club. Her twin brother, David, is currently attending Wesleyan University in Connecticut where his high grades placed him on the Dean's List.

Philadelphia Plan Found Falling Short of Results

Pretty much as organized labor predicted, the Philadelphia Plan, ballyhooed by the Nixon Administration as a major way to give construction jobs to members of minority groups, isn't producing the expected results.

Benjamin Stavely, head of the Philadelphia Compliance Office of the U. S. Labor Department, has told newspapers that, while the records are not all complete, "there is just no question: compliance is lagging."

Stavely noted that, while extensive work has been done on nine Federal construction contracts in the city, full reports on the number of minority workers hired are not in. "We are taking steps now to determine what is wrong and to do something about the situation, such as get the Federal agencies involved to get after the contractors."—PAI

Boycott Lifted As Butchers Win Strike

A settlement of the 7½-month strike against Iowa Beef Processors, Inc., at Dakota City, Nebraska, has been announced by the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, AFL-CIO. Union negotiators estimate the wage and benefit package at more than $1 an hour. The boycott against the firm's products has been lifted.

Secretary-Treasurer Patrick E. Gorman and President Thomas J. Lloyd said the settlement represents a substantial advance over the company's pre-strike offer. The company had offered 30 cents an hour in wages. The settlement brings increases of 58 cents immediately, with additional 15-cent increases in 1971 and 1972. There is also a cost-of-living clause.

Gorman and Lloyd said the strike settlement was an achievement of labor solidarity.

"One of the most heartening things about the strike," Gorman and Lloyd said, "was the dramatic demonstration of support these gallant workers received from their fellow unionists."

The benefit package includes, for the first time, a substantial company contribution to a sick-pay program. Improvements in hospitalization coverage were also made. Tool and clothing allowances were increased.

What every worker should know about DRUG ABUSE

Not long ago, the American who used drugs was viewed as a hopeless outcast existing in the shadows of the criminal world. Drug addiction was considered a disease of the big-city slums. The person who became "hooked" on heroin never worked, lived only for his habit, and spent much of his life in jail.

Today, millions of men, women and youth are taking illegal drugs or abusing drugs prescribed only for medical purposes. People of all ages, and from all social classes are using a variety of drugs. Drugs are found in the suburbs, among the middle and upper classes, along high school corridors, and on college campuses. Not only criminals, but students and professional people are pushing drugs into every corner of society.

With drug abuse becoming a major problem, experts in the field are seeking reasons: Rebellion against parents and authority. Relief from tensions and anxieties. Escape from decision-making and responsibility. A search for bigger and better thrills. Defiance of the "Establishment."

But whatever the causes, finding reasonable cures should have a top priority in national programs. Education must be at the beginning of any solution. Those who are tempted to experiment with drugs must be educated to the grave dangers: Possible addiction or drug dependence, physical, mental or emotional. Gradual withdrawal from normal activities. The mental breakdowns. Self destruction.

The public must be educated to accept responsibilities in the epidemic drug program. This can't be pushed aside as the exclusive business of police, district attorneys, and federal narcotic agents.

THESE ARE THE FACTS

1. About 2,000,000 college and high school students have used marijuana, according to Dr. Stanley F. Yolles, director of the National Institute of Mental Health. Some health authorities believe up to 5,000,-000 Americans have tried this drug at least once.

2. Another 500,000 abuse barbiturates, amphetamines, and tranquilizers. The housewife uses drugs to reduce weight and ends up needing them to get through the day. The husband may take a pill to give him energy, a different one to relax him for an important meeting, and a third for sleep. And recent government surveys show young people among the habitual abusers of pills.

3. Hundreds of thousands use LSD and other mind-altering drugs and claim they learn a new religious experience "while under the influence."

4. Youngsters no older than 12 or 13 risk their health and lives by sniffing glue for "kicks."

5. Marijuana smoking is increasing among soldiers in Vietnam.

IT'S EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

Drug abuse involves everyone—young and old, rich and poor, union member and businessman. All families are exposed. There is good reason for alarm, but reaction to the alarm should lead to constructive action and not panic.

What can be done? First, there must be resistance to any call for a witch-hunt approach to the drug problem. Second, each individual must calmly recognize the possibility that a drug abuser may be living in the neighborhood, next door, or right in the house. And third, all must support sound community programs to study the drug problem and to find intelligent, workable solutions.

CHARACTER OF THE DRUGS

Because drug abuse is everyone's business, unions will want to initiate or join in community efforts to meet the threat. But first, some basic knowledge of the drugs themselves is needed. Here are brief descriptions of those in common use:

Heroin—The Hard Drug. A derivative of opium, it is called "H," "Snow," or "Junk." It is smuggled into the United States from Europe. Heroin is usually taken by "mainlining," injecting the drug directly into the blood system. When the user becomes addicted, the body needs the drug two or three times a day. This condition means the user is "hooked." New York medical reports have shown addiction caused more deaths among people between 15 and 35 than murder, suicide, accidents, or natural causes.

Law enforcement agencies say there are between 60,000 and 100,000 heroin addicts in the U.S. The count is believed to be closer to 200,000. The number seems relatively small, but heroin addiction is one of the nation's biggest crime headaches. It is a threat to everyone's pocketbook. A heroin addict needs $40, $60, or $75 a day to feed his habit. Although not a hardened criminal, he must steal, rob, loot, and mug to get it. $1,000,000,000 a year is one estimate of the goods and money stolen to buy heroin. Women addicts become prostitutes to obtain drug money. Money spent for drugs eventually flows into the crime syndicate and provides the money for their other operations.

LSD—Magic Carpet to Catastrophe. LSD, known as "acid" to users, is one of the psychedelic or hallucinogen drugs. Others are DMT, peyote, mescaline, psilocybin, and even morning glory seed. After taking LSD (lysergic acid diethylamide), the user "takes a trip" lasting from 4 to 12 hours. The "trip" produces hallucinations, impairs judgment, and can cause drastic changes in perception and personality. The American Medical Association has warned that LSD can produce uncontrollable panic and violence. There have been accounts of attempted suicide and homicide by persons taking LSD.

Marijuana—Hits Close to Home. Marijuana has been called a major social problem in the United States. It is sometimes called the "campus drug" because it has spread so quickly and widely among high school and college students. It has been known by 350 names, including "reefer", "pot", and "grass", the favorites today.

Once smoked, marijuana causes the body to feel light, especially the head and limbs. The user talks of "floating on air" and "falling on waves." He gets an exaggerated idea of his ability. Coordination may be difficult and the marijuana smoker at the wheel of a car can become a menace.

The American Social Health Association, which campaigns against drug dependence and abuse, frequently reminds the public that marijuana sale and possession are prohibited by the United Nations Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs, which the United States has ratified. Sale and possession are also prohibited by the laws of each of the 50 states.

Marijuana has its advocates who defend its use. They claim it is less harmful than tobacco or alcohol. And demand that it be made legal.

But after a two-year study, committees of the American Medical Association and National Research Council condemned marijuana as a "dangerous drug" and said legalizing it would create more serious abuse.

The Pills—Trouble In The Medicine Cabinet. There are adults who would be horrified at being called addicts. Yet they become "hooked" on pills—the barbiturates, amphetamines, and tranquilizers. This form of drug abuse often begins with a doctor's prescription, for pills have a proper place in treatment. But attempting to cure a medical symptom may lead to tragic misuse of drugs.

1. Barbiturates are sedatives. Under a doctor's care, these pills bring needed sleep and calmness to a patient. But absorbing large amounts can lead to the intoxication and addiction associated with heroin. When abused, the pills are called "goof balls." They are a leading cause of accidental deaths in this country.

2. Amphetamines are stimulants. They have a number of aliases: "Pep Pills," "Diet Pills," "Ben-nies." They keep a person awake, supply new energy and kill the appetite. Continued and excessive use of amphetamines can result in hallucinations, unhealthy loss of weight, and dangerous aggressiveness. An increased number of auto accidents involve drivers using pills to keep awake.

3. Tranquilizers are drugs that calm without causing sleep. Tensions and anxieties decrease, but physical and mental alertness are not slowed. Some tranquilizers, if taken in large doses over several months, can cause addiction.

4. Special Warning should be heeded by those who take pills for any purpose. A person is flirting with physical disaster—even death—if he uses combinations of the barbiturates, amphetamines, or tranquilizers with alcohol.

WHAT UNIONS CAN DO

Unlike the problem of alcoholism, there are today few voluntary health agencies or governmental departments with successful experiences in dealing with drug abuse. There is no tried-and-true plan similar to Alcoholics Anonymous. Labor can rally support for a community program to provide information, education, and counselling. Here are some suggested steps:

- AFL-CIO Community Service committees need to gain as much knowledge as possible of the total drug picture.

- CSC could join with community groups, such as health and welfare councils, to determine the extent of the local drug problem.

- The CSC could cooperate in holding a one-day public institute to give everyone in the community the straight facts. Resource people could include doctors, government officials involved in drug control, judges, the district attorney, educators, social workers and others. A drug prevention campaign could be arranged.

- The drug abuse problem should be included in union counsellor courses. Counsellors should encourage workers to ask for help if a family member is using drugs.

WHERE TO LOOK FOR PROGRAM HELP

The American Social Health Association is the only national voluntary health agency developing a comprehensive program to counter drug abuse. The association has a professional information center, evaluates present rehabilitation programs, has a list of pamphlets, books, and films on the subject, and distributes materials to keep people up-to-date on all aspects of the drug picture. The ASHA can offer guidance to unions and other groups organizing a community program. It also has information on people in your area who can speak and advise on approaches to drug abuse. Contact the American Social Health Association, 1740 Broadway, New York, New York 10019.

Retail Clerks Dedicate New D.C. Headquarters

The Retail Clerks International Association has dedicated a glistening new headquarters in Washington, D.C. to improving the lives of more than 600,000 members and adding to the union's rapidly-growing rolls.

RCIA Pres. James T. Housewright told an audience of about 1,000 persons attending dedication ceremonies that the Suffridge Building "symbolizes our strength and reflects our confidence in the future."

Describing the structure as a "functional tool" of the union, Housewright said, "Our pride derives not from the fact we had enough money to build it but from the fact that we need it."

The union's 1967 convention, which authorized construction of the 11-story, white marble building, also designated its name to honor "unparalleled leadership."

James T. Suffridge, now RCIA president-emeritus, headed the union for 24 years before stepping down in 1968. He is an AFL-CIO vice president and a member of a number of federation committees.

Suffridge thanked the union for honoring him but emphasized that the building is first and foremost a tribute to RCIA's members.

He predicted that their determination to achieve a better life, under RCIA's "young and energetic" leadership, assures the union of a strong future with continuation of its record of 25 years of consecutive growth.

Participating in the ceremonies were many government and labor dignitaries, including Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz and AFL-CIO President George Meany.

Occupational Health and Safety Bill Is Demanded Of Congress by AFL-CIO

Passage of a strong occupational safety and health bill is a "must item" on the agenda of this session of Congress, the AFL-CIO Executive Council has declared.

It reiterated "in strongest terms" the endorsement by the 1969 AFL-CIO convention of legislation introduced by Rep. James G. O'Hara (D-Mich.) and Sen. Harrison A. Williams, Jr. (D-N.J.) to provide on-the-job safety and health standards.

The measure would direct the Secretary of Labor to set the standards and enforce them with the power to shut down an unsafe operation in an emergency. Health standards would be based on recommendations from the Dept. of Health, Education & Welfare.

Adoption of the legislation, adequately funded and staffed, "will be the first decisive step toward the ultimate achievement of a safe and healthy place of employment for all American workers," the council said.

The council's statement on the subject urged all AFL-CIO affiliates "to immediately use every means within their power" to appeal to their congressional delegations for passage.

"As every working man and woman knows," the council pointed out, "the danger of death or crippling illness or accident on the job is a constant and growing hazard."

Yet, it continued, there is no state with a completely adequate safety and health law and in many states such laws "are absolutely inadequate."

Noting that both the previous and present Administrations have urged enactment of federal legislation, the council added, "The issue is no longer whether or not any legislation should be adopted, but what kind of legislation."

With that made clear, the AFL-CIO leaders urged Congress to stop the mounting death and injury toll by enacting the O'Hara-Williams bill "at the earliest possible date."

46-Year-Old Contract Underscores Progress Made by Union Lathers

A look backward over 46 years of history was provided by a copy of a contract signed by Local Union 42, Los Angeles, recently brought to light. The 1924 agreement was signed for the local by W. M. McPherson, J.W.B. Filkey and V. M. Locke.

The 1924 agreement, for one year, was followed by three more, in none of which was there any change in the pay scale. It is interesting to note that in 1924 the work week was 44 hours and a lather could make $55 a week, working at the scale of $1.25 per hour. Now, 45 years later, lathers will make more in eight hours than the 1925 lathers made in 44. In addition, today's union lather has medical benefits, pension rights and other fringes; all of which were gained for him by his union, since no individual could have achieved such gains by himself.

Excerpts from the 1924 contract, typical of most contracts throughout the U.S. at the time, follow:

- (a) Wood lath shall be $5 per thousand.
- (b) All five nail work shall be 50 cents per thousand extra.
- (c) Lathing of hoods shall be 50 cents each.
- (d) Lathing of coves shall be at the rate of 50 cents per room.
- (e) Erecting of coves shall be at the rate of 50 cents per room.
- (f) Double nailing of ends shall be day work.
- (g) Erecting of all iron, metal, corner beads, furring, barrel and groined ceilings, shall be paid for by day work and hangers when included in contract.

(h) All theaters, churches, and schools shall be paid for by day work.

(i) All lathing where ceiling is over 12 feet high shall be paid for by day work.

(j) All repair and patch work shall be paid for by day work.

(k) Wages for day work shall be at the rate of $1.25 per hour, or $10 per day for eight hours.

(l) All street car fares in the radius of thirty-five (35) miles shall be paid for by the employer each and every day.

(m) All street car fare over the radius of thirty-five (35) miles shall be paid one round trip.

CLC Criticizes Government's White Paper On Taxation, Avers it 'Has Inequities'

The government's White Paper on Taxation falls considerably short of the country's needs and proposes measures which would result in serious inequities, the Canadian Labour Congress has declared in a submission to the federal cabinet.

The CLC said it had endorsed the general principles of the Carter Report, which recognized that too many people had been able to acquire various forms of income which had not been taxed on the same basis as wages and salaries. The more recent White Paper "stopped far short of recommending what we believe should have been a drastic reform in Canadian taxation." As an example, the labour group cited failure to change the 12 per cent sales tax which, applied at the manufacturers' level, pyramided by the time it reached consumers.

"Although we have made plain our objections to the White Paper on Taxation, we wish to make it clear that we do not, for a moment, share the views of those others who are now engaged in a cross-country campaign to undermine the White Paper and what it has ostensibly set out to do", the CLC said. "Our concern now, as always, has been to establish equity within the taxation system. This is why we have supported the Carter Commission report since it first became public. Those to whom we refer, however, have little or no interest in equity of treatment for Canada's taxpayers. They are concerned primarily with retaining the tax advantages enjoyed by those who are now the principal beneficiaries of our inequitable taxation system."

Acceptance of the White Paper proposals as they now stand would mean serious inequities in various levels of income. The largest tax saving for a married taxpayer with two dependent children with a gross income of $4,000 would be less than $2.50 a week. New tax increases would be applied to those in the $10,000 to $15,000 bracket, but there were not proportionate increases for those with higher incomes.

There was support for the idea of a capital gains tax but some degree of doubt as to whether the White Paper plan was adequate in this regard.

The proposed 3 per cent deduction, with a maximum of $150 for employment expenses, was considerably less than that required by most workers.

Construction Starts Decade Restrained by Short Credit

Canada's construction industry is shooting for a $25,000 million target in 1980 (in current dollar values) but, because of the present tight money situation and drop in housing starts, it is a little slow getting started.

The housing market, which accounts for about 30% of total volume, is expected to decrease this year. Predicted starts of dwelling units are 195,000, down 10,000 from 1969.

Major volume, of course, is in the engineering construction programs (roads, dams, power and the like) and this is where most industry personnel are looking to for advanced gains in 1970.

The other 30% of construction volume is taken up in institutional, governmental, commercial and industrial buildings. Here again, significant gains are expected.

Labor, Management Join In Cornwall Job Effort

Labor-management conflict is frequent headline material, but in Cornwall, Ontario, a St. Lawrence Seaway center, labor management co-operation is making news. Union representatives are taking a prominent part in a community-wide campaign to combat high unemployment.

Cornwall attracted national attention when its unemployment rate passed the 18 per cent mark, compared with a national rate of 6.7 per cent. In a move to develop new job opportunities, the Cornwall and District Labor Council recently, with the city's mayor, Nick Kaneb, shared sponsorship of a meeting which brought together representatives of the City Council, Industrial Commission, Chamber of Commerce, retailers, clergy and others. They met to discuss methods by which they could pool efforts and resources to attract new industry and other forms of employment to the district.

An active role in community affairs is not new for Cornwall unions. Half the members of the City Council are men with some labor background. The Labor Council has had representatives on such bodies as the School Board, Community Chest, St. Lawrence College Board of Governors, Industrial Commission, Planning Board, Housing Authority, Collegiate Institute Advisory Board, General Hospital Board, Hotel Dieu Hospital Board, Children's Aid Society, Red Cross

Q. My husband was killed in an accident last year after we had been married only 5 months. I am 52 years old and have been disabled for over a year. Is it possible for me to qualify for disabled widow's benefits?

A. Yes, since you had been married for the required 3 months and since your husband died in an accident. You also meet the condition that a widow 50 or older must be disabled at the time of or within 7 years after her husband dies. You should contact your social security office immediately.

Q. My son's father and I were never married. However, he supports the child fully and insisted that his name be shown as father on the child's birth certificate. Will it be possible for my son to receive social security benefits if his father dies or retires?

A. The social security requirements for the payment of benefits to illegitimate children have been greatly relaxed since 1965. Briefly, the law states that illegitimate children of an insured worker can receive benefits if the worker: (1) has acknowledged the child in writing; or (2) has been decreed by a court to be the child's parent; or (3) has been ordered by a court to contribute to the child's support at specific times. (If all this sounds like so much fine print, that's exactly what it is. So you should contact your local social security office for details about a child's entitlement under this provision of the law. They'll be happy to show you how the law applies to your particular case.)

Q. I hire a lady to help with my housework one day each week. Since I pay her only $10 per day, do I have to pay social security tax on this money?

A. Yes. Any wages for domestic employees amounting to $50 or more in a calendar quarter must be reported to Internal Revenue Service and must have the social security tax paid on them by the employer. You may contact either your local social security office or Internal Revenue Service for more information about this.

Q. Is there an advantage for a woman worker to get the retirement benefit based on her own work instead of a wife's benefit?

A. Yes. For one thing, your retirement benefit is

Lack of Understanding May Cause Loss of Social Security Benefits

Many people over age 65 may be losing either money or benefit insurance protection or both.

Misunderstanding the law often causes many elderly residents to fail to file a claim with Social Security just before they reach their 65th birthday. The misunderstanding falls into one of three areas.

First, many people who continue to work do not file for Medicare protection because they believe they must be retired and receiving social security checks before they can be eligible for Medicare. This is false. Retirement and Medicare are not connected in any way.

Second, some people do not realize that Social Security often allows for the payment of some or all of a person's benefits when his income is reduced. This provision works on both a yearly and monthly basis.

Third, some people who continue to work fail to file at age 65 because they believe their benefit amount will be frozen at a lower amount than they will receive if they wait to get a few more years of higher wages. This is false because a person's benefit amount can be increased yearly if the additional earnings warrant it.

To be sure there is no misunderstanding, all persons should contact their local social security office three months before their 65th birthday. In that way, they can make sure they receive all benefits they have earned under Medicare and Social Security.

likely to be higher than the benefit you would qualify for as a wife based on your husband's work record. Also, you would get your own retirement check without interruption if your husband continued to work or went back to work. A woman who is receiving just a wife's benefit on her husband's social security record will have that benefit withheld, along with her husband's if his earnings go over a certain amount.

Q. Would I lose my social security widow's benefits if I should remarry? I am 62 but expect a man I like to propose very soon.

A. If you are 60 or older, your benefits will continue even if you remarry, but the amount may change. If your new husband is not a social security beneficiary, you will collect a monthly payment equal to one-half of your deceased husband's retirement benefit. If your new husband is a social security beneficiary receiving retirement or disability benefits, you will get either the wife's benefit on his record, or an adjusted widow's benefit, whichever benefit is larger.

and Committee on Adult Training.

The union movement has given strong backing to numerous types of sports and has taken an active part in various community projects such as blood donor clinics. At one time many of the working people were cool toward the Y.M.-Y.W.C.A.; but when Cornwall recognized the urgent need for a new Y.M.-Y.W.C.A. as a community center the Labor Council swung behind the undertaking and active support was enlisted from union members.

Cornwall's economic history has been one of sharp fluctuations. It became a major construction center during the building of the St. Lawrence Seaway, then suffered the let-down of a natural exodus when work was completed. There was another major blow in 1959 when the Canadian Cotton Mill shut down, throwing close to 2,000 out of work. Last fall Courtauld's Ltd., another textile plant, laid off 850. Several new industries have recently established themselves in the Cornwall area; but not enough to offset the large lay-offs. Those who look on the optimistic side see the likelihood that the program now being undertaken will result in a more diversified industrial base, making the community less vulnerable to the fluctuations of a particular industry.

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

The institution of organized labor, in its present form, is probably due for long, lean days ahead unless some action is taken soon to capture the hearts and minds of the young.

Students in grammar school hardly ever hear unions mentioned. High school students are taught only that "unions call strikes and strikes cause unhappiness." At the college level he may learn a little, more or less true, about unions. He may even find out who Samuel Gompers was, and who is the current president of the AFL-CIO. As a former member of the Board of Education in Paterson, N.J., I have seen this disregard of labor at first hand.

But even on the college level it is highly unlikely that students will be told how unions have made positive contributions to the welfare of the entire population, not simply to unionists alone. Seldom will he meet a knowledgeable professor who can and will go into detail about how unionists brought about the principle of free universal education. Or how unionists campaigned successfully for free school textbooks. Or how unions fought for safety legislation to reduce the horrible slaughters in the mines and mills of early America. Or how unions fought for and won child labor laws. Or how unions demanded and won pure food laws, usury protection, social security, medicare and many other notable achievements of unquestioned social value.

No, no one is telling students these facts. Today's pupils have the following knowledge of and attitudes toward organized labor, as revealed in a recent poll of high school students in the Portland area by the Oregon Labor Press. There were a smattering of positive statements, but these were more representative: "Unions are a necessary evil." "Unions are good! But what are they?" "They cause higher prices, but you get paid higher wages." "They're stupid!" "I think most unions don't do the people any good and they just take your money." "If that's what people want, fine. I don't like them." "People should be free to work as they please."

That is a representative sampling of the massive ignorance and misinformation held as truth by today's high school children . . . the workers of tomorrow. Without widespread support from those workers of tomorrow, organized labor will surely fall victim to capitalism, communism or fascism.

But if organized labor in America is to continue to be a significant force in behalf of democratic capitalism, it must "sell itself" to the young mind long before the beginning young worker applies for a union card or work permit. Even today there are too many unwilling, unknowing and uncaring "card carriers" who consider their union and membership in it "a necessary evil." Their minds have been corrupted by labor's enemies.

Organized labor's big problem of today will certainly be its overwhelming problem of tomorrow unless it soon makes a start toward solving it. Young students, particularly in junior and senior high school, must be taught the truth about the venerable and world-wide institution of free trade unionism.

If they do not learn, the modern trade union movement, as we know it today, has its functional history written in the wind and its days are numbered on autumn leaves.

cover

The boat on the cover this month is not a ferro-cement model, but it might well be. When a boat is properly built of lath and plaster, it is as light as glass fiber and as strong as any craft afloat. If a careless skipper drives a "plaster boat" onto rocks, the resultant damage can be cleared away with a sledge and the damage repaired with epoxy until it is invisible and the hull as strong as before. Since one of the leading exponents of the method is located in Vancouver, the convention city, some delegates may want to contact Samson Marine Design personally. Pictures, except the front cover, are courtesy of Samson Marine.

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

J. EARL FERGUSON

It remains to be seen how far the present national administration will allow conditions to deteriorate before it takes positive action to stop the alarming slump in housing starts.

In some areas, home-building is at a virtual standstill. There were only six labor areas with substantial or persistent unemployment last year at this time. In March, the figure had climbed to eight. By April it had shot to 12.

It seems incredible that an administration can be so seemingly removed and remote from a truly domestic situation. Not only are people finding it impossible to find the housing their families require, but thousands of building tradesmen are out of work. Taking it one step farther, the workers who produce components for houses are also being laid off as orders lag for lavatories, bath tubs, switchboxes, electric cable, aluminum siding, dishwashers and other housing-related items.

Automobile dealers report the slowest season in many years as economizing families decide to run the family auto another year instead of trading. The clothing industry is wallowing in a morass of unemployment and shortened work weeks.

Meanwhile, market indicators show wholesale prices are continuing to rise. Producers and marketers, discovering their sales dwindling, are raising unit prices in an effort to maintain total income. While wages inch up at rates of from 2 to 4 percent annually, the cost of living continues to rocket upward at rates three and four times that figure. The result has been a loss in real wages; purchasing power.

Contributing to the economic chaos in some quarters (fortunately, because of their nature, not in the building trades) is the continuing insistence of the administration, spurred by the State Department, that imports from friendly low-wage nations be allowed into the nation virtually tariff-free to compete in the marketplace with U.S.-produced goods. An example cited recently was clothing produced at wage rates of 8¢ an hour in Korea and 36¢ an hour in Japan. Clothing imports zoomed 661 percent between 1956 and 1969, inevitably taking much employment from U.S. clothing workers. The same basic situation prevails in some building supply items, including much ceramic tile imported from Japan.

In only one area does continuing prosperity prevail; in the realm of bankers, where the spread between 4½ percent interest paid on deposits and the 8 percent or more interest charged on loans leaves a coating of gold on the vaults as it flows through. But lately even Wall Street bankers have become nervous as the stock market began to react in violent ups and downs which not even the most verbose "experts" could adequately explain.

Unless positive steps are taken . . . and soon . . . there can be nothing ahead but chaos: economic, social and political. One of the basic building blocks of our way of life is the building industry. If action is not taken soon to put it back on the tracks, and under a full head of steam, this administration will be remembered only in terms of ignominy when the history books are written.

Nation Needs Housing, AFL-CIO Declares

Testimony on Capitol Hill Underscores Failure of Administration to Take Action

America urgently needs new housing programs and new sources of mortgage money, not merely a "tidying up" of existing laws and programs, the AFL-CIO has told Congress.

Nat Goldfinger, the federation's research director, charged that an Administration bill being considered by a House Banking subcommittee merely "gives the appearance of action without the substance."

It is a housekeeping bill, designed to consolidate a number of existing programs, he noted.

But it won't build additional housing for low and moderate income families, and that's what is desperately needed, Goldfinger testified at the House hearings. He was accompanied by AFL-CIO Legislative Rep. Ray Denison.

Speaking, he said, "for 13.5 million Americans with a deep personal stake in America's housing programs, both as a means of shelter and a means of employment," Goldfinger called on Congress to insist that the Administration act.

"The President has the power, given him last year by Congress, to establish discretionary credit controls," Goldfinger noted.

"He is empowered to channel available credit at low interest rates to where it is needed" and "curb inflationary expansion of credit for purposes that are less important to society."

Goldfinger then told the House panel:

Nat Goldfinger

"Because the President has failed to act, we now urge Congress to direct the President to take the necessary steps to implement these discretionary controls and help meet this critical housing need."

He warned that the goals of the 1968 Housing Act "will not be met" through existing programs and noted that the current rate of new housing starts will result in little more than half the number of housing units that were built in 1950, "a far less affluent time."

Instead of mere recodification of existing law, Goldfinger urged, "the Administration should give priority attention to new emergency programs and new long-range programs that will produce the millions of housing units so badly needed."

He asked: "Where do we go in the next 10 years if we are now—in this time of relative prosperity and affluence—not meeting our needs?"

Banks and other money-lending institutions, Goldfinger noted, out of greed for greater profits, have opposed legislation to increase mortgage funds, including a proposal for a bank of last resort financed by a portion of the reserves of tax-exempt pension and foundation funds. They have also fought a proposal to release $3 billion in federal reserve funds into the mortgage market.

Instead, the lending institutions have withdrawn funds from the mortgage market and given preference "to such questionable capital outlays as gambling casinos and conglomerate takeovers."

Bill's Good Points are Marred

Turning to the Administration bill being considered by the subcommittee, Goldfinger said its good points are marred by provisions that would weaken existing legislation or perpetuate shortcomings.

To consolidate the "very useful" rent supplement program with a separate interest subsidy program, Goldfinger suggested, "is to codify it out of existence."

Likewise, Goldfinger noted, the Administration bill would eliminate or weaken Davis-Bacon Act prevailing wage standards in a number of government housing programs.

"This sort of 'recodification' of workers' rights serves to only bring the entire measure under suspicion," he warned.

Stressing the importance of making mortgage money available at reasonable interest rates, Goldfinger noted that the added cost to the homebuyer of raising the FHA and VA interest ceiling by one percentage point came to $5,000 on a $20,000 30-year mortgage.

That amounts to "more than the entire on-site labor cost, the total wages and fringe benefits of all the workers who built his house."

When the Penn-Central Railroad needs financial assistance, it has a friendly audience in the Congress. But when workers need housing assistance, their government cannot hear them!

Union-Industries Show Attracts 219,000 in New Orleans; Lathers Local 62 Participates

More than 219,000 citizens of the Deep South received their first look at the products and services of union employees of fair employers at the 25th annual Union-Industries Show held in New Orleans, Louisiana, under auspices of the Union Label and Service Trades Department of the AFL-CIO.

There was a near-record total of 438 exhibits in the new Rivergate Exhibition Hall alongside the Mississippi River, according to Joseph Lewis, President of the sponsoring department.

Participating in the exhibition was Local 62 of the Lathers International Union, in cooperation with the New Orleans local of the Plasterers' and Cement Masons Union. An exhibit area showed various treatments of lath-and-plaster. Attendants and literature stressed to visitors the advantages of lath and plaster.

Members of the LIU who worked on the exhibits at the U-I Show included M. J. Branighan, L.U. 62 Business Agent, and Vernon A. Abadie, Apprenticeship Instructor. Journeymen who assisted included U. J. Abadie, Jr., Earl Gordy, Homer Kitchen, Thomas Flint, Herman Cowart, Elzie Cowart and John Stevenson. Also Edward Putfark, Frederick Putfark, William Telfrey, Byron Smith, Morris Cole, Philip Gill, Jr., Henry Frey and Anthony Chetta.

Apprentices who participated included Willie Matherne, Steve Duval, Anthony Jones, Felton Harrison, Exhibit of lath and plaster jointly sponsored by Lathers Local 62 and Plasterers local union in New Orleans. Various plaster finishes were demonstrated. Ends of panels were left open so foundation of lath could be seen by visitors.

Walter Chetta, Jerry Parker, Louis Prosper, Kem Gardy, Louis Fletcher, Byron Price and Norwood Richard.

As he officially opened the show, AFL-CIO Secretary-Treasurer Lane Kirkland said it was "the major showcase for the success of the American collective bargaining system." President George Meany of the AFL-CIO, in a message, declared that America's awesome industrial might "rests securely on the 150,000 labor agreements through which nearly 14 million trades unionists and many thousands of employers have achieved mutual respect, cooperation and a degree of teamwork unmatched anywhere in the world."

More than $100,000 worth of union-made merchandise was given away in free drawings and lucky ticket raffles during the six days of the free-admission show, which opened on May 22. Taking part were 61 unions, 27 companies from very small to ultra-large, the AFL-CIO itself, plus its Auxiliaries and departments, the Boy Scouts, Office of Civil Defense, Civil Service Commission, Office of Economic Opportunity, U.S. Bureau of Printing and Engraving, the Peace Corps, International Labor Organization, the Marine Corps, the Navy Department and others too numerous to list.

On Monday and Tuesday following the opening of the exhibition there was a meeting of approximately 50 secretary-treasurers of international unions affiliated with the AFL-CIO. Secretary-Treasurer J. Earl Ferguson represented the LIU at this conference, which considered and discussed items of mutual interest.

Independence Day—July 4 or July 2?

"The United States," said American statesman James G. Blaine, "is the only country with a known birthday."

But can you pinpoint that historic date in 1776?

It's not the Fourth of July. The actual date of the act of independence was July 2, the day that the Continental Congress adopted a 1,337-word resolution declaring the 13 colonies free of British rule. The Declaration of Independence, adopted on July 4, was merely a fuller explanation of why the American colonists had taken that momentous step two days earlier.

Today, there's more to the Fourth of July spirit than marching bands and firecrackers. For the Declaration remains a living guide for Americans. As President Woodrow Wilson put it:

"Jefferson's Declaration of Independence is a practical document for the use of practical men . . . It is not a theory of government, but a program of action."

Wilson's view set the tone for the "spirit of involvement" which was to sweep the country more than half a century later. Adlai E. Stevenson spelled out the action program in today's terms when he observed:

"We dare not just look back to great yesterdays. We must look forward to great tomorrows . . . The challenge to all of us is to prove that a free society can remain free, human and creative—that it can combat pov-

Mission of Today's Building Tradesmen

Chaplain of Chicago and Cook County Building Trades Council Observes 30th Anniversary of Organization and of Own Ordination With Inspirational Address

The Rev. Joseph L. Donahue, Chaplain of the Chicago and Cook County Building Trades Council, observed the 30th anniversary of the Council and of his own ordination to the priesthood at a recent Labor Mass.

Because his words are of particular interest to all building tradesmen and because his remarks touch on topics of concern to all construction workers, they are reprinted below.

"Thirty years are a short time in the history of a nation or of the world, but thirty years are a long period in the life of man. Numberless changes take place in such a span of years.

"The Chicago and Cook County Building Trades Council first sponsored this annual Labor Mass in the Spring of 1940. It was instituted on the occasion of my ordination to the priesthood when I made a solemn promise, that with the help of God, I would say a mass each year for the deceased members of the Chicago Building Trades, where I was trained as an apprentice and worked as a journeyman.

Why Promise Was Made

"My promise was made in appreciation to an industry and to its members who made it possible for me to come as a priest to the altar of God. One would be an ingrate to receive so much and not to seek God's blessings for a cause that brings its members an existence worthy of human beings.

"Many of those who were present at the first Mass thirty years ago have passed to their eternal reward. Others have been born since then, and some of these also have closed their brief careers in the building trades. Many of those who were children in 1940 are now shouldering the weighty responsibilities of buildings trades officers. Others have retired and gone to distant places.

"At the time of our first Labor Mass, America was raising itself from a dreadful repression caused when the economic structure of the nation collapsed. This was a dark period in American history. The nation's unemployment rate was above 15 million workers. We who lived through the depression cannot forget the scene of long and numerous bread lines, freight trains loaded with unemployed young men travelling across the country seeking activity, yearning for an opportunity to work.

Workers Were Poorly Paid

"Wages in 1940 for the asbestos worker, the boilermaker, the electrician and the sheet metal worker were $1.70 per hour. The carpenter was receiving $1.62½ per hour. The common laborer was the poorest paid at $1.02½, and the glazier received the highest wage of $1.94¾ per hour.

"The Second World War created another critical period for the building trades. Private construction was at a standstill. The federal government in 1942 was the principal employer for the construction industry. All of us were concerned for the future of the building industry. Eight or ten trades received no employment from the war program. Other trades involved in war work absorbed the membership of those building tradesmen not employed. Our faith carried us through. During these years the Chicago Building Trades gained great prestige for its contributions to defense and the war effort.

"The years following the war were ones of expansion and growth for the building trades. Automatic tools replaced hand tools, on-site prefabrication became a practice, new materials and procedures were introduced into every trade. Welfare benefits became a part of the contract in 1950, and pension benefits arrived on the scene in 1953 and 1954. Unemployment compensation benefits were improved and new safety procedures were welcomed. More building tradesmen were able to send their children on to college and into the professions, as the wages of the building tradesmen increased so the entire labor market improved its wages and salaries. Each year wrote its history, but all spelled change, change, change.

"Today the building trades occupy a place of major importance in the community life of this metropolitan area. Our daily problems and changes have not blinded us to the need of prayers in our lives. The spirit of dedicated service and sacrifice which animated those of other years continues to guide the destinies of this industry today, making it one of outstanding progress and leadership.

"A monument has been cast for the Chicago and Cook County Building Trades in more durable materials than stone or metal. It is found in the lives of countless young men who have benefited and benefit from the system of apprentice schools which the building trades organized and constantly improved. Through the vision, foresight and tireless labor of the building trades, numbers of young men each year had the opportunity to master a lucrative trade. To become skilled and independent workers able to demand a living wage, because they produce a living wage. This monument is to be found in the peaceful, happy, prosperous homes, in the lives of independent skillful workers. Can anyone ask a better or more enduring and worth-while monument?

"No one will grudge the gallant defenders of our country the honor that is their due for fortitude, courage and devotion to duty, but there is another kind of heroism too often overlooked, namely, the heroism of the building tradesmen who performs the dangerous tasks of erecting our skyscrapers, tunnels, factories, highways and homes, simply because it is their duty.

The Uncertainty of Life

"A building tradesman leaves his home in the morning, kisses his wife and children goodbye, and off to work he goes. He never knows when he steps upon the job site whether he shall ever see his dear ones again. The stranger who visits Chicago for the first time is filled with wonder and amazement. He is inspired by the lofty beauty of piles and steel and stone invading the sky. He cannot see the human bodies that have

Third Generation Lather, Local 74 Member, Awarded Bronze Star for Viet Nam Heroism

The nation has awarded the Bronze Star Medal to William J. Smithson, Specialist Fourth Class in the U.S. Army on duty in Viet Nam, for heroism and devotion to duty while under fire. Smithson is a member of Local 74, Chicago, Ill., a third generation lather in his family. His grandfather is a pensioned member and his father is Vice President of the local union.

Assigned to B Battery of the Second Battalion of the 12th Artillery Division, Smithson's citation read as follows:

"Specialist Four Smithson distinguished himself by heroism while serving on a 155mm howitzer section crew with B Battery, 2d Battalion, 12th Artillery during the defense of Fire Support Base Jay in Tay Ninh Province, Republic of Vietnam.

"At approximately 0430 hours on 29 March 1970, the base began receiving intense mortar, rocket, and small arms fire which lasted several hours culminating in a ground attack. During the critical early moments of the attack, his quick response in readying the howitzer for action and his calm, efficient movements of the weapon, despite the intense volume of incoming enemy fire, helped to inspire the other men in his section and battery to accomplish the immediate and professional response necessary.

"Heedless of his own safety, he continuously exposed himself to enemy fire in order to help place the most effective fire on the enemy. Without regard for his own safety he exposed himself to enemy fire in order to help resupply his section with ammunition from the battery ammunition bunker.

"His heroism and devotion to duty was in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit and the United States Army.

"Authority: By direction of the President under provisions of Executive Order 11046, 24 August 1962."

fallen from those mighty heights and have filled untimely graves. He does not know that the boast of 60 floors may have cost 60 lives. The stone and steel screen his vision from lonely and destitute homes where widows are lonely and children fatherless.

"We have some of those widows and their children here today as we pray for their beloved dead. We extend our deepest sympathy to them, and to the families of all our deceased members and associates whose names are listed in the memorial booklet of our 30th Anniversary Mass.

"Too many of our building tradesmen are meeting sudden death and injury in the performance of their duty. We realize that the employer has the first responsibility to establish and enforce safety measures at the job site. This is not enough. The unions themselves cannot stand idly by as terrible and disastrous tragedies are taking place. A more vigorous program must be established to alert the workers and inspire them to be safety-conscious at all times on the job site. Death comes quickly enough without hurrying it through carelessness.

"Great men, in the past 30 years, have written a splendid history for the construction industry of Chicago. I see their good work being continued as the present leadership writes new chapters in the Book of Life for the benefit of the construction workers of today and tomorrow.

"The voice of Christ is as clear, as vigorous, as compelling for us today as it was 2,000 years ago when the noblest, the sublimest, the divinest words ever spoken by human lips were heard on the shore of the Galilean Sea: "Amen, amen I say unto you that inasmuch as you have done it to one of these, the least brethren, you have done it to Me." Consequently, let no one of us cherish the illusion he loves God unless he loves his neighbor and no one loves anyone unless he is prepared to make all necessary sacrifices for the beloved. That is God's law of life. That is the eternal, immutable truth. It is because this law has been ignored or condemned, that mankind has suffered all its major tragedies.

"It will be the crowning glory of our lives as building tradesmen that we keep our eyes steadily fixed upon the shining path of right, truth and justice traced out by the finger of Christ. Through good report and ill, through calumny, slander and misrepresentation, let us continue to do battle for the poor, the downtrodden, and continue to withstand the mighty ones who would oppress the people of God. Let us march steadily forward through the years and ahead with hearts that quail not, with feet that falter not, to the goal marked out for us by the Immortal Captain of Human Destiny."

Nixon Administration Gives Reassurances That Topsy-Turvy Economy Will Level Out

By Alexander Uhl
Press Associates, Inc.

Obviously alarmed by Wall Street's continued debacle, rising unemployment, further slowing down of the economy and the terrific housing slump, Nixon Administration economists are beginning to utter soothing words of reassurance that "all is not lost."

Nevertheless, skeptical liberal economists and newspaper commentators more and more are beginning to talk about the need for "wage and price controls" if inflation is to be licked and increasing unemployment stopped.

Dr. Arthur Burns, Federal Reserve Board Chairman, has even cautiously suggested that some kind of curbs, short of direct Federal controls, might be needed temporarily to "speed us through this transitional period of cost-price inflation."

Nixon Administration economists have been more inclined to predict that daylight is ahead. They are not exactly using the old Hoover cliché that "prosperity is around the corner," but one of them told the Association of American Railroads that he believed he could state "with some assurance that we have nearly passed through the adjustment phase and that we can soon resume a prudent, upward growth path without rekindling inflationary pressures."

Dr. Harold C. Passer, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Economic Affairs, said that while he did not look for a "boom" there were signs that the economy would show an increase in real production during the April-June quarter and noted that monetary policy has been "easing."

However, the day before Dr. Passer made that prediction, Wall Street took exactly the opposite tack. It dropped 20 points, the biggest loss since the assassination of President Kennedy 7½ years ago. One development that moved the market was the request of the Nixon Administration for an $18 billion dollar increase in the nation's debt ceiling, a request which did not fit in with the optimism of the Nixon economists.

Democratic leaders Mike Mansfield of the Senate and Carl Albert of the House became so alarmed that they called on Nixon to convene immediately a national conference on inflation and unemployment "to extricate the country from the economic morass that has befallen us."

The President himself, after looking at the Wall Street collapse, invited leading brokers to the White House to talk things over while other members of the Presidential economic team made speeches defending the course being followed by the Administration.

Bryce N. Harlow, a top Nixon adviser, for example, told the George Washington University Club that the harsh Nixon economic medicine was needed and that the country was so "addicted" to inflation that "the shock of the cure gives everybody the willies just as an over-indulged child recoils at the approach of the castor oil."

Whatever the tough attitude of Harlow, or the more conciliatory and optimistic attitude of Dr. Passer, latest statistics of the Department of Commerce showed "continued sluggishness of economic activity in April."

In the Department's Survey of Current Business were indicators showing:

- Industrial production little changed and unemployment "sharply higher."

- Housing units started were subject to a "steep drop," although new building permits showed a hopeful rise.

- The wholesale price index was stable, a good sign, but retail prices were still on the rise.

- Revised first quarter figures showed lower output of goods and services than originally reported. Preliminary figures for the period showed an increase of $8¼ billion while the revised figures dropped to $7½ billion. Gross National Product in constant, or "real" dollars dropped at an annual rate of $5½ billion rather than the $3 billion decline reported earlier.

Meanwhile, the unemployment rate, at 4.8 percent, is the highest since 1965.

"Noise Pollution" On the Job Is Seen As Likely to Continue On Upswing in 1970's

Workers who find noise on the job a particularly aggravating form of pollution are not going to find things much quieter away from the job in the future.

In fact, a physicist at the Bureau of Standards here is predicting that noise in the U.S., as bad as it is today, will be twice as bad in the next 10 years.

Except for factory-related noise and the crashing sounds in the neighborhood of airports, little is being said about noise pollution today. The great concern has been air and water pollution. However, experts are beginning to turn some of their attention to noise pollution.

Right now sounds in the home are not too bad, unless you have a son or daughter seeking to crash the sound barrier with rock music.

No Place Like Home!

The sound limit approaching the threshold of pain is between 130 and 140 decibels of sound. Rock music sometimes exceeds this. Also high on the list are the roar of a jet takeoff (120 decibels), a subway train (100 decibels) and police and fire sirens (115 decibels).

At home, though, things are comparatively quiet. A food blender at 95 decibels is one of the highest sounds. A dishwasher is around 70 decibels, normal conversation is about 60 decibels and whispers around 20 decibels.

The noise of jet aircraft, particularly on take-off, has aroused considerable public reaction. Some $29 million will be spent in fiscal 1970 for research and control of aircraft noise.

However, only about $3 million will be spent in the fiscal year on other forms of noise pollution.

Dr. Lewis Branscomb, director of the Bureau of Standards, in an interview with The Baltimore Sun, acknowledges that the drive to improve the environment is not giving sufficient attention to noise pollution.

He points out that noisy equipment such as gasoline lawn mowers, vacuum cleaners, washing machines and dishwashers could be toned down but that it would cost the consumers more money so there has been little pressure for it.

One of the things the Bureau of Standards is trying to do is develop tire treads which would reduce the screech level of highway traffic.

One real problem, Branscomb says, is motorcycles. He believes that too many motorcycle enthusiasts confuse noise with power so that manufacturers are turning out noisier and noisier vehicles.

No Peace Seen Ahead

Raymond D. Berendt, a physicist at the Bureau for 20 years, predicts that by 1980 the noise level may well be twice what it is today unless some positive action is taken.

He is an author of a guide on noise control. One concern is that architects rarely consider the noise factor in homes and apartments when planning buildings.

"Their usual idea of noise control is to put in acoustic tiles which, in fact, are only the final touch," Berendt said, adding that "builders and architects do not consider privacy

CONVENTION INFORMATION

Elsewhere in this issue, we have published a schedule setting forth the various locations and times that the various committees will meet, and, of course, the location of the office of the general officers. I am sure this will be most helpful to those in attendance at the Convention.

Transportation checks have been mailed to those local unions who have had their credentials accepted by our office for referral to the Credential Committee. As credentials are received and accepted by our office for referral to the Credential Committee, transportation checks will be mailed. The per-day expenses for local union delegates will be paid during the Convention.

Only local union delegates will receive transportation checks plus per-day expenses from the Convention Fund. An alternate delegate who replaces the regular delegate from a local union will receive the expenses that the delegate would have received. Alternate delegates not seated at the Convention will not receive any expenses. Resolutions must be submitted pursuant to section 214 of the LIU Constitution.

Hotel reservation cards have been mailed to all local unions and councils. Therefore, those attending the Convention will be responsible for their own hotel reservations.

We will be ready to assist you in any possible manner we can and are looking forward to seeing you at the Convention.

and quiet surroundings as necessities."

However, most of the experts at the Bureau of Standards seem to be resigning themselves to the fact that until noise reaches the decibels of aircraft take-offs, nothing of any consequence will be done about noise pollution.—PAI

Now Lathers Can Build Their Own 'Plaster Boats' At Minimum Cost!

New Ferro-Cement Method Held by Many to Produce Vessels Superior to Either Glass Fiber or Wood

The "big new thing in boat construction" at the present time is "ferro-cement"; a type of boat-building which can yield benefits to the metal lath craftsman with a yen to own his own boat.

For centuries boats were built of wood, following the Biblical-old tradition of sawn ribs covered with wooden planks for the hull with caulking between the planks to adjust for swelling and drying.

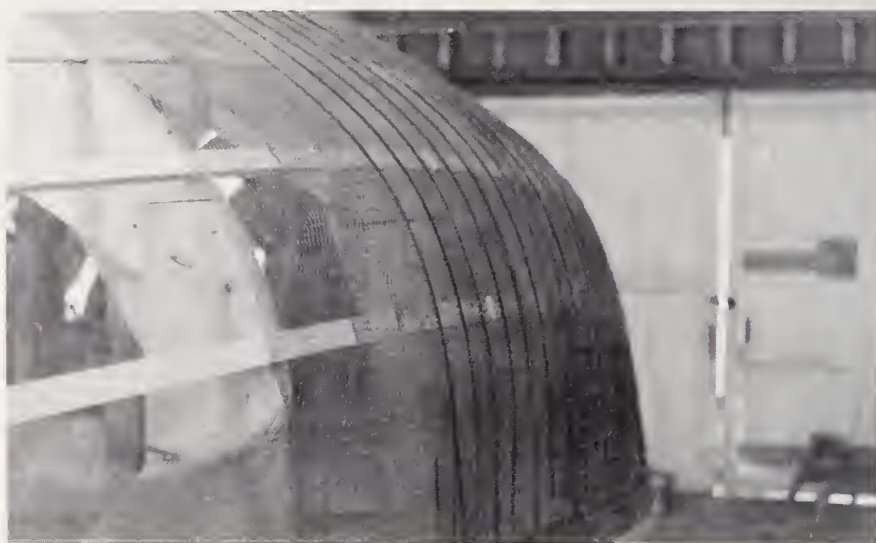

Suddenly plywood was "the new thing" and new hull shapes impossible with planks began to evolve. After World War II, glass fiber was "the new thing" and complicated compound hull shapes impossible with either planks or plywood came into vogue. Now "ferro-cement" is here and may eventually surpass both wood and glass fiber for small boat construction.

Ferro-cement is simply a plastered boat. The builder makes a skeleton of steel rods and metal lath, to which a plaster hull is applied. In exhaustive tests, ferro-cement boats have proven extremely seaworthy and sturdy.

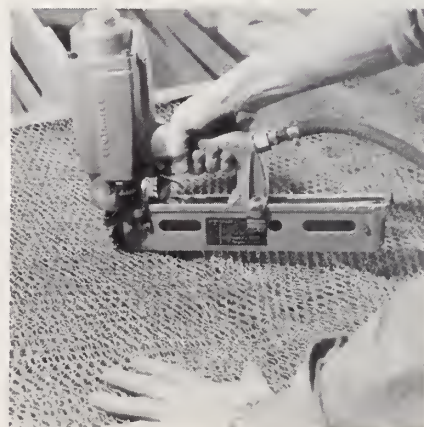

Because the big boatbuilders such as Chris Craft, Pacemaker, Owens and the other stock boat producers are tooled up for either wood or glass, no one may expect to see mass-produced ferro-cement boats any time soon. The ferro-cement craft, for a long time to come, will be the individually-built boat. It is reasonable to assume that a number of them will be the products of lathers working on their own time, either for themselves or for others. The ideal partnership ferro-cement boat would belong to a lather and a plasterer!

One ferro-cement boat recently described in "Walls and Ceilings" magazine was 45 feet long with better than a 12 foot beam. Beginning with four layers of 19-gauge half-inch mesh stucco netting, one layer of No. 8 reinforcing bar was added. This was followed by four more layers of wire before the plastering operation was begun. The cement was a mixture of Type V portland, 2 bags of sand and 15 to 18 pounds of pozzolan per sack of cement. This California builder had a supply of Cabot's X-59 "frog hair" (no longer marketed) which he added to the mix.

At top: A lath-and-plaster (ferro-cement) 36-foot ketch built at Samson Marine Design, Vancouver, B.C., under full sail. Terence Ross of the firm has written book, "How to Build a Ferro-Cement Boat", which has sold over 15,000 copies indicating wide interest in new method. Above: Photo shows mock-up of hull, made of cheap wood, with interior layers of mesh and reinforcing rods. Plaster will be applied over the lath. At right: a stapling gun greatly speeds application of first layers of mesh. Here deck of boat is taking shape.—Photos courtesy Samson Marine Design Enterprises, Ltd., Vancouver, B.C., Canada.

The plaster went on 7/8 of an inch thick, the entire boat taking 110 yards of the plaster. Plasterers used hefty rubber mallets to jitterbug the cement and prevent voids. The entire boat was then covered for 28 days to allow complete hydration.

Another such boat, built in Florida, 40 feet long with a 14-foot beam, started with a 1/4-scale drawing, from which patterns were laid out and templates were cut from plywood. A jig was built on the templates, using longitudinal 1x2s. The jig thus created was covered with a layer of polyethylene plastic. Next came four layers of 1/2-inch mesh hardware cloth, a layer of 1/4-inch pencil rods each way, two layers of 1-inch stucco mesh wire and two more layers of 1/2-inch hardware cloth. An M-4 Muller plaster machine was used to apply a one-inch thickness of Type 2 cement, using a cubic foot of cement, a cubic foot of sand, a pound of asbestos shorts and 4 1/2 pounds of water to produce a very low-slump mix. The asbestos was added to make the mix pumpable. The 40x14 hull used 70 sacks of cement and the actual pumping time was about 6 to 7 hours. The hull was wetted down with gunny sacks, covered with plastic and allowed to cure. The owner plans to do minor touch-ups, then finish it with one coat of epoxy and two coats of marine enamel. After all this is completed, a crane will turn it right-side up and the inside of the hull will be sprayed. After the interior hull plaster cures, the interior cabins, fittings and partitions will be built and installed.

Court Fight by Star Outfielder Curt Flood Has Angle of Interest to Trade Unionists

Star outfielder Curt Flood's campaign against baseball's reserve clause, now being heard in Federal Court here, should be of particular interest to trade unionists.

The reserve clause binds a player to a particular club as long as he is an active player unless he is traded or given his unconditional release.

Curt Flood believes this is a form of slavery and he doesn't believe that a player can effectively negotiate a good contract in this atmosphere. In fact, this came up in the trial.

Flood was asked what would happen if every player were free after each season. He answered: "They'd have a better chance to renegotiate a better contract."

This same point was stressed by Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players' Association. He was asked by Flood's attorney, former Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, to sum up just what he felt about the reserve clause.

"I think it is unnecessarily restrictive," Miller said. He added that a player "can either accept it or find another way to make a livelihood."

Both Miller, a one-time staffer for the United Steelworkers, and Goldberg, a one-time labor lawyer, know precisely what is meant by bargaining leverage and bargaining strength.

Flood, it should be pointed out, is not for wiping out the reserve clause entirely. But, as Miller pointed out, efforts by the players to modify the system have been met with a "response that has been completely negative."

One problem about wiping out the clause, of course, is that the wealthier clubs could, theoretically, get all the better players. No one wants this.

Flood is making the fight at quite a sacrifice. He was traded to the Philadelphia Phillies last year by the St. Louis Cardinals and his new club has offered him $100,000 for the season. However, the Phillies would not let him play unless he dropped the suit.

But the idea of being the personal property of one employer, unless he should sell you to another employer, is what should be personally abhorrent to any trade unionist.—PAI

Generally, once plastering on a ferro-cement boat has begun, it is not stopped until the entire boat is plastered in order to produce a homogenous hull. On a fair-sized craft this may mean a work force of from four to six top journeymen plasterers.

Ferro-cement boats are a modern adaptation of a process which was attempted, with somewhat less than complete success, during World War I. At that time, with steel in wartime short supply, an effort was made to build freighters with cement. The effort was not successful; to this day a concrete ship, aground on a shoal in Galveston Bay, provides a fishing platform for anglers.

Wood is subject to rot and glass fiber is subject to surface cracks, called "crazing." Both are difficult and expensive to cure. A new gel-coat on a 30-foot glass fiber boat can easily cost $1700. Ferro-cement, however, neither rots nor crazes and, should it be cracked in colliding with another boat or a fixed object, can easily be repaired by undercutting the crack, filling it with epoxy, sanding it down and refinishing, much as a body mechanic refinishes a damaged auto panel.

Numerous books of instructions on how to build ferro-cement boats have been rushed into print and advertised in boating magazines as pioneers in the technique seek to popularize the new boat-building method.

If any members have built such a boat, or intend to do so, THE LATHER would be glad to receive progress pictures as the boat was completed, together with technical details on the construction.

NASA Honors Unions For Role in Moon Shot

Local unions in Louisiana and Mississippi, affiliated with more than a score of international unions, have been honored by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for their contributions to the Apollo space program.

Among the local unions honored by NASA was Lathers Local 62, New Orleans, La. Accepting the honor on behalf of the membership was Ralph Alphonso.

Officers of the locals were presented with certificates signed by Astronaut Edwin E. (Buzz) Aldrin, Jr., the second man on the moon, who is a member of the International Association of Machinists.

Making the presentations on behalf of Aldrin, tied down with a tight schedule for Apollo 14, was Robert E. King, director of labor relations for NASA. The ceremony took place during the Union-Industries Show in New Orleans, La.

James Stamy, manager of NASA's Michoud Assemblies Facility in New Orleans, praised the "excellence of craftsmanship" of the union workers, commenting that "if anything went wrong we'd hear about it but we've heard very little."

Stamy said that he could report to NASA "that the cooperation of the labor movement has been tremendous."

Ralph Alphonso, right, of Local Union 62, New Orleans, La., accepts citation for contribution to the Apollo space program tendered to the local union. Making presentation on behalf of Edwin E. Aldrin, Jr., second man on the moon, was Robert E. King, director of labor relations for NASA.

Dr. Preston Parish, Huntsville, Ala., chief assistant in safety for the Manned Flight Program, declared flatly that "you people and the people you represent are responsible for landing a man on the moon." He paid tribute to the "dedication" and "leadership" of trade unionists.

King, expressing "NASA's appreciation to the many thousands of employees represented by organized labor," quoted Aldrin as saying:

"We have seen men and women of America's labor forces at work on the vital components of the machinery and vehicles that carried us into space, men and women who have a tradition of quality work and who have never played false with that tradition for any consideration.

"The union label means quality, the assurance of the highest quality; and we know it. We want you to know how deeply grateful we are for your support, the support both of your labor and of the tax dollars that provided us with the complete machinery and equipment that assured both the success and safety of our mission."—PAI

Document of Destruction

In May of 1919 at Dusseldorf, Germany, the Allied Forces obtained a copy of some of the "Communist Rules for Revolution." In 1946, a U.S. attorney general obtained a copy of the same rules from a known member of the communist party. Today, we're told, these same rules are in effect. As you read them, mentally apply them to the present national condition and what you come up with will be frightening when you see the headway the rule-writers have made toward these goals:

A. Corrupt the young; get them away from religion. Get them interested in sex. Make them superficial; destroy their ruggedness.

B. Get control of all means of publicity, thereby:

1. Get people's minds off their government by focusing their attention on athletics, sexy books and plays and other trivialities.

2. Divide the people into hostile groups by constantly harping on controversial matters of no importance.

3. Destroy the people's faith in their natural leaders by holding the latter up to contempt, ridicule and disgrace.

4. Always preach true democracy, but seize power as fast and as ruthlessly as possible.

5. By encouraging government extravagance, destroy its credit; produce fear of inflation with rising prices and general discontent.

6. Incite unnecessary strikes in vital industries, encourage civil disorders and foster a soft and lenient attitude on the part of government to such disorders.

7. By specious argument, cause the breakdown of the old moral virtues-honesty, sobriety, self-restraint, faith in the pledged word, ruggedness.

Canada Facts for Convention Delegates

The Trans-Canada Highway nearly 5,000 miles long, from coast to coast, was opened in 1961.

Victoria, capital of the Province of British Columbia, staunchly upholds its British past with red double-decker buses, quaint teasshops, a replica of Anne Hathaway's cottage and hundreds of hanging baskets filled with flowers, periodically watered by a special water truck.

Fourth (Or Second?) of July?

erty, injustice and intolerance in our midst."

In his inaugural address, President Nixon was even more specific. Calling on the nation to "shape the future in the image of our hopes," he said:

"Greatness comes in simple trappings. The simple things are the ones needed today."

He then ticked off the challenges: full employment, better housing, urban renewal, the protection of our environment.

What can you do about what the President called "enhancing the quality of life in America?" Keeping informed on foreign, national and local issues is a good starting point. Read your newspaper . . . follow congressional debates . . . participate in town meetings . . . attend lectures by those knowledgeable in their fields. Such participation is essential if you want to prepare yourself intelligently to help elect officials who share your conviction. Public awareness is necessary if you subscribe to the warning of abolitionist Wendell Phillips:

"Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

What constitutes a vital issue, of course, may vary according to individual judgment. But there are few who would argue that the need for better housing is not a nationwide problem. Only the means of attaining the goal differ.

Some activists take to the streets with picket signs. You may prefer to join a tenants or neighborhood committee to upgrade living conditions. You can also make your voice heard in city hall public hearings. Or you can write to your elective representatives in support of housing legislation.

Responding to the needs of the times, some financial institutions have developed a new concept: the one-bank holding company. Banking remains the one-bank holding company's main business. But at the same time, it invests in nonbanking enterprises of vital service to the individual, the community and the nation.

These services range from providing insurance and family budgeting advice to tax assistance and credit card services. Increasingly, one-bank holding companies are meeting the housing challenge head on by supporting home-building firms, real estate enterprises and land-development corporations.

The threat to our environment is another challenge facing America.

This, too, is being tackled at both the individual and corporate levels. In Industry, manufacturers are producing pollution-reducing engines for your car. Lead-free gasoline aims at the same goal. Detergent-makers are coming up with washing powders low in phosphates—an ingredient which contributes to lake and river pollution. Chemists have devised pesticides which can do the job without poisoning the environment. A New Jersey glass company is buying up and reprocessing junk bottles to help clear up our cluttered landscape.

You can add your thrust to this drive toward giving meaning to "America the Beautiful." Don't litter your sidewalks or highways. Join a conservation society such as the Sierra Club, the Audubon Society, the National Wildlife Federation. Support local, state and national legislation aimed at saving the quality of the air, the land and the water from further deterioration.

Too much trouble? Not if you keep in mind that it's all as much a part of our heritage as the Declaration of Independence. It was Thomas Paine who warned:

"Those who expect to reap the blessing of freedom must, like men, undergo the fatigue of supporting it."

REPORT

from the General President

SAL MASO

After careful evaluation of all factors involved, particularly the recommendation of doctors that I curtail my obligations, and bearing in mind the old saying, "Time marches on," I regretfully announce that I will not be a candidate for re-election at the forthcoming 27th International Convention in Vancouver, Canada.

Nothing which has happened in my life has given me more satisfaction, or more pride, than my 43 years of membership in the International Union of Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers. During my administration as General President, we have seen the membership preserved and the effectiveness of the organization on behalf of working men and their families maintained. In all other branches of the building trades unions and in the field of organized labor as a whole, there has been a corresponding growth and increase in effectiveness. It has been because of these factors that the working men of the nation have been able to keep step with the flood of constantly rising prices. Through its concerted efforts, organized labor has also achieved significant social welfare gains.

I first became an International Vice President in 1936, and was elected General President in 1964. Although I have been privileged to serve on many state and national bodies in government, as well as in organized labor, and was the proud recipient of citations for service to the nation by Presidents Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower, nothing has given me more personal satisfaction than my service to the LIU.

But "no man is an island", and no man can look back over a successful and rewarding career and truthfully say: "I did it all by myself!" Many hundreds, even thousands, of people have helped me in achievements. To name more than one would be impossible, since some would surely be slighted and space would not permit listing them all. But I must give credit to my dear wife, Agnes, whose patience and understanding, particularly while I have been absent on union business, have made a successful career possible and a successful marriage a thing of continuing joy.

While stepping down from the office of General President, I cannot break the habits of a lifetime. The welfare of the LIU will continue to be close to my heart. I stand ready to advise and assist whenever and wherever it may be desirable in order to protect our trade jurisdiction, the most important objective of the International.

In closing, I would like to thank all those individuals and organizations who pledged me their endorsements and support for reelection as General President. I want to especially thank the loyal members of the headquarters staff who have given me the utmost in cooperation. I trust they will continue their efficient and effective service on behalf of my successor, to whom, whoever he may be, go my best wishes for a successful and productive tenure in office on behalf of all the members of the International.

cover

"Old Faithful" geyser in Yellowstone National Park is symbolic of the many scenic wonders which delegates, alternates and visitors to the upcoming 27th LIU convention in Vancouver may elect to see en route there or when returning. The West is studded with much beautiful scenery and natural phenomena. "Old Faithful" named in 1870 by Gen. H. D. Washburn, is really not so terribly faithful. While its average eruption is every 64.5 minutes, it varies from 33 to 93 minutes. Eruptions range from 2½ to 5 minutes' duration, discharging from 10,000 to 12,000 gallons of water and steam. Average height is 150 feet. The scene on the cover is an unusually high one. Note comparative size of the park ranger seen at lower right of the geyser's base. There are 200 geysers and more than 10,000 hot springs in Yellowstone's 2¼ million acres.

REPORT

from the General Secretary-Treasurer

Help for the depressed state of the residential building industry, which has resulted in serious under-employment and unemployment of LIU members throughout the nation, is underway. The federal government is promoting a program designed to increase voluntary private investment in housing.

The program has two distinct parts. The first portion involves a voluntary increase in direct lending, principally for residential construction, by commercial banks and life insurance companies. According to the Secretary of the Treasury, pledges of a billion-dollar increase in such lending during 1970 have been made by the banks. Life insurance companies have pledged a $550 million increase.

The second segment involves the sale of mortgage-backed bonds, primarily to private pension funds and those of state and local governments. Labor union pension funds will be especially encouraged to participate in the program. The bonds will be issued through the Federal National Mortgage Association and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. They will be guaranteed by the Government National Mortgage Association, a division of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The program is already underway. The first issue of mortgage-backed bonds was sold on May 19, in the amount of \$150 million one-year maturities and \$250 million five-year maturities with interest of  $8\frac{1}{8}$  and  $8\frac{3}{8}$  percent respectively. It was sold primarily to private pension funds. The second issue will be floated shortly by the Federal Home Loan Banks.

The bonds, available in denominations of \$25,000, commend themselves to the managers of union pension funds on a variety of counts. They are a high-yield investment. They are as risk-free as an investment can possibly be, since they are guaranteed by the U.S. government. They have a high degree of liquidity, if the pension fund should, by some remote set of circumstances, suddenly need cash. Finally . . . and this applies primarily to building and construction trades unions . . . they are an instrument for keeping those members not on pension at work and contributing to pension funds while, at the same time, providing income to the pension funds for those members who have entered retirement. A \$25,000 five-year bond at  $8\frac{3}{8}$ % would yield \$10,470.

This program is not the last word in financing the housing which the nation urgently needs, but it is a start. It will not make it possible to build the 2.2 to 2.5 million new housing units per year which it is estimated will be required by the burgeoning population between now and 1978. But it is better than nothing at all. It will not, of itself, put all the unemployed and under-employed construction workers back on jobs full time, but it will help.

If all interested parties to the construction scene would participate in such a program, its effectiveness would be greatly enhanced. If big contractors, lumbering interests, and large suppliers of the needs of builders would join by placing some of their cash reserves into such a program, the effectiveness of the two-pronged attack on our housing problem could be vastly improved. Meanwhile, let us hope that banks, insurance companies and pension funds will react enthusiastically to the program.

More Than 500 Guests Attend Banquet In Honor of Pat Mullane's Retirement

The New Jersey State Council of Lathers honored Pat W. Mullane, upon his retirement, with a testimonial dinner-dance at the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark, N. J., on May 16 with more than 500 guests attending.

Presentations were made to Brother Mullane by John Guzzi, President of the New Jersey State Building and Construction Trades Council, and Emil Maso, President of the New Jersey State Council of Lathers.

Brother Mullane was born in Jersey City, N. J., and attended schools in that community. He became a member of the Wood, Wire & Metal Lathers International Union in 1927. He quickly took an active interest in the labor movement and was elected President of the New Jersey State Council of Lathers in 1928, an office he held for 41 years. He was elected Business Representative of Lathers Local 67 in 1938 and Lathers Local 85 in 1942. He was a delegate to all conventions of the Wood, Wire & Metal Lathers International Union from 1946 to 1967.

His activities were not limited to the Lathers' organization alone, but extended to the Building Trades and Municipal service. He served as Financial Secretary and President of the Hudson County Board of Business Representatives and the Hudson County Building & Construction Trades Council. On the state level, Pat has been a delegate to the annual conventions of the New Jersey State Building & Construction Trades Council for 31 years, serving as Chairman of the Credential Committee for 20 consecutive years.

In 1951, he was appointed Superintendent of Buildings of Jersey City by Mayor John V. Kenny and served in that capacity until 1966, when he

Ohio AFL-CIO To Set Up Own Auto Insurance Firm

The 1,800 delegates to the Ohio AFL-CIO convention in Cleveland recently voted to begin a labor-operated auto insurance company for the benefit of union members in the state.

Formation of the company after years of fighting losing battles against unfair auto insurance rates and practices was the highlight of the state federation's three-day biennial convention.

Before the decision was reached to go into the auto insurance business, state AFL-CIO Pres. Frank W. King and Sec.-Treas. Warren J. Smith told the convention of a four-year battle by the state labor federation to stop massive price hikes, arbitrary cancellations and other acts of discrimination practiced by the auto insurers.

Smith described unsuccessful efforts to persuade the industry-oriented superintendent of insurance to reject rate hike requests; to reform Ohio's weak auto insurance laws in the state legislature, and to challenge the laws in state courts.

Finally, the Ohio AFL-CIO entered federal court where an anti-trust suit charging price-fixing and violations of the Sherman Anti-trust Act is still pending.

"Rejections at all levels have left us with this only alternative" said King and Smith as they reported a recommendation to begin the auto insurance company.

Smith said the firm will be a stock company. The Ohio AFL-CIO plans to mortgage its headquarters building in Columbus to acquire the $250,000 necessary to be deposited with the state to begin stock sale. Some $5 million in stock will be offered for sale to local and international unions, individual union members and other interested persons and organizations.

Convention delegates were assured the state AFL-CIO would be able to offer quality auto insurance at lower costs because it would employ cost-saving techniques such as computer processing of policies, plow-back of investment income into operations of the company, elimination of expensive advertising programs, and operation of the firm on a non-profit basis.

The convention gave its new executive board authority to grant final approval of the company at the appropriate time.—PAI

Cost-Saving Metal Lath Wall is Key Element in "Breakthrough"

A precast lath and plaster wall which can be transported without cracking is among the most dramatic innovations to emerge from the "Operation Breakthrough" sponsored by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The wall, a key element in General Electric Company's modular building system, is constructed of expanded metal lath sheets welded to steel studs, then dipped in a pool of plaster containing reinforcing fibers. Wall sections can be lifted and painted within one hour. Ceiling sections are likewise formed as single units. The unique construction enables the panels to withstand flexing and jolting without cracking. And, since the sections are cast in lengths up to 32 feet, walls and ceilings in completed buildings are joint-free.

G.E.'s aim, according to spokesman Albert T. Christensen, was a "house that looks like a house, is better built than the average house, but costs less than a traditional house." Representatives of the Chicago-based Metal Lath Association noted that this was one of a variety of new techniques in metal lath and plaster construction developed in response to urgencies of cost, weight, and construction time savings.

The G.E. experience, said MLA, reinforces other recent experimentation which has produced a range of metal lath exterior wall systems offering substantial savings in both direct cost and weight over conventional methods—while providing for "maximum creative expression" in the development of overall forms and in detailing. Case study coverage of typical installations is included in the Associations quarterly, "The Metal Lath News." Copies of the News and a specification sheet for metal lath curtain wall are available from the Metal Lath Association at 221 North LaSalle Street, Chicago, Illinois 60601.

Charles Parrish, Lather in Raleigh, N.C., Invents New Plaster-Mixing Power Tool

By James Wicker, Staff Writer
THE DURHAM SUN

A new tool for the plastering, painting and dry wall finishing trades is now being manufactured in Durham, North Carolina, the invention of a member of Local 510 in Raleigh.

The product, called the "minit mixer" at this stage, was invented by Robert Bailey, 39, of Raleigh, formerly of Durham, and developed by Charles Parrish, 32, of Rt. 6, Durham—brothers-in-law who will be producing products under the name B&P Enterprises.

Patent rights have been reserved on the mixing aid, and the two hope to get patent numbers for the three types of the mixer within a year. The invention is now protected for one year.

The mixer, the two explained, will mix heavy sprays, plaster, dry wall finishing material and paint "about three times faster and more thoroughly" than any other method now being used by tradesmen.

If there is any mixing device available anywhere which can fill the need which led Bailey to invent the quick mixer, he has not heard of it, he said.

Bailey added he has worked as a plasterer and dry wall finisher in eight states and the District of Columbia for the past 17 years.

The two, working in a welding shop in West Durham, are producing 360 of the mixers for trial marketing purposes, having been given the go-ahead by an attorney who is handling the patent procedures.

The mixing tool, which will be powered by electric drills from three-eighths inch up, is made from one-eighth inch flat stock steel and roll steel. It has a 24-inch shaft and, depending upon the type—rotor, triangle or square—has three, four and five mixing blades.

One special feature of the mixer, Parrish explained, is its angled blades, which create a "down draft" in the bucket of material being mixed, thus eliminating "sloshing" or spills during the mixing process.

Bailey explained that he invented the mixer some two years ago and had been "experimenting and improving it, using it in my own work."

Recently, Bailey and Parrish, a welder by trade, combined their efforts and abilities and began making the mixers with the feeling that it could revolutionize the plastering, painting and dry wall finishing trades.

"Time in business is essential, every minute means money in the pocket for these men," Bailey said, explaining that if 15,000 plasterers—for example—could eliminate four minutes mixing time per bucket of plaster, it would give them literally hundreds of extra hours per year.

Parrish said, "the reason we made the three different types was so anybody else who might decide to make a mixer couldn't get close to ours."

The two said that they are developing three other tool ideas at this time, and, if the "minit mixer" proves to be a success on the market, B&P Enterprises "will produce many new tools for the dry wall finishing trade in the future."

While the mixer is the first inven-

Plasterers' President

Joseph T. Power has been named president of the Plasterers & Cement Masons following the resignation of Pres. Edward J. Leonard because of ill health. The union's executive board accepted Leonard's resignation and named him President Emeritus. Power, who is 50, had been Executive Vice President since 1959.

tion Bailey has sought to put into production himself, it is not his first original idea.

Some years ago he came up with—and designed—an instrument while working for a firm in another state, but at that time he was not aware of patent protection and today the product is being manufactured and marketed with no benefit to him, he says.

"I thought of this mixer," he explained, "because I needed something that would mix my plaster more thoroughly and faster."

Apprentices May Work On Davis-Bacon Projects

Apprentices may be legally employed on a federal construction project under Davis-Bacon if they are individually registered under a bona-fide apprenticeship program. This program must be listed with a State Apprenticeship Agency recognized by the U.S. Department of Labor. If no such agency exists, apprentices must be registered under a program listed with the Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training of the Department of Labor.

Munro Says Strikers Entitled to Welfare

Welfare benefits must be paid to unemployed workers who can show need even if their need is the result of a strike, Canadian Health Minister John Munro has told the Commons.

He said his department will take action to ensure that payments are made under the terms of the Canada Assistance Plan if any specific instances of abuse are brought to its attention.

The minister was replying to a question about a report that Social Welfare Minister Philip Gaglardi of British Columbia will deny welfare assistance to workers involved in strikes in the province.

Outside the Commons, Munro said he has sent a telegram to Gaglardi to make clear that need is the only qualification placed on welfare payments and to state that action will be taken to uphold the federal welfare scheme.

Inside: The Story of the Vancouver Convention

A Statement of Policy

A new era of unity and common purpose was born at the 27th Convention in Vancouver, British Columbia. Every officer of every subordinate organization, together with every member, is invited to take part in this program for progress with us.

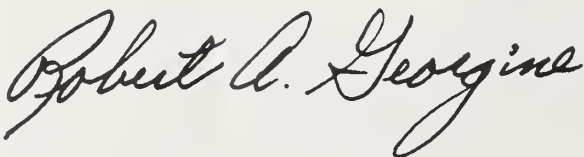

It is our desire to work jointly for the best interests of all members of the Lathers International Union, without favoritism and without restraint. When we expend our energies in contention, arguments and disruptions within our Brotherhood, we hurt ourselves and benefit those who may be working in opposition to our best interests.

This is not to say that "Utopia is at hand." All lathers will not suddenly be employed at fabulous wage rates. The problems posed by jurisdiction will not suddenly disappear. But we do plan on applying our energies with renewed vigor to the problems at hand, working in concert. And those who share our concern for the welfare of the lathers are invited to participate in this endeavor.

Our organization has a slogan: "The Injury to One is The Concern of All." While this is as true today as it was when this organization was founded, there is another axiom equally true: "The Advancement of All Is the Concern of Everyone." We must not only be alert to the individual injury; we must also unite to seek the advancement of all who make their livings by working at the trade of lathing.

We anticipate that new procedures will be instituted in the International Headquarters. These will be brought into play gradually, so the existing routine will not be disrupted. We would ask those who, from time to time, have contact with the International Headquarters to pay close attention to their official mail, so that they may be kept posted on any new procedures which may be instituted in order to make our relations more efficient and effective.

It is our intention to discharge our responsibilities as the two principal officers of this organization in harmony and to the very best of our abilities. To this end we invite the cooperation of all concerned, so that we may go forward together.

It has become a tradition for the photograph of the newly elected President of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union to adorn the front cover of the issue of the magazine following the convention which elected him. # Story of The 27th Convention

Vancouver Conclave is Busy With Elections As President Maso Retires; Georgine Elected As Successor; Ferguson Is Returned to Office

The 27th Triennial Convention of the Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union opened in the Hotel Vancouver, Vancouver, B.C., Canada, on August 10 and closed on August 14.

The overwhelming feature of the convention, of paramount interest to the delegates and guests in attendance, was the election of officers, as well as resolutions which raised the per capita tax paid to the International.

Robert "Bob" Georgine, Local Union 74, an International Representative since 1964, ran successfully for General President. General Secretary-Treasurer J. Earl Ferguson was re-elected. New members of the Executive Board include Kenneth Edwards, Third Vice President, and James Sweeney, Sixth Vice President. Former Sixth Vice President Henry J. Sheerin was elected Second Vice President. Former Second Vice President E. R. "Russ" Baldwin ran unsuccessfully for General Secretary-Treasurer. (See box on page 18 for complete election returns.)

By favorable action on Resolution 17, the delegates raised the per capita tax to cover the increased expenses of the International. Resolutions to this effect had been endorsed by the Executive Council. By acting favorably on Resolution 72, the delegates voted to increase the per capita tax payable to the Funeral Benefit Fund to cover the cost of increased funeral benefits. The delegates also increased the compensation paid the General President and that of the General Secretary-Treasurer, as well as that of the International Representatives, together with increased expense allowances to accommodate the increased cost of living caused by the inflationary trend.

The delegates authorized the General President to appoint a committee to study the desirability of establishing an International-wide Health and Welfare Plan.

Delegates to conventions of affiliated organizations in the future will receive the same salary allowance received by International Representatives, plus the same per diem expenses allowed the General President and General Secretary-Treasurer, plus first-class air fare to and from their home cities.

The officers of the LIU were authorized to investigate the possibility of selling the present International Headquarters building in Takoma Park, Maryland, in accordance with a resolution introduced by the Executive Council.

Hosts for the convention were the Inter-Provincial Council of Lathers, the Western Canada Council of Lathers and affiliated local unions. The hosts had a full schedule of interesting events planned for the delegates, their wives and guests.

On Sunday evening, there was a "mixer" in the British Room of the Vancouver Hotel, featuring refreshments and music. On Monday afternoon there was a fashion show for the ladies presented by Patricia Stevens. On Tuesday afternoon there was a conducted bus sightseeing tour of the city for all delegates and wives. On Wednesday evening there was a scenic boat cruise around Vancouver Harbor with a smorgasbord served on board the vessels, music and bar facilities. On Thursday evening there was a cocktail hour preceding the convention banquet, followed by a floor show and dancing.

A daily summary of the convention follows.

Registration desk was a busy place early Monday morning. Here Secy.-Treas. Ferguson (seated) issues expense checks to delegates who have registered. Standing is J. D. Bingham (26) Credentials Committeeman.

August 10, 1970
Monday Morning Session

Shortly after 10:00 a.m., the colors of Canada and the United States were trooped into the hall, escorted by a bagpipe quartet.

International Vice President Arlyn H. Burton opened the convention, welcoming the delegates and inviting them to contact the convention committee at any time in order to make their stay more pleasant. He announced that a separate program had been planned for the young people who had accompanied their parents, concerning which more would be heard later. After expressing his pleasure at welcoming the delegates and visitors to Canada and Vancouver, he officially turned over the convention gavel to President Maso.

Bob Doyle of Vancouver played "The Star Spangled Banner" and "O Canada" on the piano, after which a brief address and the opening invocation was given by the Reverend Berwyn R. Roberts of the United Church of Canada. He prayed for a blessing on the workers of the world and the success of the convention.

His Honor, Thomas J. Campbell, Mayor of Vancouver, gave the official welcome on behalf of the City Council and all the citizens, to the officers, delegates and visitors. He pointed out that it was a pleasure to have the meeting here, but one which had been delayed for 33 years since an LIU convention has last been held in Canada. He urged the visitors if at all possible to see the City of Vancouver and its environs.

General Secretary-Treasurer John J. Hauck of the Operative Plasterers and Cement Masons International Union spoke to the delegates, pointing out that he has had the longest consecutive service as an officer in a building trades union. He paid tribute to Edward J. Leonard, recently-retired General President of the OP & CMIU, and to Joseph Power, who has recently been elected to succeed Leonard.

Hauck related the legal history of a recent Supreme Court decision which has overturned a 1962 Supreme Court decision, relating to strike injunctions against unions and urged the delegates to consider excluding no-strike provisions when negotiating future collective bargaining contracts. "We must redraft our agreements to protect the rights of our members," he said.

Hauck also said that plastering contractors "need more heart" in promotion of lath and plaster. He pointed out an increase in the number of apprentices relative to the number of journeymen over the past three years, and pointed to three training programs which the OP & CMIU now has in progress. In referring to the upcoming elections in the LIU, he said that "it takes a rough sea to tell the good sailors from the bad" and he hoped that the convention "will be able to weather the storms ahead."

Chairman L. F. Little of Local 14 announced a meeting of the Rules and Order Committee in the Garibaldi Room immediately: a similar meeting of the Grievance Committee was called by Chairman Stan Arnold, Local 5.

President Maso introduced Jack Sherlock, Director of the British Columbia Human Rights Act, who pointed out that "It is difficult to be objective when you are either a unionist or an employer" and that his agency is seeking to bring harmony between the two parties in B.C. whenever and wherever possible. He wished the delegates a most successful convention.

N. Wasserman, Chairman of the General President's Report Committee, announced a meeting of his group in the rear of the hall at the noon recess. R. F. Coullahan, Chairman of the Committee on Organization, announced a meeting in the Garibaldi Room.

A. F. Peysen, Local 421, Chairman of the Sergeant-at-Arms Committee, called a meeting for the noon recess.

A partial report of the Credentials Committee, which had met Sunday and early Monday morning, was given by Chairman Tom Miller, Local 492. A partial report listing approximately 320 delegates and alternates and about six challenges was read into the record by Miller and adopted by the delegates on a voice vote. On his motion, those delegates not seated by the convention action were accorded all the privileges except votes on money items pending their seatings.

General Secretary-Treasurer Ferguson made an announcement relative to partial reimbursement of delegates and also advised that their checks could be cashed in the Hotel Vancouver.

President Maso read a telegram of good wishes from Joseph P. McCurdy, President of the United Garment Workers Union and announced that the Laws Committee and the Resolutions Committee have been combined, with C. B. Gariss, California State Council, and E. J. Bedell, Local 346, as co-chairmen. It was additionally announced that the combined committee would meet at 2:00 p.m. in the Alouette Room.

Monday Afternoon Session

The convention was called to order by President Maso, at which time he introduced C. J. "Neil" Haggerty, International First Vice President and President of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department.

Vice President Haggerty said he was proud to have held membership in the LIU since 1915 and proud to be associated with the building and construction trades unions. He related how, shortly after President Nixon was elected, he cut back federal spending in behalf of housing by 75 percent. Later Haggerty and other B & CTD officers met with Nixon and pleaded with him to reconsider, even urging that he "spend federal money carefully on needed housing."

Haggerty pointed out that, while the national average for unemployment in the United States at the present time is about four and a half percent, the average unemployment in the building trades is closer to fifteen percent. He suggested that the Nixon Administration copy the housing program employed in New York State by Governor Rockefeller . . . "spending the money where it is most needed."

He was accorded a rousing ovation as he concluded.

The report of the Committee on Rules and Order was given by Chairman Leo Little and was adopted by a unanimous vote without debate.

Charles F. Clay, Director of the Northwest Lath and Plaster Bureau, Managing Director of Lathing and Plastering Promotions, Inc., and editor of the magazine "Walls and Ceilings," was introduced by President Maso. He told the delegates of the great importance of proper promotion of lath and plaster and pointed out that the original program was begun in Seattle in 1941. Since that time it has spread all over the United States and Canada. "The philosophy behind the program," he said, "is for us to go out and tell the architects, public and government officials that we have a superior product, rather than telling each other." The program is supported by an employer contribution of ten cents per hour, which keeps five full-time field men at work. He said he would remain at the convention for the next two days or so, and was eager to confer with any and all interested delegates, explaining the promotion program designed to bring more employment to lathers.

Chairman N. Wasserman of the President's Report Committee reported that his committee had fully endorsed the report of the General President as a whole. The committee's report was adopted by a voice vote without debate.

Following the announcement of several meetings and caucuses, President Maso declared that, inasmuch as several committees were meeting at present and no other committees were available to report, the convention would suspend the rules and adjourn for the day if there was no objection. There being none, he recessed the afternoon session of the first day.

SECOND DAY August 11, 1970 Tuesday Morning Session

Local Committee Chairman Al Burton made an announcement concerning the boat trip to take place Wednesday evening. Because of Provincial laws concerning serving liquor, no one under 19 years old can be allowed on the boats. Buses will load at the hotel entrance at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday.

Burton also announced that gifts to delegates from the Walls and Ceilings Contractors of British Columbia would be available outside the convention hall at 4:30 p.m.

The Honorable William Dodge, Secretary-Treasurer of the Canadian Labour Council, spoke to the convention, pointing out that the Lathers International Union is one of the oldest affiliates of the CLC and quoted newspaper accounts of 1901 where it was detailed that lathers were on strike for a five-cent increase to 30 cents per hour.

The speaker stressed that, while individual unions can bargain for themselves, many other factors, including a favorable climate for beneficial legislation, are dependent on all of organized labor. He pointed out that this coordinated effort, made by the AFL-CIO in the United States, is carried forward by the CLC in Canada.

He stressed that the CLC's "unrelenting opposition" to wage guidelines being imposed has made it possible for many favorable collective bargaining contracts to be negotiated.

"Unions may differ as to details, but they must unite in behalf of major goals such as legislation, medicare, pollution control, equitable taxes and adequate housing," Dodge declared. He said that the CLC continues its policy of encouraging mergers of unions with similar or overlapping jurisdictions in Canada and said that Canadian labor looks on the tendency of the United States to move toward a protectionist trade policy as a "dangerous trend." In concluding, he paid tribute to the strength and militance of the trade union movement in British Columbia.

General Counsel Lou Wilderman, introduced by President Maso, pointed out that he had been the lawyer for the LIU for 15 years, and warned that the National Labor Relations Board in the United States will not long be "a friend of organized labor." To offset such trends, the unity and brotherhood of all unions is needed, he stated.

He detailed how he had worked with a Canadian local union in opposing a move by the carpenters union which would legally inhibit the right of lathers' locals to sign contracts with subcontractors. "We must continue to spend money to protect our jurisdiction," he said. "It is expensive, but it is necessary."

The Credentials Committee made an additional partial report and announced that the committee would be available for registrations every day from 9:30 to 10:00 a.m. up to elections.

H. E. Campbell, Local Union 7, denied a seat by the committee's report, appealed to the convention and was seated after floor discussions. The rest of the Credentials Committee report was accepted by voice vote.

The Auditing Committee report, made by Chairman R. H. Worthy, was accepted by a voice vote.

The Executive Council Report Committee's report, given by Chairman M. J. Branighan, was adopted without dissent.

The Secretary-Treasurer's Report Committee's report, given by Chairman A. D. Eason, was adopted without dissent.

There being no other committees ready to report, President Maso adjourned the convention until Wednesday morning at 10 a.m., so that the delegates and visitors might be taken on a sightseeing bus ride of the city, arranged by the Local Committee.

THIRD DAY

Wednesday Morning Session

A special supplemental report of the Credentials Committee was made by Chairman Tom Miller. The report was accepted by voice vote. He announced that the committee would continue to accept credentials until 10 a.m. Thursday. Later in the session, Chairman Miller announced that there had been a total of 270 local union delegates and 51 delegates from regional, state and provincial councils registered, making a total registration until 10 a.m. Wednesday of 321. He announced that all delegates who had presented credentials had been seated.

President Maso reported that the verbatim proceedings of the previous two days' sessions were available at the rostrum, should any delegate desire to refer to them.

After floor discussion, it was the sense of the convention that the resolutions presented to the convention would be reproduced and made available to the delegates in advance of the report of the Resolutions Committee.

Walter Gray, of the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education (COPE) spoke to the delegates, outlining the problems of a political nature faced by organized labor in the United States and asked the cooperation and financial assistance of the U.S. delegates. In closing, Gray said that COPE greatly appreciated the past cooperation it had received from the International and called on all members to participate on the local level through financial assistance and participation in registration drives.

Fred K. Hoehler, Jr., Executive Director of the AFL-CIO Labor Studies Center, told the convention that the labor movement must move forward to continue its record of accomplishment in the past but that conditions now are greatly changed. He said that labor will have to be the motivating force in order to bring about needed social changes. In order to achieve these changes, labor will need a large and astute body of leaders; men and women trained in leadership, educated to counter well-trained employer opposition. The Labor Studies Center was founded in Washington, D. C., in February, 1969, and has begun its function; to train leaders for organized labor who can "see the big picture." He reviewed the catalogue of courses and expressed the hope that some of those present would be able to attend the Center.

Leo Schultz, Executive Director of the National Lathing Industry's Joint Apprenticeship Program, declared that the apprenticeship program has changed greatly over the past seven years. In 1964, however, the Federal Government issued Title 29, Part 30, covering apprenticeship selection. This was revised last spring and another revision is due this fall. He encouraged all local unions to comply with the regulations "and learn to live with it" since, he declared, the alternative may be for the Federal Government to take over operation and control of apprenticeship training programs.

Raymond Coullahan, Chairman of the Committee on Organization, declared that his committee would delay its report until the resolutions were printed.

The candidates for the top office pose together; Robert "Bob" Georgine and Dave Richardson. During course of meeting, they were often on same side of the discussion.

Leo Schultz Dies

After he had spoken to the Vancouver convention, Leo C. Schultz went on a short vacation in Indianapolis with members of his family. While visiting, Mr. Schultz was stricken with a fatal heart attack.

Mr. Schultz became Executive Director of the Mountain States Bureau of Lathing and Plastering in Denver in 1953. In 1963 he became Executive Director of the National Lathing Industry's Joint Apprenticeship Program, with headquarters in Annapolis, Md. He received the Outstanding Industry Employee award in 1969 from the Walls and Ceilings Industry.

The heartfelt sympathy of the officers and members of the Lathers International Union go to the bereaved members of his family. His loss will be a grievous one to the lathing industry.

The convention recessed at 11:10 until 2:00 p.m.

On a motion from the floor the convention rose and stood in silent tribute to the memory of the late International Vice President John Sheehan and all other members of the International who passed away since the last election.

President Maso spoke to the delegates, calling on them to unite behind "whoever may be elected as your leader" in the elections to be held on the following day. "Our future as an organization is at stake," he declared. He said that he knew full well the burdens that his successor would have to bear and he hoped that all members would give the new General President "your wholehearted support."

Following his speech, C. Roland Henry of the Southern Lathers Delegation called for the delegates to applaud the remarks of Pres. Maso.

The convention adjourned until Thursday morning.

FOURTH DAY

Thursday Morning Session

Copies of all resolutions received by the Resolutions Committee were distributed to the delegates as the session began. A summary of the previous day's sessions was also distributed.

David Barrett, member of the Democratic Socialist Party, spoke to the convention, spoke in opposition to the existing politico-economic systems in Canada and the U. S. He warned against possible future incursions by right-wing groups and urged that labor people enter politics, most especially as candidates, and said they should "go after the changes in society you desire."

Tom Miller, Chairman of the Credentials Committee, made a final report, listing a total of 326 delegates and 20 alternates. He announced that late registrations would still be accepted until the time voting began.

Thomas J. McGlone, President of the International Association of Walls and Ceilings Contractors, speaking to the convention, warned that excessive wage settlements could lead to pricing their product out of the market and called on business agents to "exercise statesmanship" in keeping wage agreements within reasonable bounds. He invited the new LIU President to the contractors' meeting in Puerto Rico, to be held in September.

Thomas F. Murphy, President of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union, told the convention that "organized labor is suspect in the public mind" and called on them to help erase the misconception. He called on all to protect wages and conditions by organizing everyone who works in the various jurisdictions. He condemned "Operation Breakthrough" proposed by HEW Secretary George Romney and said that satisfactory and permanent housing could not be produced on an assembly-line basis, but must be produced by on-site workmen . . . "and preferably of brick, lath and plaster!" He called on all to be responsible labor leaders, fair to fair employers, in order to overcome the anti-labor bias "all too often found in ladies' societies, colleges, planes, trains and hotels."

The report of the Grievance Committee, rendered by Chairman Stan Arnold, upheld the actions of the Executive Council in all 23 cases appealed from it. The report was adopted by a voice vote following brief floor discussions.

Delegate Robert Georgine spoke from the floor, deploring the announced intention of the Walls and Ceilings Contractors' Association to enter into a proposed pact with the Carpenters' brotherhood. In response, Mr. McGlone said that the contractors were planning a "memorandum of agreement" with the carpenters deemed desirable to prevent work stoppages, which would not touch on jurisdictional matters. Pres. Maso declared that, if the contractors refused to sign agreements providing for full trade jurisdiction, "we will not furnish them any men."

Following announcements, Pres. Maso recessed the convention until 2 p.m., at which time the elections were to be held.

A swinging bagpipe quartet escorted the colors of Canada and the U.S. into convention hall on opening day. Officers of LIU followed the pipers.

Thursday Afternoon Session

The convention was called to order and elections were begun at 2 p.m. with the calling of the roll of local unions and state, regional and provincial councils. Balloting was completed at 4:05 p.m.

The report of the Resolutions Committee was begun by Chairman E. J. Bedell.

Resolution 9 was combined with Resolutions 10, 11, 12, 27, 28, 29, 30 and 58. The committee moved to concur. Resolution 21 was recommended non-concurrence by the committee and was rejected by the convention.

Resolution 22 was recommended to concur by the committee. President Maso spoke against the committee recommendation, stating that the financial condition of the LIU is such that the provisions of Resolution 22 would constitute a financial burden, and urged non-concurrence. The resolution was withdrawn.

Resolution 43 was recommended non-concur by the committee. The convention moved to refer it back to the committee for additional consideration; specifically the insertion of the word "recommend" that the Fund notify participating locals.

Resolution 44 was recommended concur by the committee. The convention rejected the resolution.

Resolution 50 was recommended to concur by the committee. The convention rejected the resolution as the session closed.

FIFTH DAY

Friday Morning Session

While the results of the election were announced during the banquet on the preceding evening, C. B. Gariss, Chairman of the Elections Committee, made a formal report to the delegates as the session opened. The results of the balloting will be found in a box on this page.

The new officers were inducted by retiring President Maso as the entire convention stood. In his remarks after he had administered the obligation of office, former President Maso declared that, now that the elections are over and the results are in, "it is the duty of all of us to give the new administration all cooperation possible. Keep in mind that every action by every officer may not suit everybody, but everything is done in the best interests of the International Union." There were numerous other pledges of cooperation from local and regional leaders from the floor of the convention, following which the gavel, symbol of authority, was transferred to the new president.

In his keynote speech, President Georgine thanked the delegates for their support and for "this greatest of all possible honors." He said that "we will be able to go on from here, all working together for one common cause . . . the latter."

He said that there were serious problems facing the union and the only way to overcome them is by pulling together; compounding all the good, intelligent brains we have. But he also warned that "there can be no short-cuts. Changes and progress will be gradual. I intend to work for the best relations possible with employers and other labor unions . . . and that includes the carpenters. We hope to be able to work out our problems without strife."

Pres. Georgine publicly thanked former Pres. Maso "for all that he has done for me" and both were given a resounding round of applause by the convention. In conclusion, he thanked "the wonderful people of Canada" for the way in which the convention had been accommodated.

Secretary-Treasurer Ferguson also spoke, stating that "it has been a great honor to represent the International Union for the past six years and that you have again displayed your confidence in me by my re-election. I assure you this confidence will not be broken. I will work 100 percent with the new General President," he said.

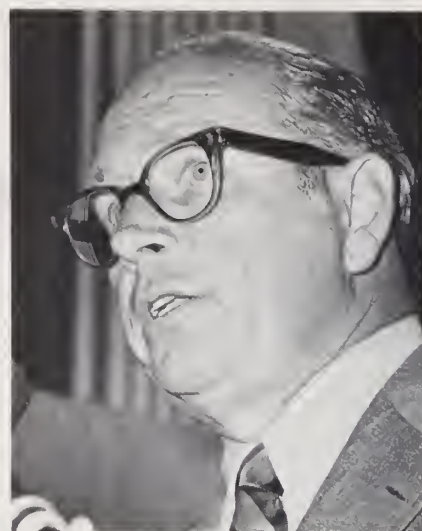

A Resolution of Thanks, introduced to the convention by Secretary-Treasurer Ferguson, passed unanimously by the delegates, highly praised all those who had worked to make the convention a resounding success. Special recognition was accorded Bro. William Johnson, Chairman of the Canadian Eastern Conference, and V.P. Arlyn Burton, Chairman of the Convention Committee.

Chairman H. F. Bartel of the Committee on Education, made the report for his committee, which was adopted by a voice vote.

The Resolutions Committee then continued with its reports and the convention adopted Resolutions 45, 46 (amended), 47, 48, 49 (amended), 52, 64. Rejected were Resolutions 53, 62, 63 and 65.

The convention voted to suspend the rules and continued working through the noon hour.

The Rev. Father Joseph Donohue, Chaplain of the Chicago and Cook County Building Trades Council, was introduced and spoke briefly to the convention, remarking that on this day, 45 years ago, he was made an apprentice of Local Union 74, prior to leaving the lathers' trade and entering the religious life.

Mark Cunningham, the International's certified public accountant, gave convention expert opinions on financing.

Resolutions Committee Chairman E. J. Bedell returned to the rostrum to report on resolutions which had been referred to his committee. The convention voted to adopt Res. 9 as originally reported. Res. 43 was combined with Res. 75 and the committee recommended that it be referred to the Executive Council. The convention adopted the committee recommendation. Other convention resolutions adopted included 55, 70 and 72. Rejection was voted on 51, 61, 66, 67, 68, 69, 73, 74, 76 and 77. No action was recommended on Res. 71, to which the convention agreed.

The Resolutions Committee recommended to the convention that, in the future, the Resolutions Committee be called into session in advance of the opening of the convention so action on resolutions might be expedited.

Pres. Georgine reminded the convention delegates that they had voted favorably on Resolutions 17 and 72, both of which increased the per capita tax paid to the International.

Chairman Bedell of the Resolutions Committee made a suggestion that the next convention be held in Atlantic City, N.J.

President Georgine thanked the delegates for their attentiveness and order during the conventions. He pledged to them his "best efforts" and solicited the assistance of all to that end. After a brief benediction by Fr. Donohue, Pres. Georgine closed the convention sine die.

"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

FROM THE PRESIDENT'S DESK

Never in recent years have the jobs of so many union members been in jeopardy.

The economists can haggle over definitions, but whatever they call the present economic situation—recession, rolling readjustment, stabilization, or any other term—it adds up to an economic crisis which threatens every one of us, and construction craftsmen in particular.

It is a crisis when five percent of the workforce is unemployed—and the percentage is rising all the time.

It is a crisis when no job is safe, when no American worker today can be sure his job will still be there tomorrow.

Any crisis has reasons. This one is no exception. Ill-advised government policies which actually created unemployment have plunged us into real economic peril.

Peril—there is no other word for the vise that squeezes workers between joblessness and fast-rising prices.

This is a political problem, not simply an economic one. Political leaders created these policies, and political leaders can undo them.

In the November 3 elections coming up, lathers and other workers can voice their rejection of these policies which threaten their jobs by voting for candidates who will reverse the swift decline toward economic catastrophe.

You can use your vote to save your job by voting for candidates for the U.S. House of Representatives and the Senate who are endorsed by your state's AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education. The records and programs of these candidates have been carefully studied. They are proven friends of working people. They care about your job, your security and your family's well-being. If they didn't, they wouldn't be endorsed by COPE and your union.

A note of caution: Conservative candidates who don't care a hoot about your job are trying to confuse this basic issue of 1970. They're filling the air with semantic smog about everything but the devastating problems of rising unemployment and soaring prices. Many of them actually share responsibility for the grave economic crisis we're in.

Certainly, there are other issues in 1970.

But try to think of one which is more important—really more important—than your job. Try to think of one, other than your job, that puts meat on your table, or clothes on your back, or keeps a roof over your head, or pays the bills, or sends your youngsters to school.

There isn't one!

Your job is the Number One Issue in November. To believe otherwise is a luxury no working person can afford. On November 3, vote for COPE-endorsed candidates.

The job you save may be your own!

cover

Our cover reminds us that Halloween is on the way. There is an old Scottish prayer which goes like this:
"From ghoulies and ghosties and long-leggety beasties
"And things that go bump in the night,
"Good Lord, deliver us!"

This coming Halloween, there will be a large number of small "ghoulies, ghosties and long-leggety beasties" going from house to house, promising tricks for no treats. Hopefully, many of them will also (or instead) ask for contributions to UNICEF. Those UNICEF pennies and the larger contributions will go to buy medicines and other necessities for deprived children all over the world.

BY THE GENERAL SECRETARY TREASURER

According to a survey by the Associated General Contractors, which views the trend with obvious alarm, "Construction workers are fast becoming members of the U.S. middle class. Some earn over $25,000 a year, and many building tradesmen have topped the $10,000-a-year mark."

As reported in "Engineering News-Record," the AGC survey of 1969 annual earnings of seven trades revealed that the average income, in 27 selected areas, averaged $11,342 a year in wages and fringe benefits. Assuming that fringes amount to 11 percent of earnings, this would indicate many construction workers are earning more than $10,000 a year in wages alone. This is slightly above the government estimate of that needed by a family of four to live modestly in urban America. This does not seem to be too much for a construction worker (or any worker!) to expect; enough to support his family "modestly."

But there is a difference in surveys, depending on who is taking them. A Bureau of Labor Statistics survey found that, in 1969, a construction worker, on the average, earned only about $8,605 a year, whereas a manufacturing production worker earned about $6,560.

The AGC survey reported that the lowest annual wages of the trades surveyed were bricklayers in Indiana ($4,720) and the largest paychecks went to operating engineers in eastern Pennsylvania (almost $26,000). The seven trades covered in the survey were: carpenters, bricklayers, laborers, cement masons, iron workers, operating engineers and teamsters.

The leadership of the AGC was quoted by "Engineering News-Record" as being concerned and perturbed over the wages. They commented on the survey without mentioning several vital and related factors:

- The earnings reported are admittedly only slightly above the government estimate of what is required to maintain a family of four in modest comfort in the nation today. Would the AGC suggest that construction workers, who provide the housing for the rest of the nation, should themselves live in substandard housing and under substandard conditions?

- While the cost of labor has admittedly increased, the cost of borrowing for construction loans has skyrocketed by comparison. So have land costs, both of which are passed on to the ultimate purchaser of the construction. No mention was made of this.

- The report does not even attempt to reconcile the difference (a considerable one) between the figures reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics (an average $8,605 annually) and the AGC figure of $11,342 annually (although the rare fact that the difference was actually noted is certainly commendable).

The vast majority of construction is accomplished under collective bargaining contracts which set wages. Much non-union work is done under wage rates largely determined by union rates in the area. It all goes to prove that belonging to a union makes it possible to live well, keep up with the progress of inflation and partake of some of "the good life" through a very modest monthly investment: your union dues!

Five Labor-Backed Senators Win Bids for Re-nomination

Labor-endorsed candidates scored almost a clean sweep in the latest series of primary elections in six states.

All labor-backed candidates for the U.S. Senate running for election or re-election were victorious: Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.), John O. Pastore (D-R.I.), Henry Jackson (D-Wash.) and Joseph Tydings (D-Md.). Senator Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) was unopposed.

Following are the state by state roundups:

Minnesota—Former Vice President Humphrey garnered close to 80 percent of the vote. His major opponent was Earl D. Craig, Jr., a black history instructor at the University of Minnesota who had the support of the New Democratic Coalition and the Americans for Democratic Action.

Humphrey will face Rep. Clark MacGregor in November who won the GOP nomination by a wide margin. The contest is for the seat being vacated by Senator Eugene J. McCarthy.

A move by right-wing forces to unseat liberal Rep. Donald Fraser was easily scuttled.

Maryland—Senator Tydings and Governor Marvin Mandel, both Democrats, won their primary elections with labor support. Mandel's victory was decisive while Tydings fought off

HUBERT H. HUMPHREY

JOHN O. PASTORE

HENRY JACKSON

JOSEPH TYDINGS

EDWARD KENNEDY

a more serious challenge by conservative builder George Mahoney.

Labor-endorsed Paul S. Sarbanes in Baltimore defeated incumbent Rep. George H. Fallon, chairman of the powerful House Public Works Committee. A recount may be necessary to determine the outcome of the Seventh District race between Rep. Samuel N. Friedel and Parren J. Mitchell.

Massachusetts—Senator Kennedy, without opposition, still polled about 73 percent of the Democratic vote. His November opponent will be a liberal Republican, Josiah A. Spaulding, who defeated John J. McCarthy, a retired army colonel.

Rep. Philip J. Philbin, second ranking Democrat on the House Armed Services Committee, was defeated by the Rev. Robert F. Drinan, a Catholic priest and dean of the Boston College Law School. Philbin, who had a good labor voting record, was charged with being a "hawk" by Rev. Drinan.

The Democratic nomination for retiring House Speaker John W. McCormack's seat was won by Mrs. Louise Day Hicks, an ultra conservative considered no friend of organized labor. She will face former GOP Rep. Laurence Curtis.

Winning the Democratic nomination for governor was Boston Mayor Kevin White. Labor largely backed State Senate President Maurice H. Donahue. White will oppose incumbent Governor Francis W. Sargent.

Washington—Senator Jackson won re-nomination over Carl Maxey, a black Spokane lawyer running as a "peace" candidate. Jackson, who had strong labor support, collected 85 percent of the primary vote.

Capturing the GOP nomination against Jackson was State Senator Charles Elicker, a nursing home operator.

Rhode Island — Senator Pastore, the fifth labor-backed Senatorial candidate, had little trouble in breezing to victory in his re-election bid.

In November he will face Rev. John McLaughlin, a Jesuit priest who was unopposed for the Republican nomination.

Liberal Democratic Governor Frank Licht was unopposed. He will face the winner of the GOP primary, Attorney General Herbert F. Desimone.

Oklahoma—David Hall, a "law and order candidate," won the Democratic nomination for governor over State Senator Bryce Baggett. His November opponent will be incumbent Governor Dewey Barlett, seeking an unprecedented second term, and Reuel Little, a third party candidate.—PAI

How Much Is A Human Life Worth?

The 1,500 to 1,800 deaths, together with the 3,500 to 4,500 injuries, which occur annually at the nation's railroad grade crossings could be cut in at least half if needed repairs were made at about 30,000 of the nation's crossings. This is the report of a study prepared for the Federal Railroad Administration. The survey organization recommended safety improvements which would cost approximately $580 millions.

AFL-CIO President Meany to Make Broadcast on Election Importance

AFL-CIO President George Meany will make two nationwide radio broadcasts on "the worker's stake in the 1970 elections."

The two broadcasts will be carried by the Columbia Broadcasting System (CBS) on Thursday nights, October 22 and 29, at 7:35 p.m. (Eastern Standard Time). However, it is possible that some of the 251 local stations will carry the broadcast at another time, so local schedules should be consulted.

President Meany will be addressing his remarks concerning the importance of the elections to the workers of the nation. Every local union officer is urged to do everything possible to call these broadcasts forcefully to the attention of his local union membership in order to build the largest possible listening audience.

Vacation Money Available From L.U. 406 Employment

Members who worked within the jurisdiction of Local 406, Fort Lauderdale, Florida, from September, 1969, through April, 1970, and have since left that jurisdiction may have vacation money due them, according to Secretary-Treasurer Dennis M. Vaden.

Any member in this category should contact Florida Administrators Inc., P. O. Box 220, Coral Gables, Fla. 33134. Those writing will expedite payment if they include their social security number, employer and dates of employment in the first letter.

Experts File Opposite Reports on The Economy

Rarely have economists differed as much as they do now over the state of the economy. Hendrik S. Houthakker, a member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, has predicted that "we can look forward to substantial gains in real output from now on." On the other hand, the Wall Street Journal cites another government economist as noting that the "growth of personal income still isn't as strong as last year." Labor economists continue to insist that as long as today's high interest rates persist, the economy just isn't going to go anywhere.

Corporate Profits Jump Sharply in Second Quarter

After-tax profits of U.S. manufacturing corporations were up 16 percent in the second quarter of 1970 the government reported, reversing a decline for several previous quarters.

The Federal Trade Commission and the Securities & Exchange Commission report showed that profits in the April-June period were up $1.1 billion over the first three months of the year to a total of $8 billion for the quarter.

Figured on profits per dollar of sales, the second quarter showed 4.4 cents compared to 4.0 cents for the earlier quarter. The annual rate of profits on stockholders' equity came to 10.4 percent on an after-tax basis compared to 9.2 percent for the January-March period.

Senate Finance Unit Votes Social Security Boost Asked by AFL-CIO

BULLETIN

The Senate Finance Committee, responding to AFL-CIO and other testimony, voted to raise social security benefits by 10 percent next Jan. 1 and raised the minimum payment to $100.

The AFL-CIO has made a strong appeal to the U.S. Senate Finance Committee to favor an increase in Social Security benefits substantially above the 5 per cent rise next Jan. 1 voted earlier by the House.

Andrew J. Biemiller, AFL-CIO legislative director, called for a 10 per cent increase Jan. 1 and an additional 20 per cent increase Jan. 1, 1972.

Biemiller pointed out that average Social Security benefits paid today—$198 monthly for a couple, $117 a month for an individual—are well below poverty standards. Recipients need a substantial increase to catch up before the annual cost-of-living increase recommended by the Nixon Administration is applied.

The House's 5 per cent increase next Jan. 1, he said, will already have been eaten up by this year's increase in the cost of living.

Biemiller said the AFL-CIO was disappointed in the increase in the minimum benefit provided by the House bill—from the $64 monthly to $67.20.

Turning to the Medicare program, Biemiller urged extending it to provide payment for prescription drugs and coverage for disabled persons under 65.

He said Medicare Part A (hospital insurance) and Part B (doctor bill payment) should be combined and the $5.30 monthly premium for Part B eliminated. The Government should then pay half the cost of the program out of general revenues.

To pay for the improvements in both Social Security and Medicare the AFL-CIO urged that the wage base, now $7,800 a year, be increased to $15,000 over the years ahead and the contribution rate raised to 6.5 per cent by 1987. The top rate now scheduled for 1987 is 5.9 per cent.

Harrisburg, Pa., Local 429 Members Work on Complicated Job in Hershey

One of the most intricate jobs ever to come out of the Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, area was recently completed at Hershey, Pa.

The most complicated part was in the rotunda area of the building which involved 3,100 feet of compounded radius beams and 400 feet of six-foot-wide cornice. The pinnacle of the dome is 80 feet from the floor level.

There are also 24 radial vertical beams.

New Nixon Appointee to NLRB

Adds to Labor's Deep Concern

By ALEXANDER UHL,
Press Associates, Inc.

President Nixon has now finished the first phase of his re-making of the National Labor Relations Board. He has added considerably to the deep concern of organized labor as to the Board's future positions on labor-management disputes.

If the Senate approves the President's latest appointee—as it likely will—the Board will have a Republican majority of three to two Democrats. More importantly, it will be largely in the hands of two men of conservative bent or of anti-labor reputation.

RALPH E. KENNEDY
"Management Bias"?

Newest Nixon nominee to the Board is Ralph E. Kennedy, now NLRB regional director in Los Angeles, whose nomination has been described by labor lawyers as "exceptionally poor". He is a Republican. Although labor spokesmen have conceded that they are "decidedly unhappy" at the choice, it is unlikely that a fight will be made against confirmation.

Nixon's first nominee to the Board was another Republican, Edward Miller, a management lawyer for many years. Howard Jenkins, Jr., is the third Republican.

Miller's appointment was opposed by the AFL-CIO on the grounds that members of the Board should not be identified either with management or labor. Miller, who was named chairman of the Board, succeeded

FRANK McCULLOCH
"Fired with Enthusiasm"

Frank McCulloch a few months before McCulloch's second five-year term ended on August 27.

Miller already has voted against labor in a major case which reversed a Trial Examiner who had ordered the Ex-Cell-O Corporation to reimburse workers for the gains they would have made if the company had not engaged in unfair labor practices in refusing to bargain. Miller cast the deciding vote against the United Automobile Workers who had brought the suit.

Kennedy has spent most of his working life with the NLRB, having entered it as a field attorney in 1948. He became director of the NLRB's St. Louis office in 1955 and three years later was named regional director in Los Angeles.

Labor lawyers who have practiced before him are frank in the feeling that more than once he has shown a strong management bias and on occasion, anti-labor sentiments. Even before he had been officially nominated by Nixon, they were expressing

"NLRB SPIRIT"

Former National Labor Relations Board Chairman Frank McCulloch, who President Nixon did not appoint to a new term on the Board, told a testimonial farewell luncheon in Washington: "I'm leaving as I came—fired with enthusiasm."

their opposition to his rumored appointment.

The naming of Kennedy points up an unusually hard-hitting speech made recently by AFL-CIO Secretary-Treasurer Lane Kirkland. As one of the speakers paying tribute to former Chairman McCulloch, Kirkland bluntly expressed labor's deep concern over what was happening to the NLRB under the Nixon Administration.

Commenting on the way in which McCulloch had been treated, he said that, from the labor side, there could be a "feeling of regret and more than a little apprehension".

More and more, from the labor viewpoint, that "apprehension" is being justified.

Minority Job Program Closes for Lack of Funds

The failure of the Labor Department to fund an extension of Project Upgrade in Oakland, Calif., has shut down the voluntary labor-management program to train minority group workers for the construction trades.

The shutdown, reported in the East Bay Labor Journal, came on Oct. 13 when the program's Labor Department grant ran out. There have been only promises from the Department to re-evaluate the program.

Upgrade has graduated 85 minority workers to full-time skilled jobs and has been seeking $500,000 to train 200 more in the next two years. Alameda County Building Trades Council Secretary-Treasurer Lamar Childers announced the shutdown at a joint conference with construction spokesmen. He noted there was no money and therefore no alternative but to shut down the training sessions despite the fact that 32 craftsmen are in training now.

A feature of the plan is instruction by union journeymen who concentrate on skills in which trainees are deficient — speeding their road to journeyman status. Ironically the successful Oakland program has had to shut its doors in an area with serious minority unemployment, despite continuous Labor Department insistence that minority employment in the trades is a high priority item for the Nixon Administration.—PAI

Pinzone Appointed to Health Planning Board

Charles R. Pinzone, business representative of Local Union 2, Cleveland, Ohio, has been named to the Metropolitan Health Planning Corporation.

The Metropolitan Health Planning Corp. is a community, non-profit agency established in 1968 to undertake comprehensive planning of health services for the two million-plus people in the Metropolitan Cleveland area—consisting of Cuyahoga, Geauga, Lake and Medina Counties.

Charles R. Pinzone

Pinzone has also been a member of the Parma Civil Service Commission since 1967. He is secretary-treasurer of the Buckeye State Council of Lathers as well as the Lake Erie District Council of Lathers. He will serve the health organization without salary as a community service.

He helped found and is secretary of the Cleveland Promotional Bureau for Lathing and Plastering, sponsored cooperatively by unions and businessmen in the field. For three years Pinzone has spearheaded the Parma, Parma Heights, Seven Hills—COPE (Committee on Political Education) for the AFL-CIO.

Union Busting Congress Is Goal of 'R-T-W' Group

The National Right-to-Work Committee, largely financed by anti-union employers and other ultra-conservatives, is questioning all nominees for the Senate and House to find out where they stand on legislation designed to weaken and cripple unions.

Its letter to candidates says: "The calendar year 1971 will bring the introduction, on Capitol Hill, of bills relating to the use of compulsory union dues and fees for partisan political purposes, the forced unionization of employees in the private and public sectors—including agricultural workers, and the authority of states to outlaw the firing of qualified workers simply because they refuse to pay dues or fees to labor organizations."

It then sets forth five politically-slanted questions and asked the nominees for a yes or no answer.

"Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act reaffirms the authority of states to prohibit compulsory unionism by enacting Right-to-Work laws. Do you favor retention of Section 14(b)?"

"Federal policy affecting employees of the federal government—as reflected by executive orders issued by Presidents Kennedy and Nixon and also by the recently enacted Postal Reform law—forbids compulsory

The Alternative Platform!

The Washington "Post," commenting on the election campaigns now under way throughout the nation, had this to say about the "law and order" candidates: "No one so far has campaigned on a platform of crime and chaos."

unionism. Will you vote for proposed legislation which would reinforce the right of citizens to work for the federal government whether or not they pay dues or fees to labor unions?

"Will you, as a member of the Congress, support legislation which would effectively prohibit the use of compulsory union dues for any kind of partisan political activity?"

"Present federal policy encourages the forced unionization of workers in the private sector. Employees are deprived by law of their right of choice 'to the extent that such right may be affected by an agreement requiring membership in a labor organization as a condition of employment. . . .' Do you favor continuation of this federal policy?"

"Next year the Congress is expected to consider legislation granting new privileges to union organizers of farm workers. Will you oppose a provision which would authorize the firing of farm workers for their refusal to pay union dues or fees?"—PAI

Local 252 Will Not Handle Dusty Asbestos Materials

Local Union 252, San Bernardino, California, has notified all signatory contractors and members of the local union that the local will refuse to perform any work on any project where an asbestos material which causes dust is being used.

"Asbestos dust is the only form of air pollution definitely proven to cause lung cancer," stated an announcement directed to contractors and members. "Sometimes it takes as long as 20 years, but you have to be exposed to it only once. The human body will not reject it." The statement was quoted from Congressman Richard L. Ottinger, Representative from the 25th Congressional District of New York.

One Professional Football Player Has A Kick Coming!

The first woman ever to play professional football, pretty Pat Palinkas, of Orlando, Florida, headed toward a salary dispute before she even played her first regular season game.

Pat, who weighs 122 pounds soaking wet, broke into pro ball during the exhibition season by holding the ball for her 225-pound husband, Steve Palinkas, a place-kicker with the Orlando Panthers of the Atlantic Coast League. She was a sensation and got immediate nationwide publicity. Her husband commented, "She's going to have to get a lot more than the $100-a-game they're paying her now. She's developed into a whale of a drawing card." Right after making that remark Steve was cut from the squad.

His wife was kept on the team!

Red Cross Lists Fire Safety Tips in Homes

Approximately 80 per cent of the 7,100 fire deaths last year occurred in the home, the American Red Cross has pointed out, and the number can be reduced significantly if householders will only take the necessary precautions for fire prevention and learn first aid.

"Every family should have a fire escape plan and practice it regularly", said Robert M. Oswald, national director of Red Cross Safety Programs. "At least one member of the family should have first aid training."

The Red Cross warning was related to the organization's participation in National Fire Prevention Week. Mr. Oswald said first aid classes, available at most Red Cross chapters, teach accident prevention, artificial respiration and emergency first aid care for burns among other subjects.

If a person is burned, first aid care should be given immediately to prevent more serious consequences. Burns vary in degree of seriousness but first aid care can relieve pain, prevent shock and contamination. He made these additional suggestions:

In a first degree burn, where the skin is only reddened, immerse the area in cold water or apply a cloth wrung out in cold water if the burned area can't be submerged. After the pain subsides, blot area dry and cover with a simple dressing such as petroleum jelly.

Second degree burns, where blisters occur, usually require medical care. If 10 per cent of the body area of an infant, or 15 per cent of an adult's body is involved, medical care should be obtained quickly. Second degree burns should be treated as open wounds since they may become infected and contaminated unless protected. Don't break blisters. Rinse in cold water, blot dry and cover with a dry sterile dressing.

Deep tissue damage occurs in a third degree burn. Victims urgently need medical care. Apply sterile dressing to exclude air and prevent contamination. Cold applications are not recommended. Rush the victim to a physician or hospital as soon as possible.

Much of the tragedy and suffering caused by fires each year can be prevented if families will follow a few simple rules:

Don't smoke in bed; don't extinguish smoking materials in wastebaskets; don't smoke near flammable liquids such as gasoline and paint thinner; don't smoke or light matches in attics, closets, or confined places near clothes, paper or other combustibles. Use your car ashtray while driving and be sure the ashes are cold before throwing them away. Keep matches out of the reach of children.

Proper housecleaning and repair of electrical appliances can also reduce the fire potential in a home. Throw away rubbish in attics, closets, basements, garages and yards. Store

LATH-AND-PLASTER SAVES LIVES!

One of the best ways to keep a fire in a home from becoming a catastrophe is to live in a home built with lath and plaster. Tests by independent agencies have determined that "lath-and-plaster walls stops fires dead." A fire in a properly plastered room cannot spread beyond it except through doorways. Tests have also determined that, because of charring of door surfaces (which prevents fire from burning rapidly), a normal room fire fed by furnishings will take an hour or more to penetrate a standard panel door. Moral: when you leave home for any length of time, close all interior doors in the event a fire should develop during your absence.

gasoline, kerosene and flammable cleaning fluids in safety cans, and never use such fluids to start fires. Paints should be kept in tightly closed metal containers, away from heat.

All appliances should be checked annually and worn-out equipment and wiring replaced. Heaters, stoves and smokepipes should be installed away from combustible walls and ceilings. Use proper fuses and don't overload circuits. Before extinguishing an electrically-caused fire with water, pull the plug or shut off the current.

Keep a fire extinguisher readily accessible in the house, and keep a garden hose handy near a faucet for ready use.

Top Unionists Sign Open Housing Pledge

Several score of trade union officials have joined some 1500 other citizens in signing a pledge to promote fair housing.

A partial list of the sponsors of the pledge was carried in a full page advertisement in the New York Times under the heading: "Your Heart May be in the Right Place But Are You?"

The pledge states that the signer wants "to take personal action to end housing segregation by seeking housing away from one-race neighborhoods the next time I move and by trying to invest a portion of any capital I influence in open housing."

Among the signers are eight members of the AFL-CIO Executive Council: President Leonard Woodcock and Secretary-Treasurer Emil Mazey of the UAW and AFL-CIO staff officers such as Boris Shishkin, Secretary of the Housing Committee and Bert Seidman, Director of the Social Security Department. The AFL-CIO vice presidents are IUE President Paul Jennings, RWDSU President Max Greenberg, Textile Workers President William Pollock, Transport Workers Union President Mathew Guinan, Actors Equity President Frederick O'Neal, ACWA President Jacob S. Potofsky, ILGWU President Louis Stulberg, and President Jerry Wurf of the State, County and Municipal Employees. # Men's Magazine Writer 'Discovers Hard Hats'

Writer Thomas Williams related how the hard hats he talked to changed his mind about the men who build buildings and raise flags in the October issue of Esquire magazine.

After weeks of involvement with student protest, Williams went on assignment from Esquire to confront the construction workers. He went to One Astor Plaza, the gigantic World Trade Center, and to projects near Wall Street. He spoke with thirty or forty men with flag decals on their hard hats and flag pins on their shirts. Williams reported in Esquire what it means to be the men who chipped in to buy the huge American flags strung high on the steel of unfinished buildings.

Williams found complicated men who told him again and again that they are not pro-war, that they are not against demonstrations and they're not against students, and that they resent very much being summed up and slandered by the press. "What they're finding out," Williams said in Esquire, "is that quick and superficial press and television reports are nearly always lies, and that there is no lie like a half-lie."

Above all, Williams reported, they want the flag of the United States of America to be respected, to be loved and honored. It is the flag that matters most to them because it is the palpable symbol of what they want this country to be. Williams also saw, however, much confusion and anger because, to them as well as to the protesting students, it is not everything it ought to be.

"If it is possible for us to speak to each other without waving flags or spitting on flags," Williams concluded in the Esquire article, "we might possibly—just possibly—reverse the statistically documented rush to extinction we are in right now."

Fire Fighters' Union Asks Standardized Hood Release

The International Association of Fire Fighters, AFL-CIO, has asked the heads of the U.S. automotive industry to standardize placement of automobile hood latch release levers in order to lessen the danger of injuries during car fires.

IAFF President Wm. Howard McClellan, in letters to the auto makers and their trade association, cited the growing seriousness of a safety problem brought about because fire fighters have difficulty finding the latch levers when a car catches fire. McClellan also sent copies of the letter to key government officials. He invited individuals to join in the effort and press the demand on automobile dealers and agencies.

New SMW President

Edward J. Carlough, 38, director of organization for the Sheet Metal Workers International Association since 1960, was elected to the presidency of the organization at its recent convention in Atlantic City, New Jersey. He succeeds his father, Edward F. Carlough, who retired after having held the positions of secretary-treasurer and president for the past 20 years. The new president is a graduate of American University, Washington, D.C. After his graduation he served as an apprentice and member of Local Union 28 in the nation's capital.

Iron Workers to Train 600 From Minority Groups

The Iron Workers have signed a national agreement with the Labor Department to train 600 members of minority groups as journeymen craftsmen.

An 18-month contract for the $1.2 million training program was announced by James D. Hodgson, Secretary of Labor. The program is designed to bring into the trade minority group workers who have experience in the craft but are beyond the apprenticeship age.

Pres. John H. Lyons of the Iron Workers signed the contract for the union. Also signing the agreement were officials of two contractors' associations.

The trainees, who must be at least 31 years old and physically fit, will be recruited by the union and construction firms. The Labor Department has agreed to contribute $2,400 for each trainee to cover orientation, on-the-job training and supplemental instruction.

From the 600 men expected to participate in the training, 100 will be qualified mechanics—workers who can perform work assignments at an acceptable journeyman skill level, the Labor Department said.

The remaining 500 will be either advanced trainees with some experience in the trade or recruits who have no construction work experience and are above the apprenticeship age.

All trainee-workers will be paid local wage rates at least 50 percent of journeymen's wages, with higher amounts for those with experience. Workers enrolled in advanced training programs will receive a minimum of 288 hours of supplemental instruction beyond the training time spent on job sites.

Local state employment service offices and other manpower agencies will conduct the recruiting of the minority group trainees.

If these sources prove inadequate, the Labor Department said that the agreement calls for assistance from such groups as the National Urban League, the Workers' Defense League, the Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for the Spanish Speaking and the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

Hodgson commented that the agreement is "an excellent forward step in bringing into this highly-paid trade persons from minority groups."

Beware of Flammable Hats from Italy Says FTC

The Federal Trade Commission has warned consumers to beware of women's and girls' berets imported from Italy for M. Grossman & Son, Inc. and Betmar Hats, Inc. The berets come in at least 10 colors and have a sewn-in label reading "7.7% cotton; 42.9% rayon; 49.4% acrylic fiber made in Italy". The staff of the FTC has warned that tests have shown them to be dangerously flammable.

Apprenticeship Is Best Route to Job Skills

Apprenticeship is the best and surest way for young workers to enter the construction industry, where there is good opportunity for "upward mobility," two AFL-CIO manpower experts declared on the network radio interview, "Labor News Conference."

"Institutionized training" such as vocational education just doesn't give young workers the job skills and understanding of the construction industry needed to be a fully-rounded journeyman, said Julius Rothman, president of the Human Resources Development Institute, and Robert McGlotten, executive director of the non-profit organization created by the AFL-CIO.

Young workers often spend three years in vocational school training for carpentry or sheet metal work, learning little beyond "how to sand bookends" or assemble ashtrays, skills unrelated to actual construction work, McGlotten asserted. He stressed that the actual on-site experience of apprenticeship gives the young worker both the necessary job-skills and the chance to "become familiar with the nature" of the industry which he will be working.

Rothman said that the HRDI, now in its third year of operation, is stepping up its emphasis on upgrading the skills of workers already in jobs, "especially those who have been brought onto jobs within the last couple of years." He said that with unemployment rising and with funds now available for such training through the JOBS program (Job Opportunities in the Business Sector), employers may be more "willing to take advantage of upgrading their existing work-force." Rothman noted that HRDI will also expand its efforts to place young workers in entry-level jobs, pointing out that "quite successful" programs are already under way in Oakland, Calif., and

New York City, and "we think we can do another ten (programs) without too much trouble."

McGlotten and Rothman said that HRDI is now working with the Departments of Defense and Labor to develop a job-training and placement program for returning servicemen. "These young men deserve every kind of assistance they can get, and the AFL-CIO and the HRDI are committed" to help them, they declared.

Questioning them were William Eaton of the Chicago Daily News and Harry Conn of Press Associates, Inc. The AFL-CIO produced public affairs program is broadcast Tuesdays on the Mutual Broadcasting System.

"THE INJURY TO ONE IS THE CONCERN OF ALL"

FROM THE PRESIDENT'S DESK

Despite the stupendous amount of taxes collected annually, some of the nation's tax-supported needs . . . in particular its schools . . . still are badly in need. The AFL-CIO has warned: "In many parts of the nation, the very survival of the public school system hangs in the balance." The present national administration does not seem to be concerned with the schools' impending doom. It has asked for only about half of the money authorized to be spent for major education programs. AFL-CIO spokesmen have emphatically told Congress that the present course of action is "unresponsive to the magnitude of the problems confronting our schools."

The plain fact is, that in this modern world, more education of a higher order is needed by more people. If minimum future educational requirements are to be met, the nation must start today. It is already later than it should be. If we do not educate our youth to the higher intellectual and professional planes achieved by pupils in other nations, our children will be backward compared to them. Our citizens of tomorrow will then be at a disadvantage compared with the citizens of other nations. Our leaders of tomorrow will be at a disadvantage compared with foreign leaders and our nation will quite likely lose its leadership position as a result. There are children in grade schools today, as you read this, who will be the lawmakers, ministers, teachers, and scientists of tomorrow. Somewhere, in some of our schoolrooms, there are several future U.S. Presidents now undergoing schooling ranging from grade school through secondary education and college. Should not these future presidents, future lawmakers, future ministers, future teachers . . . not to mention future leaders in all types of businesses and in the ranks of organized labor . . . have the very best educations humanly possible on every level?

Teaching must be made a more attractive profession. There are remarkably few men and women so dedicated to teaching that they will willingly give up the extra thousands of dollars in potential yearly income which they and their families could enjoy should they leave the low-paid teaching field. The teachers should be one of the best-paid of all professions, for it is he (or she) who instructs the future doctor, engineer, lawyer, architect, banker and all other top-income professions.

Our national planners should also start considering the needs for more desks for students and the classroom space to put them in. Statisticians assure us that the population is gaining by leaps and bounds. This means more people . . . and more pupils. Some communities are acting; there are two articles regarding school construction in this issue; in Delaware and in Minnesota. But every community must act if its youth are to be properly prepared for life. The lather, the plasterer and all construction workers must be promptly put to work, building the schools which are going to be required. Society cannot wait until students are knocking on school doors which don't exist. We must plan ahead; build the schools, provide the desk space, properly train and adequately compensate the required number of teachers. To do anything else will be to mortgage our children's future and imperil our nation's progress.

There are many controversial subjects on every hand today. But on this point there can be no argument. Failure to act . . . promptly and adequately . . . will bring shame on this administration from generations yet unborn.

cover

Our cover girl reminds us that there is nothing magical about a Thursday as regards Thanksgiving. Massachusetts Bay Colony's first civil Thanksgiving was observed on July 8, 1630, a Wednesday. Now there is a common-sense move afoot to move holidays to adjoin the weekend so workers may enjoy three days' respite from their jobs. In 1971 this will affect Washington's Birthday (third Monday in February), Memorial Day (last Monday in May), Columbus Day (second Monday in October) and Veterans' Day (fourth Monday in October.) Labor Day is already on a Monday. There is no really valid reason why Thanksgiving could not be observed on a Monday. When you pull the wishbone on Thursday, November 26, and remember that you're going back to work tomorrow morning, you might wish that "the-powers-that-be" decide to be as practical about Thanksgiving Day as they've been about those other observances.

BY THE GENERAL SECRETARY TREASURER

The present administration continues to blame union-negotiated wage hikes for inflationary tendencies. It is the technique of "The Big Lie" used so effectively by Hitler, now being used by the Administration and the financial barons. The chant is then repeated, again and again, by the heads of businesses and industries: "Wage raises cause price increases!"

Actually, it is not more money in the hands of wage earners which is causing inflationary tendencies: it is the money in the vaults of the bankers.

Most people do not realize it, but the United States Government does not issue its own money. The dollar bill in your pocket is issued by the Federal Reserve Bank. "Federal Reserve Note" is printed at the top. There is no gold or silver backing it up. It states, on the left side: "This note is legal tender for all debts, public and private." Under that reassurance appears the seal of the particular Federal Reserve Bank which had the money printed. The Federal Reserve System is owned by member banks and is only partly responsible to the U.S. government.

There are two ways to read a price tag; from left to right and right to left. Taking the familiar schoolroom example of "buying apples"; in "normal" times, $1 will buy 20 apples. But if apples became scarce, then $1 will buy only 10 apples. If apples become plentiful, then $1 may buy 40 apples.

In the example above, the supply of apples was changing. But the same result will happen if you "read the price tag from right to left" and the supply of money changes while the supply of apples remains constant. No longer is it: "$1 buys 20 apples" but "20 apples buy $1." If the bankers print too much money, money becomes "cheap" compared to apples and it takes fewer apples to "buy" the same number of dollars. It could become "10 apples buy $1" because dollars, in relation to apples, have become cheaper due to the law of supply and demand. This is inflation!

A top White House adviser who departs from the usual "party line" of blaming labor for inflation is Milton Friedman, a University of Chicago economist. He recently said: "What causes inflation, everywhere and always, is an increase in the quantity of money more rapid than the increase in the quantity of jobs and services produced. Right now there is inflation because the government has been printing too much money. It has been printing too much because it has been spending too much relative to taxes and it's financing this by printing money. The fact is there is little relation between trade unions and inflation."

Management wants the public to believe that labor unions cause inflation because nobody likes high prices. If management can pin the blame on unions, they can keep down unionism (and wages). Thus their profits can rise. What is needed is more fiscal restraint by the government, together with a slowdown on the printing of money. It is the wage earner who is hurt most by inflation.

Inflation which causes the rich man to shorten his winter vacation on the French Riviera from four weeks to three weeks can cause the working man to cut down on the milk his children need from four quarts to three quarts. There is a certain difference!

It is adding insult to injury to turn around and blame the working man for the inflation! It is high time the present administration started listening to Professor Friedman.

Lath-and-Plaster Aid Learning Process in Minnesota

Lathers of Local Union 190, Minneapolis, have been obtaining an increasing amount of work in schools in the Twin Cities area through the aggressive promotion and follow-up of the Minnesota Lathing and Plastering Bureau.

Among the newest and most distinctive of the schools is Thomas Jefferson Senior High School in Bloomington, Minnesota. The building area includes 311,500 square feet on a 42-acre site. Student capacity is 2,400, with 112 teaching stations. Construction costs have been totaled at $6,938,742.

Armstrong, Schlichting, Torseth and Skold, A.I.A., have designed an extremely flexible educational center, with many divisible lecture, auditorium, shop and cafeteria areas. They have emphasized the modern approach of open-ness and related teaching laboratory centers.

A concealed fireproof ceiling, above the actual ceiling of the auditorium, is one of the many striking features of the new high school in suburban Minneapolis. There is 10,000 square feet of the fireproof ceiling, installed by Peterson & Hyde, lathing and plastering contractors of Hopkins, Minnesota.

The school, which opened for classes this fall, although construction was still incomplete, contains many lath and plaster design inclusions which contribute not only to the study environment and the safety climate, but are interesting from an aesthetic standpoint.

"The actual ceiling in the auditorium has 2,700 square feet of acoustical plaster on vertical slopes," notes Louis White, of Peterson & Hyde. This is Zonolite HiSorb on metal lath.

A total of 12,000 square feet of putty coat plaster was applied to the ceiling, and there are 7,500 lineal feet of corner beads.

"It's an unusual design of ceiling," Mr. White adds. "It's all on a radius—the whole auditorium is set on a radius; and the seating follows this configuration."

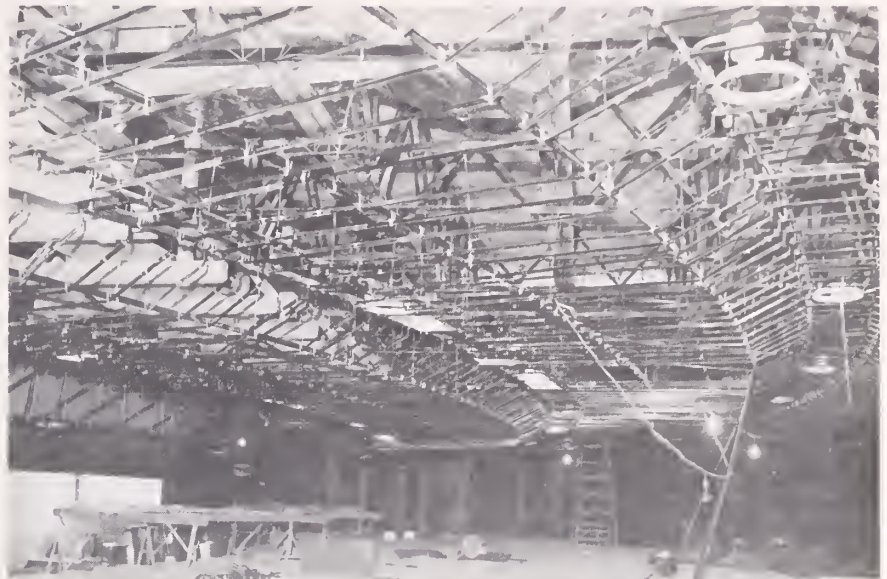

The auditorium can also be divided into four smaller rooms on demand, the division achieved by rolling doors.

There is a projector and screen in each for visual aids teaching.

Although the auditorium is the most exceptional of the ceilings in the school, there are other areas where lath and plaster are performing an invaluable function.

Business Now Becoming 'Involved', But Shuns Controversial Programs

Community involvement is becoming an "in thing" for private industry, and the conscience of business is changing accordingly. While the trend shows evidence of a sincere interest in community betterment on the part of many firms, the controlling factor appears to be public relations. Any community program considered potentially controversial is carefully avoided.

These observations are based on a recent survey conducted by the American Society for Personnel Administration (ASPA) and The Bureau of National Affairs, Inc. (BNA), a Washington-based publisher of business information.

Results of the survey showed that involvement—to varying degrees—is practiced today by virtually all companies. The extent of participation, however, runs the spectrum from small contributions of time and money to local charity, to extensive programs encouraging involvement by making it easy for staff members to participate in various areas where community help is needed.

Participation tends toward more conservative community groups, such Company practices on granting leave for volunteer work vary greatly, from leave without pay to extensive paid leave, for the various programs involved. In every case, leave without pay is granted more frequently to rank-and-file workers, while more generous paid leave policies are extended to executives.

Of all the programs listed, the Peace Corps and VISTA, both requiring long-term commitments by volunteers, were the least-likely to be recognized under leave policies. Only about a third of the companies have policies for these programs, and nearly all involve leave without pay.

Most of the surveyed companies also indicate a readiness to extend the use of company supplies and facilities to executives, but much less willingness to accommodate other employees engaged in volunteer work. Ninety-eight percent of the firms permit executives to use secretarial help for community activities and 90 percent give executives the use of meeting rooms. For rank-and-file employees, however, only 73 percent of the companies allow secretarial help and 71 percent permit use of company meeting rooms. Similar comparisons were drawn for supplies and other services.

Partisan political activity or any potentially controversial program is steered clear of by virtually all companies, the survey indicates. None of the companies mention black capitalism or consumer protection programs. However, 53 percent of the firms have a policy for executive participation in environment programs.

Recognition of workers for their own community action efforts, even when the programs in which they participate are not company sponsored, is extended by the great majority of as Kiwanis, Chamber of Commerce, etc. By far, the most widespread company participation is in the long-established, non-controversial community fund drives.

Policies are consistently more liberal for executives than for other employees, chiefly because executives are considered as official representatives of the company.

firms (85 percent of larger companies; 82 percent of smaller companies). Two-thirds of these companies make an effort to determine the type of community service activities in which their employees take part. While the most frequent form of recognition is through articles in company publications, firms also recognize the public relations value in pointing out employee contributions to the public through press releases.

Michigan Building Trades Take Anti-Pollution Action

The Michigan State Building and Construction Trades Council, at its 13th annual convention in Detroit, struck a strong blow against pollution of the environment.

The delegates passed a resolution introduced by the Michigan State Association of Plumbers and Pipefitters which called for members not to install "any piping for final discharge into our lakes and streams until our contractors have received clearance from both state and Federal government agencies dealing with pollution."

William B. Kelly, business manager of Detroit Pipe Fitters Local 636, called the results of passage of the resolution "a giant step forward."

"We may have touched a raw nerve," he said, "as far as some people are concerned. But while the politicians are talking about doing something about water pollution we in the UA are taking action that may well preserve the purity of our waters for generations yet unborn."

Kelly pointed out that the resolution said in part that "many of these installations are discharging chemical wastes, oils, raw sewage and other refuse into our lakes and streams, causing pollution and health hazards that will possibly take future generations years to clean up."

"This is the most forceful action yet taken in the anti-pollution fight," Kelly said. "We'll have to enforce it for it to be effective, but in my view it is the best method yet devised to head off further pollution of Michigan's waterways."

"Health and Safety Bill Most Urgent"—AFL-CIO

AFL-CIO President George Meany has told the Senate that America's workers consider the Occupational Safety and Health bill the "most important" legislation before Congress and want to see it passed without destructive changes.

"Organized labor regards this legislation as indispensable to the lives, safety and health of every American worker," Meany declared.

The trade union movement's

Was Your September Magazine Late In Reaching You?

The September issue, containing a full account and many pictures of the convention activity in Vancouver, B.C., has been reported as late-arriving, or never-arriving, by many local unions throughout the nation.

The September issue was delivered to the Post Office in Washington, D.C., on the night of September 24.

Under conditions of ordinarily efficient postal service, all issues might be expected to be delivered in a matter of a week at most.

However, it appears that numerous packages had not been delivered by October 22.

We deeply regret the delay, but there is apparently nothing which can be done to expedite delivery once mailed matter enters the facilities of the Post Office Department. We can only hope that, eventually, the postal service will make delivery.

There is a postal reorganizational plan now in process which, hopefully, will bring about improvement of this deplorable condition.

The International Office regrets the situation; particularly so since the issue involved contained excellent coverage of the convention activities in text and photographs.

"strong and enthusiastic support." Meany made clear, is reserved for the bill, S. 2193, sponsored by Senator Harrison A. Williams, Jr. (D-N.J.), and approved by the Senate Labor Committee.

He opposed the "Administration-Big Business substitute bill" introduced by Senator Peter H. Dominick (R-Colo.) as "weak, inadequate, and an administrative monstrosity."

The Williams bill is fair to employers as well as protective of workers, Meany said.

Its key provisions—the basis for the AFL-CIO's strong support—assign "full responsibility" for establishment and enforcement of job safety and health standards to the Secretary of Labor.

That's where it belongs, Meany stressed. "The Department of Labor was created by Congress to protect the legitimate interests of American workers. Certainly, health and safety on the job fall under this heading."

By contrast, Meany said, the Administration bill "would break up and isolate what should be an integrated program into three segments—each completely independent of the other in decision making."

If a congressional reform bill approved by the House on a 326-19 vote was already law, union members and others interested in the job health and safety bill would be able to find out exactly how their congressmen voted on key amendments.

Under present procedures, most amendments are approved or rejected by "teller vote." House members—sometimes only a handful are present—walk by tellers who count them but do not record their names.

One labor-supported provision of the reform bill provides for the recording of the names of House members voting for or against an amendment.

Political observers in Washington have predicted that the Williams bill will eventually be passed, largely in its present form. They also predict that the passage will take place after the November elections so Senator Williams and the Democratic Party cannot make political capital out of its enactment.

AFL-CIO Asks Bargaining System for Federal Workers

The AFL-CIO has called for creation of a nationwide system of collective bargaining between the federal government and unions representing federal employees.

Federation Pres. George Meany said the time has come to extend to all federal workers the collective bargaining principles written into the law which set up the new U.S. Postal Service.

He urged the Administration to join in proposing such legislation to Congress—as it did earlier this year for the postal service.

Meany and other union witnesses testified before the Federal Labor Relations Council, the Cabinet-level panel set up under a presidential executive order to administer the government's union-management relations program and make recommendations for changes.

Meany told the panel that AFL-CIO unions representing federal workers have agreed on "basic principles" for a collective bargaining program embracing both the government's salaried white-collar employees and its hourly-paid, blue-collar workers.

Union witnesses told the council that it has taken so long to grind out the machinery of the executive order—a process that is still not complete —that only a partial appraisal could be given at this time.

John A. McCart, director of the AFL-CIO Government Employees Council, said the delay in carrying out the new program itself "dramatizes the failure of the federal government to move expeditiously to meet the pressing needs of collective bargaining at a time when public service and federal labor relations are undergoing severe stress."

Maywood Boggs, president of the AFL-CIO Metal Trades Dept., stressed the continuing need for an independent agency, with full-time leadership and staff, to administer the labor-management relations program. It should include, he said, an office of general counsel comparable to that in the National Labor Relations Board to prosecute unfair labor practice charges in the public interest.

Government Employees Pres. John F. Griner and other union witnesses strongly protested the government's new policy of requiring local union negotiators to use their annual leave time or take leave without pay to carry on official union-management business during working hours—while the management representatives are paid for their participation in negotiations.

Trillion-Dollar Economy Expected by Year 1980

Nobody is quite certain about how the American economy will look by the end of 1970, but the Department of Labor is busy giving us an idea of what it will look like by 1980.

By that time, the Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates, the Gross National Product is expected to exceed 1.1 trillion dollars in constant 1958 dollars, but a great deal more in inflated prices. A trillion, which is expected to become a commonplace number in the American economy, represents 1,000 billion dollars.

The Bureau's projections involve 82 industries and show a changing pattern of expected growth for many of them.

Employment levels in agriculture and mining are projected to continue to decline both in numbers and relation to the rest of the economy.

No Place to Be Somebody

Dignitaries, personalities and celebrities are pretty ordinary commodities at Washington, D.C., receptions. Only recently, in front of the bowl of shrimp at a State Department reception, this exchange, as reported by United Press, was overheard:

"How d'you do. I'm Congressman (Blank)."

"How are you? I'm James Hodgson, and this is my wife."

"Are you with the State Department?" asked the Congressman.

"No. I'm the Secretary of Labor."

will increase in numbers but decline in relative terms.

Services and state and local governments are expected to grow rapidly during the 1970's not only in numbers but in their share of overall employment.

Finance, insurance, real estate and construction also are expected to grow both in numbers and relative terms, but not as much as services and state and local governments.

Wholesale and retail trade is projected to grow at about the same rate as overall civilian employment, that is about 1.9 percent.

In general, real Gross National Product is expected to grow by about 4.3 percent, somewhat slower than the 4.8 percent for the Sixties, but somewhat faster than the overall post-war period. A slight decline in hours of work also is forecast. PAI

Housing Starts Decline; Personal Income Slackens

Despite the official optimism of the Nixon Administration that the economy is gaining, there are two areas which say it isn't.

After three consecutive months of improvement, housing starts fell off during August by a full 10 percent. During the month there were 1,431,000 units started, compared with 1,591,000 during July. At the same time, the rate of increases in personal income slackened. Income rose $4.1 billion during August to an annual rate of $807.4 billion. During July the rate of increase had been $5.1 billion.

President Disavows Unemployment as Policy

But Haggerty Raps "Quota Policy" for Apprentices When Journeymen Are Jobless!

"In my view, no level of unemployment can ever be looked upon as acceptable. It is regrettable that the recent transitions in the economy—due to the shift from a wartime to a peacetime basis and to our struggle against inflation—have been accompanied by an increase in unemployment. But you can be sure that my Administration will never follow an 'unemployment strategy' in its approach to the economy."

The statement above was contained in a letter to C. J. Haggerty, president of the Building and Construction Trades Department of the AFL-CIO by President Nixon.

The present administration has been repeatedly charged by responsible spokesmen of deliberately "engineering" higher unemployment levels in order to reduce competition for available consumer goods and thus reduce inflationary trends.

"The thrust of our effort has been in precisely the opposite direction. We have, for example, proposed a comprehensive Manpower Training Act which would help more Americans find good jobs whatever the state of the economy. In addition, we have redirected our present training funds into areas of greatest need and have expanded our youth employment efforts," continued Pres. Nixon's letter.

"The aim of my Administration is to achieve both price stability and full employment in a peacetime economy—and we believe we are now on the way to that goal. Various price indices show that inflation is slowing down and a number of indicators now show that economic activity is stepping up," Nixon stated.

In a reply to Nixon's letter, Haggerty wrote that his comment that "no level of unemployment is acceptable" was encouraging to organized labor. At the same time he bluntly advised the President that organized labor (and the building trades in particular) were not at all happy with some of his administration's tactics.

"Whenever there is a scarcity of work, the construction trades are especially hard hit. Our present rate of unemployment is about twice the percentage of the national average," wrote Pres. Haggerty.

"It is most difficult . . . to be trying to provide meaningful training opportunities and skilled jobs for disadvantaged youths or to be incessantly arguing about changes in apprenticeship procedures and quota systems proposed by your Department of Labor when there is not even enough work for experienced craftsmen."

Seasoned observers in Washington said that they "hoped Nixon saw Haggerty's letter but don't bet next week's beer money on it!" It is generally assumed that the President is shielded from any facts not approved of by his close advisors, most of whom are imbued by Big Business and Big Banking principles.

Epoxy Surface Gaining Favor With Architects

Most people think of epoxy as the two-part glue which comes in small tubes and, when properly mixed and applied, makes an extremely strong bond between practically all kinds of materials.

But epoxy is also coming to the fore as a building material. It is almost crack-proof, is waterproof and can be applied over virtually any underlayment.

During the past two years especially, giant strides have been made in developing epoxies for trowel application over practically any substrate. Over a brown coat of portland cement plaster, a one-eighth inch epoxy can be applied by trowel. Stones or chips can be dashed into it to give a textured finish. The epoxies have almost unbelievable flexural and tensile strengths and are being increasingly specified by architects for both exterior and interior use.

AFL-CIO Statement

"The Administration cannot duck responsibility for this tragic statistic. It is Administration policies that have caused widespread suffering among families of the unemployed, up nearly two million since this Administration took over. # Credit Unions Help Labor Unionists

Any Group With Common Bond Can Form Non-Profit Lending Organization to Aid Members

Approximately 20 million people in the United States . . . virtually all of them wage-earners . . . have banded themselves together in credit unions in order to minimize the cost of borrowing money when they need it.

These credit union members avoid millions in finance charges through low-cost, easy-to-obtain loans from their credit unions as they loan money for useful purposes to themselves. In addition, the credit union members receive back interest on their deposits. They are, in effect, "non-profit banking cooperatives."

There are about 23,000 credit unions now operating in labor unions, offices, churches and various associations. Where there is a significant number of people with mutual ties, there is a place for a credit union.

Any group at all with a common bond and enough members can form a credit union. Generally, 100 members is considered a working minimum.

One of the most potent forces helping to establish credit unions is CUNA International, Box 431, Madison, Wisc. There are also state-chartered leagues of credit unions which are available to help organize credit unions without charge.

Credit union members benefit four ways: saving, lending, insurance and financial counseling.

Saving—Every deposit in the credit union "buys a share" in it. Earnings derived from the lending activities are, periodically, divided up and members are credited with "dividends" on their investment. It generally averages somewhere around 5 percent. The average credit union account is about $600. Credit unions in industrial plants and large businesses generally receive the cooperation of management to the extent that payroll deductions can be made for deposit in the credit union. Management will usually provide operating space for the credit union. This is inspired self-interest, for it prevents much absenteeism due to financial problems.

Lending—Credit union loans are easier and cost less than if obtained from commercial banks and loan companies. Loans generally are approved with a minimum of red tape, generally with nothing more than the borrower's signature. The simplicity is possible because the credit union loan committee . . . peers of the man asking for the loan . . . know him and his character. They live or work with him, or both. Credit unions can take chances with borrowers who would be turned down by the average lending institution. Of course, credit unions also incur losses on loans but, nationwide, the loss is less than one quarter of one percent of the amount borrowed.

The good lending experience of credit unions is the reason why Congress recently raised the maximum amount possible on unsecured loans from $750 to $2,500. Some federal credit unions have lower maximums, since the "top maximum" depends to an extent on the total assets of the institution.

Using either collateral or co-signers, some credit unions make larger loans, and a few make home mortgage loans. It is unusual though, since most credit union loans are limited to short terms of about five years for unsecured and ten years for secured loans.

Insurance—Credit union members are generally automatically covered with life insurance to match the amount they have on deposit up to a maximum of $1,000 or $2,000. Loan insurance, also without any fee, is provided which pays off any outstanding credit union indebtedness if the borrower dies or is permanently disabled.

Financial counseling—Many of the larger credit unions are adding trained financial counselors to their staffs. These specialized professionals can guide credit union members through financial straits which might otherwise cause a wage earner to founder in seas of indebtedness.

While credit unions are not covered by federal deposit insurance, they are required to set aside a certain percentage of income to cover any possible bad debts. They are normally required to buy surety bond protection against losses to dishonest employees, robbery and other designated hazards.

Very few credit unions "go broke." A large number are liquidated each year, but mostly because of plant closings, a decline in credit needs (if the credit union doesn't make loans, it has no income and cannot continue operating), or lack of interest by the members.

One might think that the large banks and lending agencies would be opposing credit unions fiercely. Such is not the case. Credit unions make only a small percentage of the installment loans made every year. In 1968, banks and finance companies held $68.3 billions in consumer installment loans. Credit unions held only $9.2 billions, slightly over 13 percent of the total.

Credit unions do not have to . . . cannot . . . earn a profit. Banks and loan companies must show profits. The credit union usually has little or no overhead. It is an association of people lending money to each other as any may need it. Thus loans can be made at reduced rates.

Do you have access to a credit union? You should join it now, if you have not already. If there is no credit union available, you can use the instrumentality of your labor union to establish a credit union. One local union or several can establish a credit union, either by themselves or by working with other labor unions in the community. Some day you, or one of your children, may be very happy that you had the foresight to act!

Large Windowless School Employs L.U. 108 Members

Local 108 members, Wilmington, Del., have been employed on an unusual construction job; a windowless school.

The present school is the largest job of this kind that Local 108 has been engaged in, according to Secretary-Treasurer Lloyd F. Scullion. The Newark elementary-middle school will have a student capacity of 1,800. Members of Local 108 are working on both the interior and exterior of the school.

The exterior work alone involves 9,000 yards of metal lathing welded to 70 tons of four-inch galvanized truss, (16 inches on center) studs and track, and many extra manhours for a new concept in exterior finishing. One inch of plaster and Granaset® finish will be applied to the lathing.

The difference in cost of the Granaset finish as opposed to other construction may be considerably less per cubic foot. The total cost per square foot is the lowest figure for a Delaware school in several years. The contractor, Lowe Brothers Inc. of Wilmington, Delaware, reports the school as a half million dollar contract. Elhret Construction Company is general contractor for the $4.7 million school complex.

In addition to the lathing and steel, the three tier structure will use approximately 200,000 screws. Twelve thousand yards of dense coat are specified for the interior. Charles Hartman is lathing superintendent.

The new mode of structure has gained the interest of architects and contractors throughout the Delaware Valley.

The school is scheduled to open for the 1971 fall semester. The accompanying photos were made by James E. Breslin, Local 108.

HEALTH CARE FOR ALL AMERICANS

by Rep. Martha W. Griffiths

The cost of a major illness is such that 9 out of 10 Americans are medically indigent right now—unable to pay the high costs of care without severe economic sacrifice.

I recently saw an estimate that puts the cost of single coronary, within the next three years, at $16,000. This, in itself, is a heart stopper! Average health expenditures now amount to $294 per year for every man, woman and child in the nation. For some middle Americans, this means spending from 10 to 25 percent of their income on health and medical services.

At the same time, hard working wage and salary earners are supporting health care for the rest of America and the income tax system gives them little credit for doing so. Current tax deductions for medical expenses favor the rich, simply because they can afford large expenditures for health care and therefore receive large tax deductions for them. The fact is, the more the rich spend, the more they get back. Middle Americans, though, find that while their medical expenses consume a proportionately large share of their income, a tax deduction, while welcome, is still an unaffordable luxury.

The inflationary facts of health services are astonishing. The nation's spending for health reached $60.3 billion in fiscal 1969. Per capita health expenditures rose 11 percent over the previous year, fiscal 1968. Public outlays for health rose nearly 15 percent in one year. Payments for hospital care increased 17 percent in one year and reached a total of $22.5 billion in fiscal 1969.

American Hospital Association representatives recently testified before the House Ways and Means Committee that the average daily room rate would rise to nearly $100 a day by 1973. Daily room charges already exceed $100 a day in some of our teaching hospitals. In fiscal 1969, expenditures for physicians' services also rose 9 percent over the previous year. The Dec. 8, 1969, issue of Medical Economics predicts gross receipts of private physicians will average "at least 10 percent higher" for calendar year 1969 than in 1968.

Small wonder, then, that health care has absorbed an increasing proportion of the Gross National Product. In 1950, U.S. health expenditures accounted for 4.6 percent of the GNP. In 1960, it had risen to 5.3 percent and in 1968, 6.7 percent. In fact, if health expenditures continue to absorb an increasing proportion of the Gross National Product at the same rate as has occurred in recent years, just 107 years from now, in 2077, health expenditures will consume the entire Gross National Product, leaving nothing for food, clothing or shelter.

The worst aspect is that in relation to huge health expenditures, the United States is faring rather poorly in comparison with other countries in the Western world. Despite the high costs and expenditures, we are getting inadequate results and inferior services. Objective statistical measurements of infant mortality, maternal mortality and life expectancy not only show we rank below most other Western countries, but that our relative position has been declining.

In 1950, the United States ranked sixth among the countries of the world in infant mortality. However, in 1960, the United States ranked 11th and by 1964 it was down to 16th. In maternal mortality rates—the percentage of mothers who die in childbirth—the United States is in 11th place. With regard to life expectancy, the United States ranks 18th for males and 11th for females.

Significantly, all of the countries that rank ahead of the United States with regard to these health indices have a national health program which either provides or finances health services for the vast majority of their citizens. It is also significant that these countries are providing health services to their respective populations at a lower per capita cost than in the United States. For example, in 1965, the Social Security Administration estimated that the United Kingdom spent 4.2 percent of its Gross National Product on health. In that year, the corresponding U.S. expenditure was 5.9 percent of the GNP.

Thus, we must ask these questions: Why has American medicine failed to live up to its potential? Why is it not the best in the world?

The bill I have introduced is designed to accomplish far more than simply pay for health service. Experience under the Medicare and Medicaid programs has demonstrated the mistake of having the government underwrite health care costs which are largely determined by the providers. For even though these two programs have substantially helped some 38 million Americans, the structure of the programs has not allowed the best return on the money invested. My bill would not only contain the rising cost of health care within the limits of the 6.7 percent of the GNP we are now spending, but it also has the potential of actually reducing cost as a percentage of the GNP over the years.

This cost control is achieved by having the federal government contract for health, hospital and dental services with organized groups of physicians, with hospitals and with groups of dentists. Contractual relations between free parties is a cornerstone of our private enterprise business and industrial system. It is a time-tested system in the health field as well.

For over two decades there have existed pre-paid group practice plans—which might be regarded as mini-national plans. These plans, such as the Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, have contracted with medical groups for comprehensive health services. These contracts place the medical group under a budget. The budget controls the costs. If the cost of providing services is actually less than the amount stipulated in the contract—the budget—the physicians receive a bonus at the end of the year. Thus, the more efficient the services, the more money they make.

The cost savings achievable under the contract system are nothing short of spectacular. For example, the President's Commission on Health Manpower studied the Kaiser plan in depth. The commission's conclusion was that the Kaiser plan provided as good or better care than was available in the general community—and the Kaiser plan cost from 20 to 30 percent less.

In addition to Kaiser, all other pre-paid group practice plans have demonstrated the capability of reducing hospitalization and the number of surgical procedures. A recent study of the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program showed that the group practice, pre-payment plans had but one-half the number of non-maternity hospital days per 1000 subscribers as the alternate coverage. Federal employees have a choice from among five types of coverage, including an indemnity plan and Blue Cross-Blue Shield. The per-paid group practice plans also had 42 percent fewer surgical procedures than Blue Cross-Blue Shield.

My bill would not only provide free choice of primary physician, but also allow beneficiaries a free choice of health delivery systems—solo or group practice. Moreover, beneficiaries would choose their personal physician when they were well and not under the stress of illness.

Physicians are guaranteed that the plan will not interfere with the clinical practice of medicine. They would be free to participate or not to participate in the National Health Insurance program. Participation could be on either a full-time or part-time basis. In fact, physicians would have the greatest professional freedom they have ever known. Within the framework of a budget, they would be able to establish their own methods of compensation. They could, if they so chose, eliminate all paperwork in connection with claims and concentrate on that which they were trained to do: practice medicine.

Here are the benefits my bill will provide and which any plan should provide:

One: Coverage for every man, woman and child who has resided in the United States for one year or more.

Two: Comprehensive health benefits, including unlimited hospitalization, physician services, including surgery, subject to a small $2 cost-sharing charge per visit after the first visit; preventive care and physical examinations, nursing home care as required and without limits, home health services subject to a $2 charge per visit and rehabilitation services.

Three: Comprehensive dental services for all children under age 16 subject to a $2 cost-sharing charge per visit after the first visit. Dental examinations and prophylaxis provided at no cost to the patient.

Four: Eye care including an allowance for eyeglasses and frames.

Five: Prescription drugs.

These benefits would be financed under the Social Security program. Employers would pay 3 percent of payroll, employees 1 per cent of payroll and the government would match the employer contribution from general revenues.

This structure takes into account that employers are now paying the entire cost in some employee health insurance programs. If the employer contributions were less than 3 percent, some employers would enjoy a windfall since their contribution would be less than their current payments into voluntary health insurance programs. The federal contribution would not be much more than current federal, state and local combined expenditures for health services. Thus, the federal government would be relieving the tax burden of state and local government for health services.

In summary, the bill I have introduced would establish a National Health Insurance program under the Social Security system and would give to middle Americans those health and medical benefits which the wealthy now have—because they can afford to pay for them.

This bill would relieve state and local governments of health service tax burdens, currently estimated at $7 billion annually. In addition, since this bill would eliminate Medicare and Medicaid, the $10 billion supporting these programs would become available for the comprehensive national health program.

My bill would also preserve free choice of physicians: preserve traditional professional freedom of practice and methods of payment and not only maintain but utilize the authority of local medical and dental associations and societies.

At the same time, this bill would make it possible for doctors and dentists to bypass time-consuming business administration and bookkeeping functions and permit them to concentrate on the practice of medicine and dentistry. It recognizes that the business of doctors is administering health and medical care. They should not have to be bookkeepers or credit collection agencies or small business proprietors.

The United States should rank first among all nations in providing high quality health care at reasonable cost for all people. In my opinion, the national medical and health crisis can only be resolved through a comprehensive National Health Insurance program, with comprehensive financing.

The Number of Quarters Needed For Social Security Benefits

Before Social Security benefits can be paid, an individual must have worked under social security for a specific length of time. That time is measured in "quarters of coverage." A quarter of coverage is any calendar quarter in which a worker is paid wages of $50 or more. Employees earn their 4 quarters of coverage per year one-at-a-time, as they are paid their wages. However, self-employed people are credited with 4 quarters of coverage all at one time, at the close of any year in which they have net self-employment income of $400 or more.

There are two things that determine the number of quarters of coverage that an individual needs: (1) the year that a person was born: and (2) whether the person is a man or a woman.

Ordinarily, no one can qualify for benefits with fewer than 6 quarters of coverage and no one is even requested to have more than 40 quarters of coverage, regardless of his age, but there are special rules for those 72 or older and for disabled people.

It should be noted here that the number of quarters an individual has is not at all related to the amount of the benefit that one will receive from Social Security. Quarters of coverage are used only to determine if a person has worked enough under Social Security to qualify for benefits. They are never used to measure the earnings on which an individual's checks will be based.

The chart at right may help you in determining the number of quarters you will need to get benefits.

Any work done after 1936 which was covered by Social Security will always remain on your social security record. Any or all of this work can be used to satisfy your quarters of coverage requirement, regardless of when the work was performed.

Q. My husband and I were divorced last year. Will I be able to get a wife's share of his social security benefits when he retires?

A. You may be in luck! The Social Security law provides benefits for a divorced wife if: (1) you and your ex-husband were married for 20 years or more immediately before divorce and, (2) you are receiving one-half of your support from your ex-husband or, (3) you are receiving substantial contributions toward your support from him, pursuant to a written agreement or, (4) there is in effect a court order for your ex-husband to contribute to your support (alimony)—whether or not he is actually making the payments required. You should contact your local social security office for details about this, since there are several technicalities in this part of the law that will require explanations.

Q. My husband and I were married 19 years ago, after he divorced his first wife. Recently we learned that his divorce had not been final at the time of our marriage, and that, therefore, we have never really been legally married. Will I be able to get wife's benefits when my husband retires? (We have two children who would be greatly distressed if they knew about this, and if I can't get checks they'll certainly have to know why.)

A. First of all, you need not worry about your children's learning of your situation from Social Security, since all social security records are kept "confidential." Secondly, under certain conditions, it is possible for Social Security to pay benefits to a "wife" whose ceremonial marriage was invalid under applicable state laws. Briefly, the Social Security law states that such a "wife" can get checks if: (1) there is no legal wife entitled to benefits on the husband's account and, (2) the "wife" married the worker in good faith (i.e. not knowing that there was an impediment to the marriage at the time of the ceremony and, (3) the "wife" and the worker are living together when she applies for checks. Naturally, you can obtain more information about this from your local social security office.

Postal Workers Win Wage Boost

After three months of "rotating strikes," Canada's 30,000-strong postal unions have reached a settlement.

The strikes started May 26, ended September 4 when the Canadian Council of Postal Employees got 55 cents an hour over a 30-month period compared with their original demand of 60 cents over 24 months. A conciliation board report proposed 50 cents over 30 months.

Twenty cents of the 55 cents increase is retroactive to October 1, 1969, plus another 10 cents April 1st. Retroactive pay will amount to a lump sum payment of $574.

The part of the increase payable from April 1st this year works out to 5.7 percent. But the postal workers definitely broke through the Federal government guidelines of six percent over life of the agreement.

The union negotiators claim the settlement is worth 7.2 percent a year in cash plus fringe benefits of three to four percent annually.

The treasury board spokesmen contend that the settlement is worth 6.3 percent a year plus the fringes.

Postmaster General Eric Kierans agreed in a final concession that no post office employee would be laid off because of technological change. The unions won another point when the treasury board agreed to pay half the cost of monthly medicare premiums of all postal workers in every province.—PAI

CLC Sets Campaign Against 'Deliberate' Unemployment Scheme of the Government

The Canadian Labour Congress has appealed to all Canadians to have their members of parliament intervene with the government in order to stop the rising trend of "deliberately created" unemployment.

"The government is true to its word. It promised it would create unemployment to fight inflation and it has," CLC executive vice-president Joseph Morris said in a statement.

"The July figure of 5.9 per cent unemployed is the highest actual rate of unemployment for any month of July in the entire Canadian post-war period. It is almost certain that this rate will be even higher—probably substantially higher—in the latter part of this year and in the coming winter, as we incur the usual seasonal unemployment problems.

"In seasonally adjusted terms, the unemployment rate has again risen and now stands at 6.7 per cent, the highest since September 1961.

Disregard for Unemployed

"By deliberately creating unemployment the government has shown complete disregard for the plight of more than half a million Canadians who are now out of work.

"Unless the government changes its socially irresponsible economic policies many more Canadians will suddenly find their livelihood gone and will be forced to depend on welfare and unemployment insurance to feed their families.

"Since all previous pleas by the Canadian Labour Congress seem to have been rejected by the government, it is our hope that all Canadians will press their members of parliament to bring about more positive economic policies and thus eliminate the needlessly high unemployment."

Try This Trick on A Contractor Sometime!

A plague of labor troubles has afflicted the Pope for the first time in the church's nearly 2,000-year history.

First, it was the Vatican's gendarmes who demonstrated in protest against "civilian" employees receiving a pay increase retroactive to July 1, 1969, while they and the famous Swiss Guards had their increase dated from July 1, 1970. Then the Vatican's 200 printers went on strike for three hours, demanding hikes in their $220-a-month wage, higher pensions and longer vacations.

But it was the gendarmes who hit on a unique—unheard-of-anywhere—form of protest. They refused to pick up their paychecks!

concrete Ts make the library a quieter place to study and reduce the sound in three gymnasiums and a cafeteria. Four lecture halls are more pleasing to look at and more conducive to attentive listening because of acoustical plaster. All shop rooms have been effectively sound-controlled this way for students learning sheet metal work and carpentry.

Clint Fladland, local Bureau representative, says he finds that school architects are receptive to changing the stark features previously associated with school buildings, and are including such design innovations as the auditorium ceiling in the Thomas Jefferson school.

cover

This December's cover picture is "Adoration of the Shepherds" by the Venetian artist Georgione (1478-1510.) This beautiful painting, approximately 35 x 43 inches, exhibits many "artistic licenses" taken by the artist. The Child is completely nude, despite the December weather. All the figures are dressed in contemporary style. The countryside shows a lush growth, rather than a wintery landscape's aspect, and the visible architecture is medieval rather than that of Judea some 15 centuries before. Georgione's painting, in the Kress Collection, is on exhibit at the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C. Georgione, despite his relatively short professional life, exerted a definite influence on the artist Titian and the entire tradition of Venetian painting and its derivations, through Valasquez to Manet.

Toward Eliminating Poverty in America

Program

Eight years of prosperity under the Kennedy-Johnson Administrations have cut poverty almost in half. Yet, by government-defined standards, 22 million Americans are still poor—earning under $3,500 a year for a family of four—and at least 10 million are near-poor.

By definition, all poor are poor because they do not have sufficient income to obtain even the bare necessities of life. While the common characteristic of poverty is lack of income, the causes of poverty vary greatly. The latest detailed government figures available give this profile of poverty:

1. Contrary to a widely-held misconception, the poor are not work-shy idlers; indeed, three out of five poor people are in families headed by an employed person and if the involuntarily unemployed are added, the figure is probably as high as two-thirds. Most shocking is the fact that one-third of the poor are in families where the breadwinner is employed throughout the year. Among heads of poor families under retirement age with children, 90 percent of the men and over half of the women work at least part of the year. Most of the men who do not work are disabled.

2. More than one-fourth of all poor families are headed by women and, of persons in families headed by women, 43 percent are poor.

3. Three-fourths of the poor are white but proportionately far more Negroes are poor than whites—one household in three among Negroes compared to one in seven for whites.

4. Forty percent of the poor are children.

5. At the other end of the age span, 20 percent of the poor are 65 and over; of the elderly, fully 30 percent are poor.

6. Although we emphasize the problems of concentrated urban poverty, poverty hits rural areas, especially but not exclusively in the South, even harder. Only about 6 percent of the poor live on farms but the chances of being poor are twice as great for people living on farms as for the non-farm population. Half of the nation's poor—urban and rural—are in the South.

Reactionaries claim, and many well-meaning people believe, that most poor people are poor because they do not want to work. But the facts explode the myth. The most striking and least noted fact about poverty in America is that three out of every five poor people are in families headed by an employed person. These are the "working poor" who are poor because they cannot find all-year full-time jobs or because their employers do not pay them even subsistence level wages. In addition, many poor are in families whose head wants to work but cannot find a job. The remainder are too old, too young, disabled or otherwise unable to work. So the facts of poverty explode the myth of the cause of poverty.

In the face of the persistence of poverty, some well-intentioned individuals have offered single program solutions, such as the guaranteed annual income, the negative income tax or the family allowance plan. These single-shot proposals are offered as a panacea to rid America of the scourge of poverty.

The AFL-CIO is convinced that no one program can wipe out poverty. America needs not one program but several which will provide a concerted assault on poverty. This assault must take fully into account the many reasons why people are poor. The truth is, there are no simple solutions.

Basic to solving the poverty problem is a national commitment to a policy of full employment, with a firm undertaking to reduce unemployment to no more than 2 to 2.5 percent of the labor force.

With an effective national commitment to full employment, most workers will be employed in the private economy or in regular federal, state or local public employment. But for the remaining workers who, because of lack of education, skills, training or other similar reasons, cannot obtain regular private or public employment, a large-scale public service employment program is needed.

This would not be a make-work program. To the contrary, workers now unemployed or working only part-time could be working in well-planned and useful public service jobs—in hospitals and other health facilities, in schools, parks, recreation centers, libraries and many other types of work—which could not only provide remunerative work for the poor but add to the health and well-being of the entire nation. Such employment should be linked with training and guidance so that these workers can move as rapidly as possible into regular employment.

In order to ensure adequate income for these public service workers and in order to avoid depressing the labor market, such workers should receive not less than the federal statutory minimum wage.

Currently, full-time employment at a $2 minimum wage would produce a $4,000 annual income which would raise the average-sized family above the poverty income level.

Full employment and an extended and increased minimum wage would directly benefit the millions of Americans who are in "working poor" families and also directly benefit those of the non-working poor who want to and could work but can't find a job.

Full employment, coupled with adequate Fair Labor Standards protection, is the best basic approach toward eliminating poverty for the greatest number of poor people.

To prepare workers for available and socially desirable jobs, America needs a national, coordinated job training program, designed to meet the specific needs of the "hard-core" unemployed. These training programs should be directed at skills geared to the actual needs of the job market and should include basic literacy, education and supportive services. This program must also be designed to consider the future job market, for training for non-existent jobs and "dead-end" jobs offers no permanent solution to unemployment or poverty.

Other programs will be necessary in order to reach into the crevices of poverty and assure decent incomes to those individuals who, through no fault of their own but because of peculiar and special circumstances, cannot be reached by the broad twin approach of full employment and minimum wage coverage. These are people who cannot be expected to work because of age, physical disabilities and infirmities, cultural and skill handicaps, frictional unemployment or because their family role dictates that they remain in the home with children and perhaps other dependents.

These supplementary programs must include:

1. A comprehensive and improved system of work-related social insurance, including (a) old age, survivors and disability insurance, (b) unemployment insurance and (c) workmen's compensation.
2. A humane and improved welfare program.

Social insurance is the nation's most powerful bulwark against poverty for families who find it impossible to rely on work for income. A comprehensive and greatly improved system of work-related social insurance programs could contribute even more toward the elimination of poverty. Presently, most workers and their families have some, although inadequate, protection against loss of income brought about by unemployment, retirement, death or injury. The breadwinner's previous employment entitles him and his family to such protection as a matter of right and the benefits they receive are generally related to past earnings.

But far too many families dependent on social insurance payments are poor. The AFL-CIO believes millions of families could be removed from poverty by expanded social insurance coverage and higher social insurance payments.

Despite periodic updating of social security payments, the elderly are still the poorest people in our society. The rate of poverty among the elderly—30 percent—is almost twice their proportion of the total population in America.

The increased social security benefits we are urging would remove an estimated 4.5 million Americans from the rolls of poverty.

Once most social security benefits are raised to an

San Diego VA Hospital Employs 60 Lathers

THE biggest building in the San Diego area, both in terms of total cost and floor area, is a $34.5 million giant now under construction that is a prototype of an unusual concept in building.

An average of 60 union lathers has been employed on the job.

Called the 311 Bed General Hospital, it is being built by the Veterans Administration and is expected to be completed by the fall of 1971.

Present plans call for the floor space to be more than 677,000 sq. ft. As most of the window walls are movable, they can be moved outward from their present location to provide more floor area without additional major work. On the sixth floor, for example, 20% additional floor space can be gained by moving the window walls outward. Most interior walls are also movable.

Handling the lath, plaster, fireproofing, and movable partitions on the big job is Brady-Duncan and Associates in joint venture, a group composed of E. F. Brady Co., La Mesa; Carroll Duncan, Alhambra; and Par Lathing Co., San Diego.

The Monokote fireproofing requires 30,000 sacks and is blown on at a rate averaging 2,600 sacks per week, using six Essick T-M 30s, often running two nozzles off one machine through a Y.

Inland-Ryerson Steel studs are used as in Keene Company's Penwall movable partition system. Johns-Manville insulation is also being used.

Some 142,000 sq. yards of lath were designed into the job, including metal lath by Inland and K-Lath's Pyro-K-Lath. Not all the lath will be plastered, as some ceramic tile is designed into the job. The specifications call for 8,500 sacks of cement.

Both scratch and brown coats are 3/8" and follow normal construction patterns. Approximately 21,000 yards of exterior cement plaster soffits and considerable exterior wall application will be applied. There are also some 15,000 yards of metal lath and gypsum plaster sound attenuation walls, as well as 2 3/4" and 2 1/2" solid plaster fire walls. Both interior and exterior plaster will be painted by final completion of the job.

CHRISTMAS IS A HAPPY BLEND OF ANCIENT, MODERN CUSTOMS

Christmas in North America is a joyful blend of something old, something new, a great deal borrowed, and nothing blue. The holiday combines Christian, pagan, seasonal, and national traditions into a harmonious pattern, according to the National Geographic Society.

Druids, for example, decked their halls with boughs of holly to shelter sylvan spirits threatened by frost and winter winds. Traditionally, Britons consider it unlucky to bring holly into a house before Christmas Eve.

Ancient Romans feasted, exchanged gifts, and decorated with evergreens during Saturnalia, a December festival honoring the god Saturn. Mistletoe, the yule log, and the wassail bowl are relics of other pre-Christmas midwinter celebrations.

When Pope Gregory I sent out missionaries in A.D. 601, he counseled them to let converts weave the harmless features of pagan festivals into the spiritual fabric of the Christian observance.

Following this precept, the eighth-century missionary Boniface persuaded the Teutons to transfer worship of Odin's sacred oak to an evergreen decorated in honor of the Christ child. Much later, Martin Luther adorned a tree with candles to simulate an evergreen shimmering with starlit snow.

Christmas trees were confined to the Rhine country until about 1700. It is believed that the custom crossed the Atlantic with Hessian mercenaries during the American Revolution.

Santa Claus as he is known today, the poinsettia, and greeting cards are relatively new. Tradition says the original Santa Claus was St. Nicholas, a 4th-cen- tury bishop in Asia Minor who gave gifts to the young and the poor. The American Santa, rotund and ruddy aboard his reindeer sleigh, evolved from the St. Nicholas of Dutch colonists in New York. The transformation was completed with Dr. Clement Clarke Moore's classic, "A Visit from St. Nicholas," printed in 1823.

The poinsettia, Latin America's traditional Christmas decoration, is its major contribution to the North American yuletide. The shrub with flaming red petals was brought to the United States in 1829 by Dr. Joel Roberts Poinsett, United States minister to Mexico, and given his name.

Greeting cards came from England. The first were designed in the 1840's, but were not widely sold for two decades. Two prototypes bore an identical message which has not been improved upon to this day: "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to You."

The course of Christmas celebrations has not always run smoothly. Abuses of Christmas reached such a pitch in 17th-century England that the Puritan Parliament finally outlawed the holiday in 1644. Puritan leaders in Massachusetts also banned yule celebrations from 1659 to 1681, and a whole generation of American children grew up without Christmas.

In both the United States and England, the holiday observance declined until the middle of the 19th century when Charles Dickens published his "Christmas Carol." The heartwarming story helped revive the Christmas spirit, and Dickens is often called "the father of modern Christmas."

Left: Early greeting cards often made little or no reference to the season.

Meany Lashes at Nixon Administration for 'Calculated Deception' on State of Economy

AFL-CIO President George Meany has charged the Nixon Administration with "calculated deception, Madison Avenue doubletalk" in its pre-election statements on the shape of the national economy. "At least they should tell it like it is," he insisted.

Meany, interviewed by reporters from the major wire services, said that despite all the Administration's optimistic observations, the government's own statistics clearly show what has happened to the economy during the 20 months since President Nixon took office:

- The Consumer Price Index is up 10 percent.
- Unemployment is up 72 percent to 4.6 million with 2 million more persons seeking jobs without success.
- The effective interest rate on FHA home mortgages is up 21 percent from 7.5 percent to 9.07 percent.
- Housing starts are down 21 percent.

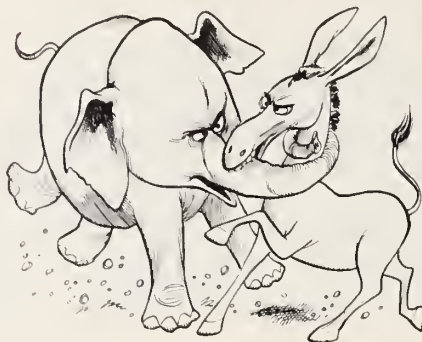

- The number of major industrial areas with substantial unemployment is up from six in January, 1969, to 35 in September, 1970. (The number subsequently rose to 38 in October.)

This actual record of the failure of the Administration's economic "game plan" is the chief issue of the campaign, Meany declared. "There has not been improvement and there is no indication that there is going to be improvement." In fact, he said, there are indications that the Administration is holding back further cut-backs and that the situation could become worse.

Meany assessed the mood among most union members as apprehensive. They don't see any signs that the recession has "bottomed out," he observed, or that we are at the "threshold of recovery" that Administration spokesmen refer to in their statements on the economy.

He charged that Administration spokesmen are emphasizing crime and youth revolt in their campaign appearances in an effort to avoid the major issues posed by inflation and the sagging economy because its record is so poor on this score. Furthermore, Meany emphasized, "crime is not a partisan matter." He labeled

Vice Pres. Agnew's attempt to link crime with the liberals "plain old election bunk."

"The American people are a little too smart to believe that crime is the property of one political party or the other, or that opposition to crime is confined to one political party," Meany declared.

As for Agnew's attacks on "radical-liberals," Meany said that "the radical tag has been used by political demagogues for a long, long time and it means nothing to me." The nation has to make progress in the 1970s, he said, and "this calls for liberals."

In response to the observation that civil rights issues were muted during the campaign, Meany stressed that this was primarily because of the predominance of the economic issues. He accused the Administration of not doing much in the field of civil rights while "trying to balance water on both shoulders." He cited Agnew's recent statement that Nixon is still determined to appoint a "southern strict constructionist" to the Supreme Court. This, he said, suggests another appointee with the same racial attitudes as Judges Clement Haynsworth and Harrold Carswell, whose appointments the Senate rejected.

Meany Comment on the Election

On the day following the election, AFL-CIO President George Meany loosed another broadside at the Nixon Administration. In part, he declared.

"The results and the big turnout prove that the voters would not be stampeded by the politics of fear and smear practiced by Vice President Agnew; the most lavishly financed campaign in off-year history—that of the Republican party; the extravagant and wasteful expenditures of Presidential prestige and dignity or the dismal predictions of commentators that America had lost confidence in its ability to govern itself.

"It was a mandate to the Administration to stop trying to deceive the people about the real state of the nation's economic dilemma which has been created by the ill-advised fiscal and monetary policies of the Administration. As we see it, the voters delivered several key messages to the President. They were to:

- "Act now to reduce high unemployment, high prices, high interest rates and high medical costs;
- "Return to his announced "bring us together" policy by curbing the Vice President's vicious tongue.

"We feel keenly the losses of some Senate friends for whom we worked hard, especially the defeats of Senators Gore and Tydings. We consider the New York senatorial results to be a disgrace. The Administration's claim to victory in New York, achieved by cutting the political throat of a member of the President's own party, is somewhat grotesque.

"It was significant that, in the majority of the states where the President and Vice President campaigned long and extensively against labor's friends, they were roundly repudiated.

"Overall, we find the congressional outlook to be a gain and the victories of liberals to the governorships of key states to be most satisfying.

"Finally, I want to extend my warm thanks to all the union members who participated in COPE's most successful campaign to date. It was well planned and well executed, but it depended upon the hard work of thousands of volunteers at the precinct level. They did a splendid job and the legislative victories we will win in the next two years will be a direct result of their determined efforts."

"Celia" Proves Worth of Lathed Curtain Walls

Texas Bureau Studies Action of Wind on Buildings; Finds Proof of L&P Superiority

The old saying: "It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good" was proven again as Hurricane Celia provided a laboratory for the study of effects of high wind on various types of construction.

The hurricane, which hit Corpus Christi in early August, did monumental damage. Winds reached a steady 160 mph, when the anemometer became defective. Observers estimated the gusts to as high as 180 mph, the strongest winds ever recorded in the area. Using standard formulas, engineers estimated that wind pressures of from 75 to 80 pounds per square inch were generated on planar surfaces.

There was much masonry damage in Corpus Christi in the blow, as well as vast roof damage. There was almost complete glass curtain wall damage.

With the exception of the one school in the report, all lath and plaster curtain wall jobs came through the hurricane in excellent manner with no visible damage.

A survey reported by the Texas Bureau for Lathing and Plastering examined a Corpus Christi elementary school following the big blow. The observations of the survey were as follows:

Size of Projects: 2 story, approximately 20,000 sq. ft. total floor area.

Structural Frame: Concrete beams and columns.

Exterior Walls: 25 gage galvanized steel stud, 16" o.c. and track.

Exterior stud side:  $\frac{1}{2}$ " sheathing screw attached plus self furring galvanized 3:4 lath screw attached plus 1" portland cement plaster with exposed aggregate finish.

Interior stud side:  $\frac{5}{8}$ " gypsum board screw attached.

A sample (on file in the Austin office) of the 25 gage track displayed a shearing or tearing of the light gage metal where the power activated fastener, or stub nail, penetrated this metal attaching it to the concrete frame.

these same points where these pins, or stub nail, engaged the concrete frame.

A conclusion: A combination of these two reactions led to the wall failure upon the applied wind force because maximum shear develops at the point where the track is attached to the frame.

Above: Steel-trussed parts and the masonry parts of this church suffered extensive damage. The stucco panels were totally unharmed by the force of Hurricane Celia.

Left: Parts of the roofs and many windows are missing from these L&P buildings, both on the Corpus Christi bayfront. In foreground is a stucco stone-textured residence. In background is a 40-year-old stucco hotel which has withstood repeated hurricane winds. Neither suffered damage to L&P walls.

Kermit Olson, plastering contractor, stands beside building with walls of lath and plaster which he built at the water's edge of Corpus Christi Bay. While the building lost its entire roof (arrows point to grille and corrugated roofing,) the L&P walls came through 160-mph winds intact.

This L&P curtain wall in a school building failed, the only such failure observed in the entire area where masonry walls were almost universally damaged. Survey determined that 25-gage metal is too light to resist hurricane-generated forces reaching up to 80 pounds per square inch. No other L&P curtain wall damage was observed in the city.

Heavy Unemployment Spreading to More Areas; Nixon Administration Lack of Action Condemned

Spreading unemployment in October pushed the number of major manpower centers with a jobless rate of 6 percent or more to 38. This includes five new areas added since September to the Labor Department's "substantial" unemployment list.

The department's report for October showed that more than one-fourth of the nation's 150 major job centers are now classified as having "substantial" joblessness. One year ago, there were only five such areas. The report also added 13 smaller areas to the substantial unemployment list, raising that number to 588.

Among the new major areas in that category are the California manpower centers of Los Angeles-Long Beach, San Diego, and San Bernardino-Riverside-Ontario. Others are Lawrence-Haverhill, Mass., and New Brunswick-Perth Amboy, N.J.

House Speaker John W. McCormack, commenting on the report in advance of its release, said that the growing list of centers affected by high unemployment is proof of the "failing economic policies" of the Nixon Administration. He pointed out that when Pres. Nixon took office there were only six major centers on the "substantial" unemployment list.

McCormack also said there are firm indicators that the nation's total unemployment rate is approaching 6 percent. The jobless rate surged to 5.5 percent in September from 5.1 percent the month before.

Two major employment centers were taken off the "substantial" list during the month and reclassified as having "moderate" unemployment—from 3 percent to 5.9 percent. They are Utica-Rome, N.Y., and Kenosha, Wis.

The 13 smaller areas where joblessness rose over the month to the "substantial" level are: Cocoa, Fla.; Camilla, Homerville, and Lakeland, Ga.; Fulton, Ky.; Minden, La.; Greenfield and Taunton, Mass.; Albany, Ore.; Orangeburg, S.C.; McAllen, Tex.; Ogden, Utah, and Pennsboro, W. Va.

Overall, 626 major and smaller job centers are now classified as having "substantial" or "persistent" unemployment, the Labor Dept. reported. "Persistent" unemployment means that the jobless rate has been 6 percent or more for a year and has been at least 50 percent above the U.S. average for several years.

Three large cities are now classed in the persistent unemployment category. They are Cleveland, Oakland and Newark. Four other major areas and 24 counties are also in the "persistent" category.

The report showed that five major areas have unemployment rates in the range of 9 to 11.9 percent. They are Lowell, Mass.; Wichita, Kan.; Seattle and Tacoma, Wash., and Muskegon-Muskegon Heights, Mich. An unemployment rate of 12 percent or more exists in Mayaguez and Ponce, Puerto Rico.

Administration spokesmen have downplayed "the seriousness of the situation." Speaker McCormack charged, although the rise of unemployment has accelerated in the past few months.

"Another great tragedy of this de-meaning joblessness," he said, is that it is expanding at a time when there is so much that needs to be done.

"This Congress initiated and passed legislation to provide an effective and practical method of combatting unemployment through community facilities improvement. It also initiated and passed legislation giving the President authority to control inflation and interest rates. To date the President has refused to exercise the authority given him, although conditions continue to deteriorate."

Campaign Dollars of Rich Favor Republicans, 13 to 1

America's richest multimillionaires gave $13 to Republican candidates during the 1968 election year for every $1 contributed to Democratic candidates.

Forty-six super-wealthy individuals—each with a personal fortune estimated at above $150 million made political contributions. They gave $1,377,313 to Republican candidates and $196,488 to Democrats. Executives of the nation's 25 largest industrial corporations also strongly favored Republican candidates in their political donations.

Republicans received $782,839 from 219 big company executives, compared to $132,150 from 26 contributors for the Democrats.

Companies with the largest political contributions from executives were Ford, with donations totaling $87,100 to Republicans and $53,000 to Democrats; International Business Machines, with $104,250 to Republicans and $32,000 to Democrats, and General Motors, with executive contributions of $114,675 to Republican candidates and only $1,000 to Democrats.

Members of the prestigious Business Council gave $280,913 to Republican candidates in 1968 as against $83,000 to Democrats—a turnabout from 1964 when, for the first time, Business Council members donated more money to Democratic committees than to the Goldwater-led Republicans.

About 70 percent of the persons listed by Fortune Magazine as the "richest of the rich" contributed to the 1968 political campaigns. But the donors did not include the two men at the top of the list—billionaires J. Paul Getty and Howard Hughes.

The unemployment picture in construction is becoming disastrous! In September 13.8 percent of building tradesmen were unemployed. A year ago only 7.4 percent were jobless. The young and old suffer as prices, interest and taxes continue to rise and jobs disappear. Yet Nixon does nothing.

Government Contractors Must Observe Federal Labor Laws, NLRB Declares

Government contractors are bound by the same labor laws and successorship rules as any other employer, a National Labor Relations Board examiner has ruled.

Rejecting a contrary argument by the U.S. Air Force at the Laredo Air Force Base, Tex., Trial Examiner Thomas A. Ricci recommended that Emerald Maintenance, Inc., be ordered by the NLRB to negotiate contract terms with Public Service Local 1057 of the Laborers, and sign an agreement if an understanding is reached.

The employer also should be ordered to make restitution to employees for all contract benefits withheld since Aug. 1, 1970, when Emerald won a maintenance contract at the base by undercutting two competitors, the examiner said.

The two preceding contractors at Laredo AFB had contracts which provided wage and fringe benefit increases. The union notified Emerald and all other prospective bidders that it represented the employees and that the increases were not contained in the wage determinations listed by the government in its invitations to bid.

Emerald has since used substantially the same group of employees to do the maintenance work at Laredo but "refused to have anything to do with the union," rejected the contract conditions then in effect and fixed wages and other benefits below the contract level "as though there had never been either a union or a contract," Ricci reported.

He ruled that Emerald is a successor employer who is bound to recognize the union and abide by the contract.

The Air Force, in a court brief, argued that successorship rules do not apply to contractors under the Service Contracts Act. Ricci said that if this was true, then among civilian employees of a government contractor "there may be no union activity, no union representation and no collective bargaining."

That was not what Congress intended or it would have said so, the examiner declared. He ruled also that Emerald is a private employer, an independent contractor, and as an employer is "subject to all the laws applicable to private industry."

Similarly rejecting Emerald's claim, he said the firm "came down from the northern reaches of Idaho to the Mexican border to undercut" two competitors, "to take the business away from them, and at least one of its aces in the hole was a plan to place the burden of its lesser bid upon the employees."

Such a method of doing business, if upheld, would "make a mockery" of the entire collective bargaining principle and the labor law itself, the examiner said.

'Systems Building' Won't Work Minus Commitment, Gotham Official Declares

The method of "systems building" is nothing new in the construction industry, according to Donald F. Rodgers, Executive Director of the New York Building and Construction Industry's Board of Urban Affairs.

In a recent article illustrated with actual photographs of "systems building" as far back as 1904, Rodgers pointed out that "systems building" has been used for many years. The recent spurt of the method, he points out, is nothing new. Standardized factory-made houses were constructed in Forest Hills Gardens between 1904 and 1925. These houses are not only still standing, but are considered of above-average desirability in today's market.

Rodgers points out that, 50 years ago, there were the same "systems building" complications which face builders today: building codes, zoning mortgages, subsidies, taxes, and the great key element of "commitment in volume."

"The construction industry is ready and able to do its job to build craftsmanship, but flatly states that no 'system' will change the housing industry unless there is a firm commitment (not promise) to build in volume on a fixed, firm schedule," said the construction official.

Role of Lath-Plaster Stressed in Conclave

Gilbert A. Wolf recently addressed a meeting of the International Apartment Conference, sponsored by the National Association of Home Builders, at the Statler Hilton Hotel in Washington, D. C. Mr. Wolf was representing both the National Plastering Industry's Joint Apprenticeship Program and the National Bureau for Lathing & Plastering. He outlined recent advances in veneer plastering and curtain wall construction. He also discussed the successful manpower-training programs now underway in various parts of the country.

This conference was attended by more than 2,000 people in the building industry of importance in determining future use of lath and plaster. In the photograph above, panelists who participated in the conference are, from left: Robt. G. Slowinski, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.; Gilbert A. Wolf, Natl. Plastering Industry's Joint Apprenticeship Program; and Henry J. Knott, Baltimore, Md.

William ("Ernie") Albright, retiring president of the Pen-Del-Mar Council of Lathers, was honored with a banquet attended by a host of his friends and admirers on October 18.

He has been a member of the Lathers International Union for 48 years, business agent of Local Union 429 for 25 years, and helped organize the P-D-M Council in 1938. He also served as vice president of the council and has been a delegate to many International Union conventions.

The banquet was attended by General Secretary-Treasurer J. Earl Ferguson, who spoke to the group, expressing his pleasure at attending such a function in honor of one of "the real old-timers of the lathing trade." He commended the Council for its initiative in showing its appreciation to its retiring president.

Brother Albright was presented with a plaque by Sixth International Vice President James Sweeney and with a government bond presented by Secretary-Treasurer Francis Mulligan.

The new president of the P-D-M Council is Thomas H. Miller, who expressed his pleasure at being honored with the position and who stated that he hopes he "can continue to build on the foundation Ernie has laid so well during his term of office."

Sound-Slide Presentation Demonstrates Advantages Of Metal Lath Construction

"The Selective 70's," a 16-minute color sound-slide presentation newly produced by the Metal Lath Association, is now available for loan use from the Association or member companies.

The presentation graphically demonstrates the benefits of metal lath construction, as evidenced in significant projects across the country. Through photographs, schematic or architectural drawings, and down-to-earth narrative, the presentation details various effective applications of metal lath systems in commercial, institutional and residential jobs.

Highlighted in the presentation are eight specific advantages of metal lath construction systems: (1) design versatility, (2) light weight, (3) space savings, (4) construction time savings, (5) sound control, (6) fire prevention, (7) durability and (8) ease of maintenance.

Metal lath curtainwall systems are shown, through actual contractor experience, to offer savings of up to 50 percent in both direct cost and weight over other types of construction. The sound-slide presentation describes systems utilizing pre-cast metal lath and plaster panels to achieve substantial reductions in construction time and details of typical installations.

Documentation for the material's superior capabilities in the areas of sound control and fire protection is offered in the work of nationally-recognized designers, including, among others, Frank Lloyd Wright, William Wesley Peters, Harry Weese and Charles Deaton.

Presentation sets of "The Selective 70's," which include the 77 color slides and sound tape, are available from MLA for 5-day periods for a loan fee of $5 to cover handling, insurance and shipping. Member companies will also furnish presentation sets. Contact the Metal Lath Association, 221 North LaSalle Street, Chicago, Ill. 60601.

New York Central Union Launches Drugs Program

The New York City Central Labor Council, AFL-CIO, through its Community Services Committee, has initiated a direct and positive war on the use of drugs.

More than 200 top labor leaders recently met at an open seminar where plans were mapped to fight this epidemic that has struck not only our community but our nation. The mass public media were finally receptive to what labor can do when challenged.

In connection with the efforts to meet the threat posed by drugs, the Central Labor Rehabilitation Council of New York passed a resolution which provided (1) undertaking of a program to defeat narcotic addiction and drug abuse (2) encourage the participation of all affiliates of the City Central Labor Council (3) co-operation with the state Narcotic Addiction Control Commission and other drug addiction agencies, both public and private (4) establishment of a research and pilot project incorporating the setting up of centers in as many boroughs as possible (5) encouragement of local union health and welfare funds to include coverage for drug addiction services in their program.

Labor's Crusade Against Drugs also involved a meeting with union members and their families in the Hotel Commodore. Outstanding authorities on the drug problem spoke.

Building Trades Rap Proposed Labor Law With Rally by 15,000

Building tradesmen of Ontario originated and planned one of the largest and most successful demonstrations in all history in front of Parliament buildings in Toronto.

There were about 15,000 building tradesmen massed in protest against the government's proposed changes in provincial labor legislation.

The mass rally was under auspices of the Ontario Building Trades Council, the Ontario Federation of Labor and the Labor Council of Metro Toronto. Representation in the Oct. 17 rally was province-wide. The turnout was vocal and spirited, but completely orderly.

Following the show of solidarity, the legislation was referred by Labor Minister Dalton Bales to the Labor Committee of the Ontario Legislature. Hearings on the legislation are now in progress.

The primary objections to the legislation is, as far as industrial unions are concerned, alteration of the present practice which allows a union to obtain automatic bargaining certification when it secures 55 percent of a bargaining unit and to obtain a vote when 45 percent have been signed up.

The proposal would change it to allow a vote with only 35 percent signed. But for automatic certification without a vote, 65 percent would be required. Union spokesmen point out that no union wants a vote with only 35 percent of prospective members signed. On the other hand, obtaining 65 percent for automatic certification would generally be difficult to achieve.

Unions fear the establishment of ad hoc industrial inquiry commissions which can be appointed at the discretion of the labor minister to make recommendations concerning industrial disputes. The fear is that such moves might be the forerunner of compulsory arbitration.

Major provisions of the proposed legislation are aimed at the building trades. The fact was established by

Mr. Bales himself when he stated, in announcing the legislation, that it was intended to correct "the imbalance in the construction industry" which is allegedly weighted too heavily on the union side. But when he addressed the rally in Queens Park, he was more reserved in his language, stating that the legislation was designed to "bring stability to labor relations in the construction industry."

The law would aid contractors to mass on one side of the bargaining table against the construction unions on the other. While the construction trades unions do not object to the contractors forming their own bargaining units, they do oppose the government putting it into legislation, thus providing a crutch to aid the contractors in achieving what they have heretofore had difficulty in doing for themselves on a voluntary basis.

There is reason to believe that the government will listen to the voice of the united unions in regard to this legislation, so intensely unpopular with such a large segment of the population.

There will be a provincial election in 1971.

Meany Lashes "Deception"

Meany suggested, too, that the pre-dominance of economic issues diminished public concern with foreign policy as an election issue. But he gave Nixon credit for toning down the Viet Nam issue by "bringing our people home." The public, he said, "can see down the road that this thing is coming to an end."

As to the possible effects of the election on Nixon, Meany said that the President's plans will be determined by "what he thinks is best for him in November of 1972," no matter what takes place in the election. Meany made it clear that he did not condemn the President for this political shrewdness, and observed that Nixon "is not the first President who has been keenly political," citing Franklin Roosevelt and Lyndon Johnson as other examples.

He said he does not expect the next Congress to be anti-labor. The legislative program labor will be pressing in that Congress, he said, will cover consumer protection, health, pollution, civil rights, inflation and "everything that affects the people in any way."

Meany re-emphasized labor's strong support for legislation to limit spending in election campaigns. Because television and radio time is costly and have tremendous impact, Meany observed that the poorer candidates are at a serious disadvantage. "If we got to the point where only the wealthy could hold office, I think this would be the end of our whole system of a democratic society," he said.

As a possible solution to this problem, Meany suggested that the federal government should allocate the amount to be spent. And he stressed that, in a democracy, each candidate should have equal access to the media. "I don't think that we should continue to look at a system without worry that evidently favors those with a whole lot of money," he concluded.

"Celia" Proves Lathing Worth

This shear force was estimated at 450 pounds per running foot.

The results of shear tests previously run by a testing lab on a 25 gage channel section displayed load at failure of approximately 350 pounds. Therefore, 25 gage metal is too light to resist these forces.

Another conclusion: If stub nails were used to attach the track to the frame, it is highly possible that the nails did not hold in the concrete. This appears to be a possible cause of failure, noting how the concrete was fractured around the area where the fasteners penetrated. These fracture points quite possibly could have occurred before any horizontal force was exerted on the system.

This was one of two elementary schools identically designed and bid together. The other school, approximately 7 miles removed, did not suffer any observed damage. The 25 gage stud and track was also used.

It was debated, at the time of construction, whether the 25 gage stud should be used in an exterior lath and plaster curtainwall.

The 25 gage stud was approved by the architect upon assurance by the manufacturer, in writing, that this stud had sufficient structural integrity.

The 9-foot wall section, in itself, seemed structurally adequate to resist these wind velocities. The critical point of failure is where the track is attached to the frame. The following questions should be positively answered by our technical bulletin or those of the manufacturers that furnish this industry:

- (1) What gages of steel (both fasteners and track) are being used?
- (2) How is the track attached to the frame? Do not use stub nails
- (3) On what centers is the fastening occurring?

In the last three years, the bureau has been actively promoting lath and plaster curtainwall in the Corpus Christi area. During "Celia," entire concrete and clay tile and brick walls were demolished almost piece by piece. A conclusion, after seeing so much masonry damage in Corpus Christi and in the earlier tornadic winds in Lubbock is that lath and plaster wall systems have greater structural integrity than masonry walls. Masonry seems to shear at each mortar joint. Load-bearing masonry walls, when they failed, created much damage to the entire building and its contents. It is conclusive that the lath and plaster curtain walls, properly shear connected to the frame, are relatively indestructible when subjected to these weather forces.

An architect who made a survey of the damage observed: "Few, if any, masonry wall ties were used; glass size to strength ratios were improper; building parts that failed did not seem to have the correct number or size of fastening devices." He further stated that these storms always point up the failure to design glazed systems as strong as the walls in which they are placed.

ELIMINATING POVERTY IN AMERICA

About 60 percent of non-working, head-of-household males who are poverty stricken are either chronically ill or suffer from physical disability. These men form another large group of poor people who cannot be expected to work.

There are two immediate ways to raise these men and the members of their families above the poverty line. One is to increase payments and extend coverage under the disability insurance phase of the social security program. Another is to federalize the workmen's compensation programs and, at least, establish federal minimum standards for the workmen's compensation program.

As the best way to secure urgently needed improvements, the AFL-CIO has long advocated federalization of the unemployment insurance system or, at the very least, establishment of adequate minimum federal standards.

But work and work-related social insurance would not help another segment of the poor who cannot work or cannot be expected to work. Primarily, these are mothers and children in fatherless families, but they may also include, even with improved social security, some few elderly and disabled.

Some mothers must stay at home because they are unsuited for meaningful jobs. Others want to stay at home, and should be able to, in order to take care of their children. Still others want to work, and could, if they had proper day care for their children. For the benefit of these mothers and children, as well as other unemployables, a humane and vastly improved public welfare program is needed.

The existing public welfare program has been widely criticized and many of the criticisms are justified. It should be overhauled and strengthened in order to meet the needs of those who must rely on it.

Welfare payments are, in most states, at sub-poverty levels. They should be adequate enough to provide decent living standards for those who are dependent on them. Welfare payments should be supplemented by supportive services which would permit those receiving welfare payments to make the best use of them. The aim should be especially to assure a decent break to the children brought up in fatherless families so that when they reach maturity they and their children will not have to depend on welfare.

The existing categorical system which bars many poor families from eligibility should be replaced by a system in which eligibility is based solely on need. Families with unemployed fathers should also be eligible for assistance on the basis of their need, too, but these unemployed men should be required to seek work or training. All recipients, male and female, should be encouraged by proper guidance and appropriate financial incentives to obtain part-time and, where qualifications and family circumstances permit, full-time jobs. But, in any case, aid should not be denied when there is a real need for help and, in determining eligibility for assistance, need should be the only relevant factor.

The AFL-CIO believes if welfare assistance is largely confined to those who cannot or should not work and if there are sufficient jobs at decent wages for those who can work, then the number of welfare recipients can be gradually reduced.

To assure uniform treatment of recipients and adequate financing throughout the country, the welfare program should be administered and entirely or largely financed by the federal government. Standards of eligibility and payments should be determined on a national basis. We favor adoption of the declaration method of determining eligibility which, supplemented by proper controls, will eliminate time-wasting and degrading detailed investigations. Public assistance payments should be adequate to provide decent living standards to those dependent on them.

In short, the welfare system should be changed to permit those dependent on it to live in decency, dignity and security.

It can be readily seen that there are no simple solutions. And the programs recommended obviate the need for the single-shot solutions currently being discussed in some circles.

The attraction of the negative income tax or other general guaranteed income scheme is usually its seemingly mechanical, one-shot approach that is supposed to do away with all or most of the social insurance and other programs. For many academic economists, the problem seems to be finding a simple mechanical model, packaged in one neat and automatic device, that will supposedly end poverty in one fell swoop. For some social workers, their opposition to means tests and demeaning aspects of current public assistance programs leads them to search for a simplistic, automatic device. For many upper-income elitists, the desire seems to be to avoid any of the differing, specific causes and aspects of poverty and brush them all away forever.

Simply put, there is no single program which will wipe out poverty. Instead, because people are poor for a variety of reasons, a battery of programs is needed. First and foremost, there must be work at decent wages for everyone who can work, for this is by far the most important remedy for existing poverty. But there are those who cannot work and for them the solution is decent incomes through updated social insurance for some and, for others, through a modernized, humanized and federalized public welfare program.
